CIRCULAR.

In May, 1833, the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association undertook to raise, by subscription, the sum of fifty thousand dollars, for the purpose of completing the Bunker-Hill Monument, and relieving the Battle-Ground from a mortgage. Their efforts were prosecuted through the summer, and subscriptions obtained amounting to about thirty thousand dollars.

It has since been ascertained by a committee of the Bunker-Hill Monument Association, that the sum of $50,000 will be insufficient to accomplish the two objects proposed in the original subscription. But, in order that the voluntary exertions of the Mechanic Association may not be defeated, it has been voted by the Bunker-Hill Monument Association, that the land owned by them, saving and excepting a square of 400 feet, on which the base of the Monument stands, and the streets of 50 feet on three sides thereof, shall be sold for the payment of the debt of the Corporation,—leaving the money collected by the Mechanic Association to be applied to the completion of the Monument. A meeting of the Directors of the Monument Association, was held on the 5th inst. at which the following votes were unanimously passed, viz:—

"That the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association be and they hereby are empowered and requested to proceed, under the supervision of the Executive Committee of this corporation, to apply any money which they have collected, or may collect, to the completion of the Monument, by raising the same to the elevation of one hundred and fifty-nine feet and six inches, and that they commence the work on the seventeenth day of June next, and proceed therewith as speedily as may be done.

"That as many certificates of membership as the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association may choose to take, be delivered to them,—they to furnish the Treasurer of this corporation with a statement of the nett proceeds thereof, which they may receive thereon, that such statement may be recorded; such proceeds to be applied, by said Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association, in building the Monument."

The subscribers,—the Executive Committee of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association,—fully impressed with the conviction, that, if their undertaking should fail, no further effort will be made, nor will the present generation see the Monument finished,—appeal once more to the liberality and the pride of the public, and respectfully solicit your co-operation, by your own subscription, and by such personal aid in soliciting subscriptions, as may suit your convenience and promote the proposed object.

CIRCULAR.

BOSTON, July 4, 1840.

At a meeting of the Directors of the BUNKER-HILL MONUMENT ASSOCIATION, on the 25th ultimo, it was voted that the President and Secretary of the Corporation, with such gentlemen as would voluntarily co-operate with them, be a Committee to receive and solicit subscriptions, and to procure funds in every mode they may deem most expedient, to complete the Monument. Under the authority conferred by this vote the undersigned have associated, and resolved to hold a FAIR in the City of Boston, during the second week in September next, and they most respectfully and earnestly solicit the aid and co-operation of the Ladies of New England, and especially those of Massachusetts, in promotion of a scheme, which seems to promise success.

The undersigned make this appeal to a portion of the community, whose virtuous and patriotic ambition to aid in every project that can confer honor on the country, has never yet been solicited in vain, with the fullest confidence that it will meet with a cheerful and energetic response. Believing that this proposal will be received with a degree of favor corresponding to the hopes and expectations of the Committee, a suitable place, in which to hold the Fair, has been procured and will be fitted up as a BAZAAR, with tables appropriated to the use of such Ladies as may desire them.

Ladies and Gentlemen, to whom this Circular may be addressed, are solicited to communicate it to such of their friends and acquaintances as they may deem expedient, and, as early as practicable, inform the President or Secretary of the Committee whether the proposal meets their approbation, and, if so, what assistance may be expected, in order that suitable arrangements may be made for their accommodation.

It is hoped that such replies may not be deferred beyond the 30th day of the present month; and it is moreover hoped that all will unite, and contribute their aid in completing this memorial of the patriotism of our fathers,—that the spot consecrated by blood and valor may no longer remain a reproach to the present generation.

AN APPEAL TO THE LADIES OF CHARLESTOWN,

IN BEHALF OF THE BUNKER-HILL MONUMENT!

Public notice has already been given of the intention of the Committee of the Directors of the Bunker-Hill Monument Association, to raise funds for the completion of the Monument by means of a public FAIR and GRAND BAZAAR, to be held in Boston during the second week of September next. Invitations have been given by general Circulars to the Ladies of New-England to contribute saleable articles of every variety to be sold at this Fair. It is estimated that sixty thousand persons may be induced to visit this Fair during that week, should it be well stored and made attractive in every appropriate manner. Thus by the small contributions of a vast number of individuals, a great sum may be realized for this patriotic object.

The undersigned have been appointed a Committee to ascertain what aid may be expected from the Ladies of Bunker-Hill. It is unnecessary to state that much will be expected from them, who live on the very soil which is thus to be commemorated. It is hoped that every lady who shall read this Circular, will bestow a portion of her leisure time and of her resources in aid of this worthy object, and that she will prepare or procure one or more articles for the Fair. Articles may be sent to any one of the undersigned at any time, or to some depot to be provided during the first week of September, of which due notice will be given. Articles sent in will be registered with the names of the contributors, in a suitable Book to be prepared for the purpose and preserved.

CHRIST CHURCH, QUINCY, MASS.

It is doubtless already known to many who will receive this Circular Letter, that, on the night of the nineteenth of November last, the house of worship of the Protestant Episcopal Society in Quiney was totally destroyed by fire. For several years this ancient and once flourishing congregation had been struggling with d'fliculties, and it had become greatly reduced in numbers. This disaster fell upon it with almost crushing weight. But the counsels of faith and hope prevailed. A meeting was held on the twenty-second of November, to consider the subject of rebuilding the church, when those who had assembled expressed their sentiments and determination in the following words:—

"Resolved, That, in the presence of this sad calamity we recognize, with quickened sensibilities, our obligation to our Divine Master, and, with affectionate solicitude, our duty to this portion of his flock, to endeavor to restore with promptness, and to maintain with energy, this ancient watch-tower of our Zion,—the oldest, with one or two exceptions, in our venerable Commonwealth;—and we also appeal with earnestness, and with confidence, to the sympathy of our Christian brethren, soliciting their contributions in this hour of our weakness and want."

The undersigned were appointed a committee to procure funds and erect a new church. In pursuance of the duty thus devolved upon us, we respectfully and earnestly appeal to our Christian brethren for assistance. And we ask Churchmen to remember that the Society, now threatened with dispersion, is one of the oldest of our communion in this diocese. As early as the year 1700, when King's Chapel was the only Episcopal church in New England, some beginning was made for a church in Quiney, (then Braintree.) A minister was stationed here before 1703. The Society was not, however, organized till twenty-five years later. But, at that time, there were only two Episcopal churches in Massachusetts, out of Boston. Episcopalians will not, we fully believe, incur the reproach of allowing "this ancient watch-tower of our Zion" to remain long in ruins.

This Society can present, too, a record of early activity, and of many years of vigorous Christian life. Like all other Episcopal societies in this country, prior to the Revolution, it derived much of its support from the "Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts." But what it freely received, it freely gave. Its ministers were constantly dispensing the word to destitute parishes around. To the nurture and assistance of members of this Society, as we learn from the Centennial Sermon of the Rev. Dr. Cutler, its former rector, are traceable the origin and prosperity of at least two now flourishing congregations. "Indeed," says Dr. Cutler, "the venerable Society seemed to expect of this church to exercise a maternal care over those of the same communion, in the vicinity, who were weaker than itself."

We may be allowed to mention here the fact, that, just one hundred years ago next Easter Sunday—the day preceding the one on which we are to lay the corner-stone of the new edifice—this infant Society made a liberal contribution to the sufferers by the great fire in Boston. Bread east upon the waters may return after the lapse of a century.

Besides its antiquity and its past usefulness, this Society presents further claims of peculiar strength for sympathy and assistance. This is the only Episcopal church from Boston and Dorchester on the north, to Hanover on the south. It stands in the midst of a large territory, the only representative of our faith and polity. While we recognize with joy and gratitude the usefulness of other denominations of Christians, we think it will be acknowledged by all, that there are many in this large region who can only be brought under religious influences through this Society. For several generations, families educated in our faith, residing in the neighboring towns, have been accustomed to look to Christ Church, in Quincy, for the ordinances and sacraments of religion. They are so scattered, and some of them so remote, that they do little for the support of the Society. But they feel its influence, and are, thereby, kept nearer to the truth. This may still be regarded as a missionary church.

We think it proper to express our opinion, formed with full knowledge of the position of the parish and of the feelings of the community around it, that it will be well sustained, if it now receive a moderate share of aid from abroad. It is not in a hopeless enterprise that we invite coöperation. The Society has already made arrangements for raising, by the sale of land in its possession, and by subscriptions from its own members, more than half of the sum necessary to erect the building, a view of which is placed at the top of this sheet. It can be built of stone, at a cost of $5000, and will afford seats for about 300 persons. The manse, shown in the design, it is not proposed to build immediately.

We solicit a donation, however small, towards this enterprise, from every friend who may receive this paper.

All donations, sent to either of the undersigned, will be promptly and gratefully acknowledged.

A list of contributors will be printed and sent to each, before the consecration of the church.

Heroic youths, whose loyal souls desire

To seek the death their country's wrongs require,
What tribute, worthy of your deeds below,
Can we with prayers and tears on you bestow?

This marble, sculptured by the hand of one, Whom thou, O Alma Mater, own'st as son, With hearts where iningle brothers' pride and love We pledge, our lasting gratitude to prove.

Immortal Honor and undying Fame,
Forever fresh and lasting as their name,
Their brows with heroes' laurels shall entwine,
And consecrate this Statue as their shrine.

Land of my birth! may God accord to thee, Brave hearts to succor in adversity; Still may our school have sons in valor tried, E'en as these herces who for freedom died.

REQUIEM.

WORDS BY HON. GEORGE LUNT.

MUSIC BY CHARLES LEMUEL CAPEN, 1863.

Breathe, trumpets, breathe
Slow notes of saddest wailing,—
Sadly responsive peal
Ye muffled drums;
Comrades,— with downcast eyes,
And muskets trailing,—
Attend him home,
The youthful warrior comes.

Upon his shield,
Upon his shield returning,
Borne from the field of honor
Where he fell —
Glory and grief, together clasped
In mourning, —
His fame, his fate,
With sobs exulting tell.

Wrap round his breast
The flag his breast defended —
His country's flag,
In battle's front unrolled;
For it he died;
On earth forever ended,
His brave young life
Lives in each sacred fold.

With prour for ! tears,
By tinge of sname untainted,
Bear him and lay him
Gently in his grave;
Above the hero write,—
The young, half sainted,—
His country claimed his life,—
His life he gave.

He knows when joyful hours are best, He sends them as He sees it meet; When thou hast borne the fiery test, And art made free from all deceit, He comes to thee all unaware, And makes thee own His loving care.

Sing, pray, and swerve not from His ways, But do thine own part faithfully, Trust His rich promises of grace, So shall they be fulfill'd in thee; God never yet forsook at need The soul that trusted Him indeed.

Rest from thy loved employ;

The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy.

He started up to hear;

A mortal arrow pierced his frame—

He fell, but felt no fear.

Tranquil amidst alarms,
It found him on the field,
A veteran, slumbering on his arms,
Beneath his red-cross shield.

The pains of death are past;
Labor and sorrow cease;
And, life's long warfare closed at last,
His soul is found in peace.

April 19.

Segurgion March 3. 1873

Sir:

The citizens of this town have resolved to celebrate the Hundredth Anniversary of the "Battle of Lexington" on the 19th of April next.

The Revolution which made us an independent nation is worthy of the highest consideration, and no locality can be more appropriate for commemorating its opening scenes than the very spot where the first blood was shed, the first martyrs fell, and the first resistance in arms was offered to British aggression.

It is proposed to arrange for the celebration of the day regardful of the broad historic interest which pertains to the event. The citizens of the country generally are invited to join in the observances.

The prominent features of the day will consist of an oration, the unreiling of the Statues of John Hancock and Samuel Adams,who had sought refuge from British proscription in Lexington, and were under its protection on that day,—and a public dinner.

It is expected that the occasion will be honored by the presence of the Executive of the United States, the State of Massachusetts, representatives of the different departments of the National and State governments, literary, and other organizations, and distinguished individuals of the Republic, whose words of eloquence and wisdom will add interest to the occasion.

You are cordially invited to be present and participate in the commemoration of the day as a guest of the town.

OLD BATTLE GROUND, LEXINGTON.

APRIL 19, 1875.

1775-1875.

MUSIC BY C. P. MORRISON.

A QUEEN and crowned, who was a peasant girl, "This greatness wearies me," she sighs; "I will forget a little while my state, And, hiding from the eyes That watch the throne, will creep To where, in trellised sleep, The darling cottage of my childhood lies. " I thirst to taste the water of the brook, To track once more the wild-wood ways; My ear is hungry for the note of birds That sang in those old days; And I would breathe anew The wholesome airs that blew Across the yellow tassels of the maize." O Queenly Land! O Mother of our love! Look back to-day, beyond the years, Look back to that sweet April of thy youth Changeful with hopes and fears; A village maid once more, Thy song of gladness pour, And lift those clear blue eyes undimmed by tears. Then, turning from this home where thou wast born, Light-hearted take again the weight Of gems and thorns a century has made

Thy costly crown of state.

Thou lowly one to whom God said, "Be great."

W. R. Huntington.

Benignant, gently-strong,

Ruje o'er us late and long,

THE SIGNAL GUN.

'Tis not yet dawn. All nature sleeps. Freshly o'er soft and dewy green, The breath of apple-blossoms sweeps; And silent stars brood o'er the scene. A SIGNAL GUN! Ye minute-men, Stand to your arms! Resounding drums, Re-beat your long, long roll again ! THE BRITON'S SCARLET SQUADRON COMES!

While in hot haste they gathered then, The RED-COATS marched with steady pace; But with stout hearts these patriot men Waited to meet them, face to face. Lay down your arms! and now disperse!-Swinging his sabre round his head -Disperse, you rebels, all disperse! For this it was the major said.

Sadly, but with unconquered will, They yielded then that unfought field; Nor knew that they were victors still, Or saw the triumph fate revealed! But happy they, who, on that morn, Fell by that murderous volley hurled! Baptizing with their blood, new-drawn, "THE SHOT THAT ECHOED ROUND THE WORLD!"

Henry G. Clark

"LET IT BEGIN HERE!"

Capt. Parker's words on Lexington Green : - "Don't fire unless you are fixed on ; but if they want a war, LET IT BEODS HEAR,"

"AULD LANG SYNE,"

THE April thrills along the hills, The violets wake below, But never to the thrill they knew A hundred years ago, That day the calls from pasture-walls In echoing signals ran, As swift replied the country-side To what they here began,

"Let it begin!" a Voice within The waiting farmers spake, -THY Voice in whom the Aprils bloom, In whom the nations wake! Old lands had yearned, old dreamers burned That radiant day to win, And still it fled until they said, "Now let it here begin!"

Then at the word the Sleeper stirred! Without or king or caste, Serene and strong to right its wrong THE PEOPLE rose at last, Each quick to feel the common weal, The many, yet the one,-And heart pledged heart no more to part: Behold what here begun!

Prayer before Battle.

Storch.

Hear us, Almighty One!
Hear us, all holy One!
Lord of the battle before us!
Father, all praise to Thee,
Father, all thanks to Thee,
That Freedom's banner is o'er us!

Like a consuming brand
Stretch forth Thy mighty hand,
Wrong and oppression destroying.
Help us, Oh Lord of right!
Help us, Oh God of might!
Help us, where war-tides are flowing.

Help us, though we may fall;
From out the grave we call
Praise to Thy name, and forever.
All power and glory be Thine through eternity!
Help us, Almighty One! Amen.

Oration.

Dymn.

Words by Charles James Sprague.

"GOD SAVE THE QUEEN."

Here, where the savage bands Roved through the forest lands, Wild and unknown, Came sturdy men, of yore, Strong in the faith they bore, Making this desert shore Freedom's high throne. Here, where the pilgrim few Unto a nation grew,
Spread far and wide,
Came an invading foe,
That throne to overthrow
With but a feeble blow,
Struck at our pride.

Here, where the patriots stood, Came that wild strife of blood, Where peace now reigns. Here hand to hand they met, Here then our soil was wet, With the red tide that yet Throbs in our veins.

Gone is the savage now,
Gone the invading foe;
Freed is our land.
Oh, Lord of war and peace,
May strife forever cease,
And may our strength increase,
Fed by Thy hand.

Loyal Song.

Words by Charles James Sprague.

Kücken.

Freedom dwells throughout our own beloved land;
Up to Heaven its voice is swelling;
From the mountain heights afar to ocean strand
Every breeze the tale is telling.
Never weary of the ever joyous song,
Heart and voice united bear along.
Loyal to the end,
Ready to defend,
Foe within and out repelling.

War's alarum rolled a hundred years ago
O'er the peaceful scene around us;
Where our patriot fathers struck a mortal blow
At the haughty power that bound us.
Now from north or south together e'er we stand,
Dwellers in a free and mighty land.
Loyal to the end,
Ready to defend
What their gloried valor found us.

Freedom dwells throughout our own beloved land,
Wide as Heaven arches o'er it;
Like the rising sun, the patriot's armed hand
Swept the clouds of wrong before it.
Sound aloud the joyous word from crag to crag!
Plant on every peak our starry flag!
Loyal to the end,
Ready to defend,
Guard, and, as a shrine, adore it!

Nymn.

Words by G. W. W.

From the blood that steeped this ground, From the flames which swept around, Comes to us the grateful sound, PLACID PEACE WITH LIBERTY.

Not as now, in plenteous days, Earned our sires the Patriots' praise, But by hard and stormy ways, Got they us the victory,

Sweet it is to die for thee, Country fair,— now grandly free; Though to few that lot may be, ALL may nobly live for thee.

God, who led'st our Fathers forth, Gav'st our land her second birth, Bless these States with manly worth, Keep them close in harmony.

Address by the President, Hon. P. A. Collins.

Gentlemen: Allow me to express the great pleasure and gratitude I feel on account of this large gathering, and to thank you in behalf of our Society for your presence. In the good old Saxon language, there is no word more grateful to the ear than the simple word "Welcome." But in the rich Irish tongue, rich especially in expression of hospitality and affection, this word is a hundred thousand times repeated and intensified in the hearty phrase, Caed Mille Failthe! Good friends, to each and all of you, guests and members, this ancient Society extends its warmest greeting, and welcomes you with a true Irish welcome.

I am sometimes asked why we call this the Charitable Irish Society; what are its objects, and why we are not more active? As well might such questions be asked about the Old South Church. This is one of the oldest social monuments in New England; it is the Irish Old South. Founded thirty-nine years before the birth of the Republic, it continued for more than two generations to be the only organization of our race in Boston. It was a shamrock planted in the Puritan garden; it has modestly, and without jealousy, seen the growth of more luxurious plants; it has seen other, and, perhaps, more active bodies enter the field it has so long occupied; but it has remained the same, and I trust it will long remain, true to its mission, its history, its principles, and traditions. I appeal to the Irish element in Boston to preserve this venerable institution, and extend its field of usefulness.

It was formed within a stone's throw of this spot, one hundred and forty years ago to-day, by certain "gentlemen of the Irish nation residing in Boston," as the Preamble runs, for the good purposes of social improvement, mutual aid in misfortune, and assisting those of their race who needed help. The founders were sturdy Protestant men, but they were sufficiently Catholic in sentiment and in practice to revere the memory of the patron Saint of their race, and to select this national-religious anniversary for their general election and social gathering. Since their time the good old custom of assembling at the social board on St. Patrick's Day has been honored, broken only during the period of the Revolution, when its patriot members had more serious work to do.

Indeed, the record of the Society is almost an index to the history of the times. It will tell you how they wrote, how they spelt, what they ate, drank, and paid, almost how they looked; who was king, president, governor, mayor, and collector, in any given year. For it has been the practice of the Society to invite, and its privilege to have present, the dignitaries of the Nation, State, and City; and I know that our official guests here present will be glad that they have the good fortune of going down in our little history in the best possible company.

It is not my province to speak at length on any topic, but rather to introduce the exercises of the evening. Therefore I shall check any purpose which I might have had to enter on discussion pertinent to the day, and leave that to others who can touch the chords of the harp with a happier hand.

THE FEAST OF THE GAEL.

By JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY.

Read at the banquet of the Charitable Irish Society of Boston, on the 17th of March, 1877, on which occasion the Society celebrated its One Hundred and Fortieth Anniversary.

What a union of hearts is the love of a mother

When races of men in her name unite!

For love of Old Erin, and love of each other,

The boards of the Gael are full to-night!

Their millions of men have one toast and one topic—

Their feuds laid aside and their envies removed;

From the pines of the pole to the palms of the tropic,

They drink: "The DEAR LAND WE HAVE PRAYED FOR

AND LOVED!"

They are One by the bond of a time-honored fashion;

Though strangers may see but the lights of their feast,

Beneath lies the symbol of faith and of passion

Alike of the Pagan and Christian priest!

When native laws by native kings At Tara were decreed, The grand old Gheber worship Was the form of Erin's creed. The Sun, Life-Giver, was God on high; Men worshipped the Power they saw; And they kept the faith as the ages rolled By the solemn Beltane law. Each year, on the Holy Day, was quenched The household fires of the land; And the Druid priest, at the midnight hour, Brought forth the flaming brand, -The living spark for the Nation's hearths, -From the Monarch's hand it came, Whose fire at Tara spread the sign-And the People were One by the flame!

And Baal was God! till Patrick came,
By the Holy Name inspired;
On the Beltane night, in great Tara's sight,
His pile at Slane was fired!
And the deed that was death was the Nation's life,
And the doom of the Pagan bane;
For Erin still keeps Beltane Night,
But lights her lamp at Slane!

Though fourteen centuries pile their dust
On the mound of the Druid's grave,—
To-night is the Beltane! Bright the fire
That Holy Patrick gave!
'To-night is the Beltane! Let him heed
Who studieth creed and race:
Old times and gods are dead, and we
Are far from the ancient place;
The waves of centuries, war, and waste,
Of famine, gallows, and gaol,
Have swept our land. But the world to-night
Sees the Beltane Fire of the Gael!

O Land of sad fate! like a desolate queen. Who remembers in sorrow the crown of her glory: The love of thy children not strangely is seen -For humanity weeps at thy heart-touching story. Strong heart in affliction! that draweth thy foes 'Till they love thee more dear than thine own generation: Thy strength is increased as thy life-current flows. -What were death to another is Ireland's salvation! God scatters her sons like the seed on the lea. And they root where they fall, be it mountain or furrow: They come to remain, and remember; and she In their growth will rejoice in a blissful to-morrow! They sing in strange lands the sweet songs of their home. Their emerald Zion enthroned in the billows: To work, not to weep by the rivers they come: Their harps are not hanged in despair on the willows. The hope of the Mother beats youthful and strong. Responsive and true to her children's pulsations: No petrified heart has she saved from the wrong -Our Niobe lives for her place 'mong the nations!

Then drink, all her sons — be they Celtic or Danish,
Or Norman or Saxon — one mantle was o'er us;
Let race lines, and creed lines, and every line, vanish;
We drink, as the Gael: "To the Mother that bore us!"

TRINITY CHURCH

BOSTON

The Form of Consecration

OF A

CHURCH OR CHapel.

PSALM XXIV.

THE earth is the LORD's, and all that therein is; the compass of the world, and they that dwell therein.

2 For he hath founded it upon the seas, and prepared it upon the floods.

3 Who shall ascend into the hill of the LORD? or who shall rise up in his holy place?

4 Even he that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; and that hath not lift up his mind unto vanity, nor sworn to deceive his neighbor.

5 He shall receive the blessing from the LORD, and righteousness from the God of his salvation.

6 This is the generation of them that seek him; even of them that seek thy face, O Jacob.

7 Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.

8 Who is the King of glory? It is the LORD, strong and mighty, even the LORD mighty in battle.

9 Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.

10 Who is the King of glory? even the LORD of hosts, he is the King of glory.

The Bishop shall go within the rails, with such of the Clergy as can be there accommodated. The Bishop, sitting in his chair, shall have the instruments of dona tion and endowment, if there be any, presented to him; and then standing up and turning to the Congregation, shall say.

EARLY beloved in the Lord; forasmuch as devout and holy men, as well under the Law as under the Gospel, moved either by the express command of God, or by the secret inspiration of the blessed Spirit, and acting agreeably to their own reason and sense of the natural decency of things, have erected houses for the public worship of God, and separated them from all unhallowed, worldly, and common uses, in order to fill men's minds with greater reverence for his glorious Majesty, and affect their hearts with more devotion and humility in his service; which pious works have been approved of and graciously accepted by our heavenly Father: Let us not doubt but that he will also favorably approve our godly purpose of setting apart this place in solemn manner, for the performance of the several offices of religious worship, and let us faithfully and devoutly beg his blessing on this our undertaking.

Then the Bishop, kneeling, shall say the following Prayer

O ETERNAL God, mighty in power, and of majesty incomprehensible, whom the heaven of heavens cannot contain, much less the walls of temples made with hands; and who yet hast been graciously pleased to promise thy especial presence, wherever two or three of thy faithful servants shall assemble in thy Name, to offer up their praises and supplications unto thee; Vouchsafe, O Lord, to be present with us, who are here gathered together with all humility and readiness of heart, to consecrate this place to the honor of thy great Name; separating it henceforth from all unhallowed, ordinary, and common uses; and dedicating it to thy service, for reading thy holy Word, for celebrating thy holy Sacraments, for offering to thy glorious Majesty the sacrifices of prayer and thanksgiving, for blessing thy people in thy Name, and for the performance of all other holy offices: accept, O Lord, this service at our hands, and bless it with such success as may tend most to thy glory, and the furtherance of our happiness both temporal and spiritual; through Jesus Christ our blessed Lord and Saviour. Amen.

The After this the Bishop shall stand up, and turning his face toward the Congregation, shall say, REGARD, O Lord, the supplications of thy servants, and grant that whosoever shall be dedicated to thee in this house by Baptism, may be sanctified by the Holy Ghost, delivered from thy wrath and eternal death, and received as a living member of Christ's Church, and may ever remain in the number of thy faithful children. Amen.

Grant, O Lord, that they who at this place shall in their own persons renew the promises and vows which they made, or which were made for them by their sureties at their Baptism, and thereupon shall be Confirmed by the Bishop, may receive such a measure of thy Holy Spirit, that they may be enabled faithfully to fulfill the same, and grow in grace unto their lives' end. Amen.

Grant, O Lord, that whosoever shall receive in this place the blessed Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ, may come to that holy ordinance with faith, charity and true repentance: and being filled with thy grace and heavenly benediction, may, to their great and endless comfort, obtain remission of their sins, and all other benefits of his passion. Amen.

Grant, O Lord, that by thy holy Word which shall be read and preached in this place, and by thy Holy Spirit, grafting it inwardly in the heart, the hearers thereof may both perceive and know what things they ought to do, and may have power and strength to fulfill the same. Amen.

Grant, O Lord, that whosoever shall be joined together in this place in the holy estate of Matrimony, may faithfully perform and keep the vow and covenant between them made, and may remain in perfect love together unto their lives' end. Amen.

Grant, we beseech thee, blessed Lord, that whosoever shall draw near to thee in this place, to give thee thanks for the benefits which they have received at thy hands, to set forth thy most worthy praise, to confess their sins unto thee, and to ask such things as are requisite and necessary, as well for the body as for the soul, may do it with such steadiness of faith, and with such seriousness, affection, and devotion of mind, that thou mayest accept their bounden duty and service, and vouchsafe to give whatever in thy infinite wisdom thou shalt see to be most expedient for them: All which we beg for Jesus Christ's sake, our most blessed
Lord and Saviour. Amen.

Then the Bishop sitting in his chair, the Sentence of. Consecration is to be read by some person appointed by him, and then laid by him upon the Communion Table; after which, the Bishop shall say,

BLESSED be thy Name, O Lord, that it hath pleased thee to put it into the hearts of thy servants to appropriate and devote this house to thy honor and worship; and grant that all who shall enjoy the benefit of this pious work, may show forth their thankfulness, by making a right use of it, to the glory of thy blessed Name: through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

* After this, the Minister appointed is to read the Service of the day.

The Order

FOR DAILY MORDING PRAYER.

The Minister shall begin the Morning Prayer, by reading one or more of the following Sentences of Scripture.

THE LORD is in his holy temple; let all the earth keep silence before him. Hab. ii. 20.

From the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same, my Name shall be great among the Gentiles; and in every place incense shall be offered unto my Name, and a pure offering: for my Name shall be great among the heathen, saith the LORD of Hosts. Mal. i. II.

Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be always acceptable in thy sight, O LORD, my strength and my redeemer.

Psalm xix. 14, 15.

Then the Minister shall say,

DEARLY beloved brethren, the Scripture mov-eth us in sundry places, to acknowledge and confess our manifold sins and wickedness; and that we should not dissemble nor cloak them before the face of Almighty God our heavenly Father; but confess them with an humble, lowly, penitent, and obedient heart; to the end that we may obtain forgiveness of the same, by his infinite goodness and mercy. And although we ought, at all times. humbly to acknowledge our sins before God; yet ought we chiefly so to do, when we assemble and meet together to render thanks for the great benefits that we have received at his hands, to set forth his most worthy praise, to hear his most holy Word, and to ask those things which are requisite and necessary, as well for the body as for the soul. Wherefore I pray and beseech you, as many as are here present, to accompany me with a pure heart. and humble voice, unto the throne of the heavenly grace, saying -

A General Confession.

To be said by the whole Congregation, after the Minister, all kneeling.

A LMIGHTY and most merciful Father; We have erred, and strayed from thy ways like lost sheep. We have followed too much the devices and desires of our own hearts. We have offended against thy holy laws. We have left undone those things which we ought to have done; And we have done those things which we ought not to have done; And there is no health in us. But thou, O Lord, have mercy upon us, miserable offenders. Spare thou those, O God, who confess their faults. Restore thou those who are penitent; According to thy promises declared unto mankind in Christ Jesus our Lord. And grant, O most merciful Father, for his sake; That we may hereafter live a godly, righteous, and sober life. To the glory of thy holy Name. Amen.

The Declaration of Absolution, or Bemission of Sins.

To be made by the Priest alone, standing; the People still kneeling

A LMIGHTY God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who desireth not the death of a sinner, but rather that he may turn from his wickedness and live, hath given power, and commandment to his ministers, to declare and pronounce to his people, being penitent, the Absolution and Remission of their sins. He pardoneth and absolveth all those who truly repent, and unfeignedly believe his holy Gospel. Wherefore let us beseech him to grant us true repentance, and his Holy Spirit, that those things may please him which we do at this present; and that the rest of our life hereafter may be pure and holy; so that at the last we may come to his eternal joy; through Jesus Christ our Lord.

- * The People shall answer here, and at the end of every Prayer, Amen.
- Then the Minister shall kneel, and say the Lord's Prayer; the People still kneeling, and repeating it with him, both here, and wheresoever else it is used in Divine Service.

Our Eather, who art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil; For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

* Then likewise he shall say,

O Lord, open thou our lips.

Answer. And our mouth shall show forth thy praise.

· Here, all standing up, the Minister shall say,

Glory be to the Father and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost;

Answer. As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end.

Minister. Praise ye the Lord.

Answer. The Lord's Name be praised.

• Then shall be said or sung the following Anthem.

Benite, exultemus Bomino.

OME, let us sing unto the Lord: let us heartily rejoice in the strength of our salvation.

Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving; and show ourselves glad in him with psalms. For the LORD is a great God; and a great King above all gods.

In his hand are all the corners of the earth; and the strength of the hills is his also.

The sea is his, and he made it; and his hands prepared the dry land.

O come, let us worship and fall down, and kneel before the LORD our Maker.

For he is the Lord our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand.

O worship the LORD in the beauty of holiness: let the whole earth stand in awe of him.

For he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth: and with righteousness to judge the world, and the people with his truth.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost;

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.

Then shall follow the proper Psalms.

PSALM LXXXIV.

Quam dilecta!

HOW amiable are thy dwellings, thou Lord of hosts!

- 2 My soul hath a desire and longing to enter into the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh rejoice in the living God.
- 3 Yea, the sparrow hath found her an house, and the swallow a nest, where she may lay her young; even thy altars, O LORD of hosts, my King and my God.
- 4 Blessed are they that dwell in thy house; they will be alway praising thee.
- 5 Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee: in whose heart are thy ways.
- 6 Who going through the vale of misery use it for a well; and the pools are filled with water.
- 7 They will go from strength to strength, and unto the God of gods appeareth every one of them in Sion.
- 8 O LORD God of hosts, hear my prayer; hearken, O God of Jacob.
- 9 Behold, O God our defender, and look upon the face of thine Anointed.
- to For one day in thy courts is better than a
- my God, than to dwell in the tents of ungodliness.
- 12 For the LORD God is a light and defence; the LORD will give grace and worship; and no good thing shall he withhold from them that live a godly life.
- 13 O LORD God of hosts, blessed is the man that putteth his trust in thee.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son and to the Holy Ghost;

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. AMEN.

PSALM CXXII.

Lætatus sum.

WAS glad when they said unto me, We will go into the house of the LORD.

- 2 Our feet shall stand in thy gates, O Jerusalem.
- 3 Jerusalem is built as a city that is at unity in
- 4 For thither the tribes go up, even the tribes of the LORD, to testify unto Israel, to give thanks unto the Name of the LORD.
- 5 For there is the seat of judgment, even the seat of the house of David.
- 6 O pray for the peace of Jerusalem; they shall prosper that love thee.
- 7 Peace be within thy walls, and plenteousness within thy palaces.
- 8 For my brethren and companions' sakes, I will wish thee prosperity.
- 9 Yea, because of the house of the LORD our God, I will seek to do thee good.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost;

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.

PSALM CXXXII.

Memento Domine.

ORD, remember David, and all his trouble.

2 How he sware unto the LORD, and vowed a vow unto the Almighty God of Jacob:

- 3 I will not come within the tabernacle of mine house, nor climb up into my bed;
- 4 I will not suffer mine eyes to sleep, nor mine eyelids to slumber; neither the temples of my head to take any rest;
- 5 Until I find out a place for the temple of the LORD: an habitation for the mighty God of Jacob.
- 6 Lo, we heard of the same at Ephrata, and found it in the wood.
- 7 We will go into his tabernacle, and fall low on our knees before his footstool.
- 8 Arise, O LORD, into thy resting-place; thou and
- the ark of thy strength.

 O Let thy priests be clothed with righteousness.
- and let thy saints sing with joyfulness.

 10 For thy servant David's sake, turn not away
- the presence of thine Anointed.

 If The LORD hath made a faithful oath unto
- David, and he shall not shrink from it;
 12 Of the fruit of thy body shall I set upon thy
- 13 If thy children will keep my covenant, and my testimonies that I shall learn them; their children also shall sit upon thy seat forevermore.

- 14 For the LORD hath chosen Sion to be an habitation for himself; he hath longed for her.
- 15 This shall be my rest for ever: here will I dwell, for I have a delight therein.
- 16 I will bless her victuals with increase, and will satisfy her poor with bread.
- 17 I will deck her priests with health, and her saints shall rejoice and sing.
- 18 There shall I make the horn of David to flourish: I have ordained a lantern for mine Anointed.
- 19 As for his enemies, I shall clothe them with shame: but upon himself shall his crown flourish.
- Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost:

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.

. Then shall be read the first Lesson

! Kings, chap. viii. verse 22 to verse 63.

* After which shall be said or sung the following. Hymn-

Te Deum Laudamus,

WE praise thee, O God; we acknowledge thee to be the Lord.

All the earth doth worship thee, the Father everlasting.

To thee all Angels cry aloud; the Heavens and all the Powers therein.

To thee Cherubim, and Seraphim continually do cry,

Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Sabaoth:

Heaven and earth are full of the Majesty of thy Glory.

The glorious company of the Apostles praise thee

The goodly fellowship of the Prophets praise thee,

The noble army of Martyrs praise thee.

The holy Church throughout all the world doth acknowledge thee;

The Father, of an infinite Majesty;

Thine adorable, true, and only Son; Also the Holy Ghost, the Comforter,

Thou art the King of Glory, O Christ.

Thou art the King of Glory, O Christ.

Thou art the everlasting Son of the Father.

When thou tookest upon thee to deliver man, thou didst humble thyself to be born of a Virgin.

When thou hadst overcome the sharpness of death, thou didst open the Kingdom of Heaven to all believers.

Thou sittest at the right hand of God, in the Glory of the Father.

We believe that thou shalt come to be our Judge.

We therefore pray thee, help thy servants, whom thou hast redeemed with thy precious blood.

Make them to be numbered with thy Saints, in glory everlasting.

O Lord, save thy people, and bless thine heritage.

Govern them, and lift them up forever.

Day by day we magnify thee;

And we worship thy Name ever, world without end.

Vouchsafe, O Lord, to keep us this day with-

O Lord, have mercy upon us, have mercy

O Lord, let thy mercy be upon us, as our trust is in thee.

O Lord, in thee have I trusted: let me never be confounded.

• Then shall be read, in like manner, the second Lesson

Hebrews chap. x, verse 19 to verse 26.

e And after that, the following Hymn

Bubilate Beo, Psalm c

BE joyful in the LORD, all ye lands: serve the LORD with gladness, and come before his presence with a song.

Be ye sure that the LORD he is God; it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.

O go your way into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise; be thankful unto him, and speak good of his Name.

For the LORD is gracious, his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth from generation to generation.

Then shall be said the Apostles' Creed, by the Minister and the People, standing

BELIEVE in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth:

And in Jesus Christ his only Son our Lord; Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary; Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified, dead, and buried; He descended into hell, The third day he rose from the dead; He ascended into heaven, And sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty; From thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Ghost; The holy Catholic Church, The Communion of Saints; The Forgiveness of sins; The Resurrection of the body; And the Life everlasting. Amen.

 And after that, these Prayers following, all devoutly kneeling: the Minister first pronouncing,

The Lord be with you.

Answer. And with thy spirit.

Minister. Let us pray.

O Lord, show thy mercy upon us.

Answer. And grant us thy salvation.

Minister. O God, make clean our hearts within

Answer. And take not thy Holy Spirit from us.

Then shall follow the Collect for the day, except when the Communion service is read; and then the Collect for the day shall be omitted here.

A Collect for Beace.

GOD, who art the author of peace and lover of concord, in knowledge of whom standeth our eternal life, whose service is perfect freedom; Defend us thy humble servants in all assaults of our enemies; that we, surely trusting in thy defence, may not fear the power of any adversaries, through the might of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

A Collect for Grace.

O LORD, our heavenly Father, Almighty and everlasting God, who hast safely brought us to the beginning of this day; Defend us in the same with thy mighty power; and grant that this day we fall into no sin, neither run into any kind of danger; but that all our doings, being ordered by thy governance, may be righteous in thy sight; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

A Prayer for the President of the United States, and all in Civil Authority.

O LORD, our heavenly Father, the high and mighty Ruler of the universe, who dost from thy throne behold all the dwellers upon earth; Most heartily we beseech thee with thy favor to behold and bless thy servant The President of

THE UNITED STATES, and all others in authority; and so replenish them with the grace of thy Holy Spirit, that they may always incline to thy will, and walk in thy way. Endue them plenteously with heavenly gifts; grant them in health and prosperity long to live; and finally, after this life, to attain everlasting joy and felicity: through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

A Prayer for the Clergy and People.

A LMIGHTY and everlasting God, from whom cometh every good and perfect gift; Send down upon our Bishops, and other Clergy, and upon the Congregations committed to their charge, the healthful Spirit of thy grace; and, that they may truly please thee, pour upon them the continual dew of thy blessing. Grant this, O Lord, for the honor of our Advocate and Mediator, Jesus Christ. Amen.

A Wraper for all Conditions of Men.

O GOD, the Creator and Preserver of all man-kind, we humbly beseech thee for all sorts and conditions of men; that thou wouldest be pleased to make thy ways known unto them, thy saving health unto all nations. More especially we pray for thy holy Church universal; that it may be so guided and governed by thy good Spirit, that all who profess and call themselves Christians may be led into the way of truth, and hold the faith in unity of spirit, in the bond of peace, and in righteousness of life. Finally we commend to thy fatherly goodness all those who are any ways afflicted, or distressed. in mind, body, or estate; that it may please thee to comfort and relieve them, according to their several necessities; giving them patience under their sufferings, and a happy issue out of all their afflictions. And this we beg for Jesus Christ's sake. Amen.

4 General Chanksgibing.

A LMIGHTY God, Father of all mercies, we thine unworthy servants, do give thee most humble and hearty thanks for all thy goodness and loving-kindness to us, and to all men. We bless thee for our creation, preservation, and all the blessings of this life: but above all, for thine inestimable love in the redemption of the world by our Lord Jesus Christ; for the means of grace and for the hope of glory. And we beseech thee, give us that due sense of all thy mercies, that our hearts may be unfeignedly thankful, and that we may show forth thy praise, not only with our lips but in our lives; by giving up ourselves to thy service, and by walking before thee in holiness and righteousness all our days; through Jesus Christ our Lord, to whom, with thee and the Holy Ghost, be all honor and glory, world without end. Amen

A Prayer of St. Chrysostom.

ALMIGHTY God, who hast given us grace at this time with one accord to make our common supplications unto thee; and dost promise that when two or three are gathered together in thy Name thou wilt grant their requests: Fulfill now, O Lord, the desires and petitions of thy servants, as may be most expedient for them; granting us in this world knowledge of thy truth, and in the world to come life everlasting. Amen.

2 Cor. xiii. 14.

THE grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost be with us all evermore. Amen.

Here endeth the Order of Morning Praver

Womn 278.

LL wash my hands in innocence,
And round thine altar go;
Pour the glad hymn of trimmph thence.
And thence thy wonders show.

My thanks I'll publish there, and tell
How thy renown excels;
That seat affords me most delight,
In which thine honor dwells.

To Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,
The God whom we adore,
Be glory, as it was, is now,
And shall be evermore. Amen.

• The Bishop shall then proceed to the Communion Service

FOR THE

Administration of the Lord's Supper,

UK

BOEY COMMUNICA.

The Collect.

A LMIGHTY God, unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid; Cleanse the thoughts of our hearts by the inspiration of thy Holy Spirit, that we may perfectly love thee, and worthily magnify thy holy Name, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Then shall the Minister, turning to the People, rehearse distinctly the Ten Commandments; and the People, still kneeling, shall, after every commandment, ask God mercy for their transgressions for the time past, and grace, to keep the law for the time to come, as followeth.

Minister.

GOD spake these words, and said; I am the Lord thy God: Thou shalt have none other gods but me.

People. Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister. Thou shalt not make to thyself any graven image, nor the likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or in the earth beneath, or in the water under the earth. Thou shalt not bow down to them, nor worship them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, and visit the sins of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me; and show mercy unto thousands in them that love me, and keep my commandments.

People Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister. Thou shalt not take the Name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord will not hold him guiltless, that taketh his Name in vain.

People. Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister. Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath-day. Six days shalt thou labor, and do all that thou hast to do; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God. In it thou shalt do no manner of work; thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, thy man-servant, and thy maid-servant, thy cattle, and the stranger that is within thy gates. For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed the seventh day and hallowed it.

People. Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister. Honor thy father and thy mother; that thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

People. Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister. Thou shalt do no murder.

People. Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister. Thou shalt not commit adultery.

People. Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister. Thou shalt not steal.

People. Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister. Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.

People. Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his servant, nor his maid, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is his.

People. Lord, have mercy upon us, and write all these thy laws in our hearts, we beseech thee.

Then the Minister may say,

Hear also what our Lord Jesus Christ saith.

THOU shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it; Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets.

Let us pray.

ALMIGHTY Lord, and everlasting God, vouchsafe, we beseech thee, to direct, sanctify, and govern, both our hearts and bodies, in the ways of thy laws, and in the works of thy commandments; that, through thy most mighty protection, both here and ever, we may be preserved in body and soul; through our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

The Collect.

MOST glorious Lord, we acknowledge that we are not worthy to offer unto thee any thing belonging unto us; yet we beseech thee, in thy great goodness, graciously to accept the Dedication of this place to thy service, and to prosper this our undertaking; receive the prayers and intercessions of all those thy servants who shall call upon thee in this house; and give them grace to prepare their hearts to serve thee with reverence and godly fear: affect them with an awful apprehension of thy Divine Majesty, and a deep sense of their own unworthiness; that so approaching thy sanctuary with lowliness and devotion, and coming before thee with clean thoughts and pure hearts, with bodies undefiled, and minds sanctified, they may always perform a service acceptable to thee; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Epistle.

2 Cor. vi. verse 14 to verse 17.

BE ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness; and what communion hath light with darkness? and what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? and what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? For ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

The Gospel.

St. John ii. verse 13.

THere the people shall say,

Glory be to Thee, O Lord!

A ND the Jews' Passover was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem, and found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting: and when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables; and said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house an house of merchandise. And his disciples remembered that it was written, The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up.

Then shall be said or sung the Hundredth Psalm.

WITH one consent let all the earth
To God their cheerful voices raise;
Glad homage pay with awful mirth,
And sing before him songs of praise.

- 2 Convinced that he is God alone, From whom both we and all proceed; We, whom he chooses for his own, The flock that he vouchsafes to feed.
- 3 O enter then his temple gate,
 Thence to his courts devoutly press;
 And still your grateful hymns repeat,
 And still his Name with praises bless.
- For he's the Lord, supremely good,
 His mercy is forever sure;

 His truth, which always firmly stood,
 To endless ages shall endure.
 - " Here shall follow the Sermon.
- * The Sermon being ended, the Bishop shall proceed in the Service for the Communion. * * * *

¶ After the Communion • • • and immediately before the final Blessing, the Bishop shall say the following

BLESSED be thy Name, O Lord God, for that it hath pleased thee to have thy habitation among the sons of men, and to dwell in the midst of the assembly of the saints upon the earth; bless, we beseech thee, the religious performance of this day, and grant that in this place now set apart to thy service, thy holy Name may be worshipped in truth and purity through all generations; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE peace of God, which passeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord: And the Blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be amongst you, and remain with you always. Amen.

The Worshippers are requested to remain in their places until the Clergy have retired

will be from the junction of Berkeley and Tremont streets through the following streets: -

Tremont, Chester square (south side), Shawmut avenue, Roxbury street, Guild row, Dudley, Warren, Washington, Summer, High, Congress, Milk, Broad, State, Devonshire, New Washington, Hanover, Court, Washington, School, Beacon, and Charles streets, to the Common, where the procession will be dismissed.

Citizens are requested to decorate their stores and residences situated upon the line of march.

Upon arrival at the Common, the Fourth and Fifth Divisions will enter at the gate corner of Charles and Beacon streets, and proceed by the malls leading to the Monument, where the occupants of carriages will alight.

The remaining divisions will enter by the gate near the centre of Charles street mall, and form in mass in columns of divisions of not more than one hundred front, facing the south-west front of the Monument, the heads of columns resting at points to be indicated by guidons; the formation to be from right to left according to the respective Division numbers.

A line of telegraph has been established over the entire route of the procession, by which reports and orders will be transmitted, with stations at the following points:

- Station No. 1. Chief Marshal's Head-quarters, Park square.
 - .. 2. Corner Tremont and Dover streets.
 - .. 3. Corner Chester square and Shawmut avenue.
 - 4. Dudley Street, opposite Highland Passenger R.R. Station.
 - .. 5. Metropolitan R.R. Car Station, Washington street. Corner Washington street and Blackstone square.

Upon approaching the signal stations, and at all principal street crossings, Division their respective commands, with such other information as may be of importance. At the signal stations placards will from time to time be exhibited, showing the position of the head of the Procession.

Any Chief of Division, not ready to move promptly in his order, will at once notify the Chief of the one next succeeding to march in his stead, and will take position for the march in rear of the last marching division, retaining at the head of his own its proper banner. Should he, however, be subject to detention by the unreadiness of a small portion of his command, he may, at his discretion, detach such portion, and send it, under charge of an Aide, to report to the Chief of the last marching division.

Any organization reaching the ground after the departure of its Division will report to the Chief of the next succeeding one, not already in motion.

Through the courtesy of Commodore Foxhall A. Parker, Commandant U. S. Navy Yard, a salute will be fired at the Navy Yard, Charlestown, morning, noon, and at sunset.

The Committee on the Monument announce that the Monument will be illuminated during the evening.

Dear Sir: - In transmitting to you the recompanying resolution of thanks tindered by the City Council of Boston, it becomes my pleasant duty to express to you personally as a member of the staff, my hearty acknowledgement of your ready guid efficient cooperation in making the parade of the Ty " of Deptember an acknowledged success, - a credit to the city, and worthy the memory of the noble men whose devoted lives and faithful deaths is was unlended to honor. It is indeed gratifying to me to recall the zeal and earnestness with which not only yourself, but every member of the staff, intered upon The difficult and perpleting duties incident to such an occasion. To arrange the orderly movement of so great a number and variety of organizations, aggregating the wast mass of more than twenty five thousand men to so arrange the movement of these masses that the head of the column should leave fark square on the hour, and that the march should proceed without hundrance or delay, along the entire route for hours, - this is indeed a task the successful accomplishments of which testifies to the faithful assistance and perfect unaminity of the whole staff. And here it is proper that we should remember how largely our success was due to the promptness of the State Militia, the members of the Grand Army, the Veteran organizations, and all the other societies and associations Composing the procession, We also owe very much to the liberal arrangements of the Monument Committee of the City Council, and to the Cheerful Cooperation of the Chief of Police and his entere department To the pleasure of these acknowledgements I wish further to add my thanks to the Second Corps of Cadets, (Gol Gamiel Dalton Commandia) for the prompt and soldierly monnes in which they performed the duty of execut to the Chief Moushal and staff and to all concerned for their cordial compliance with the plans and arrangements of the day. To grand a procession, connected with our late war, will never be seen again, I conquatulate you ow having taken part in this memorial to the heroic dead, May the blood that was shed, both North and South, become the sacred cement of a more perfect union. my sincere thanks, I am. Each Chief of Division will labor, during the march, to maintain his Division at the prescribed interval, and if he shall find that it is losing distance or becoming unduly extended, he will at once communicate the fact to the ('hief Marshal.

Divisions in taking up line of march will take distance from the head of column.

Aides detailed by the Chief Marshal will attend at the several railroad stations, from 9.30 to 11 o'clock A.M., for the purpose of giving all necessary information to organizations arriving. Organizations are requested to follow the route from the railroad station which may be indicated by such Aides.

As each organization arrives on the ground prescribed for its Division, its Chief will report at once to the Chief of Division the total number of its members present, of its band and of its carriages, and will be assigned a place in the column.

Carriages will form two abreast, and maintain that order during the march.

It is expected that the formation will be completed at 11.30 o'clock.

Arrangements will be made to water the horses of the First Brigade at Park Square; of the Second Brigade at Beacon street; of the 1st, 3d, 4th and 5th Divisions on Dartmouth street at Commonwealth avenue, from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Horses of the 6th Division will be watered at the corner of Dartmouth street and St. James Avenue, near the Art Museum, from 11 to 12.30 o'clock.

Horses of the 7th Division will be watered on Tremont at Clarendon street, on Berkeley at Chandler street, and on Warren avenue at Berkeley street, from 12 to 2 o'clock. All mounted officers and men will see that their horses are properly watered before the column moves, as no halts can be made for this purpose.

At a quarter before twelve o'clock each Chief of Division will report by Aide to the Chief Marshal.

At twelve o'clock, noon, one gun will be fired from the Common, and the head of the column will move: after this hour the route of the procession will be kept clear of all teams.

Any Chief of Division not ready to move promptly in his order will at once notify the Chief of the one next succeeding to march in his stead, and will take position for the march in rear of the last marching division, retaining at the head of his own its proper banner. Should be, however, be subject to detention by the unreadiness of a small portion of his command, he may at his discretion detach such portion, and send it, under charge of an Aide, to report to the Chief of the last marching Division.

Any organization reaching the ground after the departure of its Division will report to the Chief of the next succeeding one, not already in motion.

THE ROUTE OF THE PROCESSION

will be from the junction of Columbus avenue and Berkeley street, through the following streets:—

Columbus avenue, Chester park (north side), Washington, Summer, High, Pearl, Post Office square, Congress, State, New Devonshire, Washington, Hanover, Tremont, Boylston, to Berkeley street, where the procession will be dismissed.

Citizens are requested to decorate their stores and residences situated on the line of the march.

At Arlington street His Excellency John D. Long, Governor of Massachusetts, will review the procession.

At Berkeley street the Chief Marshal will review the column.

The Chief Marshal, having made the route a comparatively short one, earnestly desires that no organization leave the column until dismissed at the junction of Boylston and Berkeley streets.

After passing that point, organizations going south will proceed via Huntington avenue, West Chester Park, Columbus avenue and Northampton street.

Chiefs of Division are requested to transmit to these Headquarters, on the day following the march, consolidated reports of their commands.

CHIEF MARSHAL.

With thanks unto the Lord confess because that good is he; Because his loving kindnesses last to eternity.

So say the Lord's redeemed, whom bought he hath from the enemies' hands, And from the east & west hath brought from south & northern lands.

In desart stray'd, in desart way, no dwelling town they find. They hungry were & thirsty they their souls within them pin'd. Then did they to Jehovah cry when they were in distress; Who did them set at liberty out of their anguishes.

In such a way as was most right he led them forth alsoe, That to a city which they might inhabit, they might goe.

Oh that men praise Jehovah would for his great goodness then, And for his marvellous lovingness unto the sons of men.

To be sung by the Congregation to the Tune of St. Martin's beginning with the fourth stanza.

O God! while generations flee
Like leaves before Thy face,
Through endless ages Thou wilt be
Thy children's dwelling-place.

Great Shepherd of the countless flock, Where'er they rest or roam; Their cheering sun, their sheltering rock, Their everlasting home!

Our sainted fathers, where are they?
They slept, they woke in Thee,
And here in memory's light, to-day,
They walk serene and free.

Roll back, O Time, thy ceaseless wave, Bring round the day once more, When first they trod, the free and brave, This wild and wood-crowned shore. In God's first temple here they stood,
His breath inspired the air;
And through the green, o'erarching wood
Uprose their song and prayer.

When days grew dark, they sowed in trust,
In patience and in peace,
Assured that God, the wise and just,
Would give the seed increase.

A large-armed tree, behold it now!
God's word its living root;
To children's children each broad bough
Brings healing, shade, and fruit.

O Thou who led'st our sires of old, Their grateful children lead; Thy flock in shelter safe enfold, In sunny pastures feed!

Still guide our footsteps in the way
That climbs the morning height,
Thy law, O God! our cloud by day,
Thy love our fire by night!

XV. Benediction.

Former Houses of Worship.

The first House of Worship was crected on State Street, corner of Devonshire, site of the present Brazer's Building, A.D. 1632. Upon the land in the rear, now known as the Prince estate, were horse sheds used by those who rode to church. The second was built on the present site of Joy's Building, on Washington Street, then called Cornhill, A.D. 1610, and was consumed by fire, Oct. 2, 1711. Rebuilt on the same spot, A.D. 1713, and for many years known as the "Old Brick," a very imposing structure.

The fourth was erected in Chauncy Place, A.D. 1808. Services were held in it for the last time, May 10, 1868.

The corner-stone of the present House of Worship was laid April 4, 1867, and dedicated December 10. The church holds it free of debt, and it may aptly be said to realize the vision of John Wilson.

The Communion Plate.

The following is a description prepared by the late Rev. Dr. Frothingham of the pieces of Communion Plate given to the church in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Many other pieces have been given during the present century, the whole service being composed of the gifts of church members. The church proper, or the body of communicants, holds also charity funds amounting in all to nearly $20,000. Among the silver plate belonging to the First Church are the following old and memorable pieces:—

1. A silver basin for Baptisms, with a coat of arms engraved on the rim, and "J. Hurd" stamped in the centre.

2. A flagon, with a coat of arms engraved in front, and an inspection underneath: "The Gift of the Honble William Dummer State to the First Church in Boston, 1726."

3. A similar flagon, with the inscription within an ornamented oval: "The Gift of Deacon Thomas Waite to the First Church of Christ in Boston, May 15, 1775."

FORMERLY THE

ROXBURY ARTILLERY COMPANY, July 4th, 1884.

A Committee representing the citizens of the Roxbury district and the ROXBURY CITY GUARD are making arrangements to celebrate the 100th Anniversary of the organization of the Corps, and they desire to secure the interest and personal co-operation and participation in the event of the old and new residents of the district.

The general plan for the celebration will be as follows: A procession under Genl. I. S. Burrell, as Chief Marshal, consisting of the Roxbury Horse Guards and Division of citizens which will escort the Roxbury City Guard, their past members and the guests to an encampment on West Roxbury Park, near Blue Hill Avenue, where a programme of exercises will be carried out, consisting of a salute of one hundred guas at noon, music, military drill, dinner, speeches, &c. Hon. Wm. Gaston will preside at the dinner. Col. Horace T. Rockwell will be in command of the encampment. The Division of Citizens will be under chrage of a Marshal and Aides, to be hereafter announced. All citizens purchasing tickets are invited to march in this division. A suitable badge will be furnished.

Admission to the encampment will be by a ticket, which will enable the bearer to pass in and out during the day and to participate in the dinner. Tickets will be $2.00 each, admitting either gentleman or lady. The presence of ladies is desired, and arrangements will be made for their special accommodation.

In order to carry out the programme on a scale creditable to old Roxbury, it will be necessary to raise a considerable sum of money by subscription, in addition to the proceeds from sale of tickets. All who desire to subscribe will at once forward the amount to Geo. B. Faunce, 2385 Washington Street, treasurer of the committee.

All desiring to purchase tickets must do so at once, as it will be necessary to limit the number, and Sale Will Positively Close on July 1st. Tickets can be had of the Treasurer or of any member of the committee.

For the Committee,

WM. GASTON, Chairman.

It was replaced in 1828 by the granite edifice which stood until the great fire of 1872. The Rev. Addington Davenport was the first rector.

Auld Lang Syne.

By Thomas Drew.

Near fourscore years have passed and gone.
Since 'mongst the Norfolk hills,
A lusty man-child babe was born
Near Dedham's famous mills,

The boy grew up, as babies grow.
Good grit and strength of lung:
He had no fears of high nor low.
And cut his eye-teeth young.

CHORUS.

Now here's good health to "Walpole's sage,"
Good health, and "troops of friends":
The ruddlest glow of honored age,
Long as his life extends.

Early he walked in wisdom's ways.

Plucked knowledge from the tree.

And when arrived to manhood's days.

A sturdy youth was he.

He saw, where'er he turned his eyes,
The woes and wants of men;
And often did his friends surprise
With ready speech and pen.

CHORUS.

To aid the weak, to guide the strong,
His mission seemed to be;
But, most of all, to right the wrong
Of chattel slavery.

How wise and well, and hard he fought,
We old Free Soilers know,
Who read that product of his thought —
Oh! * " Let my people go!"
Chores.

Yet not alone, in conflicts stern.

His noble traits appear;

To festive boards our thoughts return.

Of friendship and good cheer;

Where men we loved sat by his side,With wit and wisdom primed,Who erst have crossed swift Jordan's tide,And left us here behind.

Chorus.

The future none of us can say,
The past is all secure;
So pledge we, on this natal day,
Our friendship shall endure.

^{&#}x27; NOTE. This was the title of one of Mr. Bird's war-time pamphlets, arging emancipation as a war measure.

IN MEMORIAM.

ILLUSTRIOUS BROTHER

Kickard S. Spotford,

AN HONORARY MEMBER OF THE SUPREME COUNCIL OF SOVEREIGN GRAND INSPECTORS-GENERAL OF THE THIRTY-THIRD DEGREE.

N. . M. . J. . U. S. A.

DIED AT DEER ISLAND, NEAR NEWBURYPORT, MASS.,

AUGUST 11, 1888.

RICHARD S. SPOFFORD, 33°.:

A bright star has left the horizon. A light, whose pure and ardent rays were redolent with lofty aspiration, genuine benevolence and the sincerest self-sacrifice in the cause of humanity, has ceased to shine among our Brethren. ILL.: INSPECTOR-GEN.: RICHARD S. SPOFFORD died at his home, Deer Island, near Newburyport, on the 11th of August, 1888, aged 56, after a protracted and painful illness, which he bore with fortitude and serenity.

Our Illustrious Brother may be said to have inherited his Free Masonry from his distinguished father, Dr. Spofford, of Newburyport, who was one of the early Members of the Scottish Rite in Massachusetts, dating from 1825, and an Honorary Member of this grade. The son was Crafted in St. John's Lodge, of Newburyport, in 1854, August 25, was Knighted in Newburyport Encampment, August 21, 1856, and November 21, 1862, was advanced to be an Honorary Inspector-General of the Scottish Rite.

The generous and liberal principles of Free Masonry found a genial soil in his breast and illustrated his life. Not merely did he accept them, but he lived up to them; tolerant of the free thought and opinions of others, with a hand generous to distress and want, a heart full of sympathy for his fellow men in their trials and tribulations, a genuine hatred of oppression and wrong in all its forms, and a scorn of meanness and hypocrisy in every guise, his life shed on the holy banner of liberty, equality and fraternity a light which never flickered, a faith that never faltered. A friend always faithful and true, ready to help, to comfort, or to avenge as the need might require, he drew to him with clasps of love troops of noble and devoted hearts, not restricted by any political lines of association. But generous as nature had been to him in the qualities of the heart, the intellect was worthy of the heart. His lips, like the prophets, had been touched with a Celestial coal of fire, eloquence and persuasion hung on them like honey. He was an orator rarely equaled in purity of style, clearness of statement, method, grace, or ardent expression of the emotions natural to his subject. A vigorous and keenly perceptive mind, enriched by culture and broad reading, adorned with a poetic imagination and rare taste, found an appropriate facility of language and command of oratory to impress its own convictions on his hearers. Less ornate, but more chaste than Choate, more eloquent and imaginative than Rantoul, but always logical and vigorous as they were, he ranks as peer among the gifted sons of old Essex. The brilliancy of his conversation, the readiness and the wealth of his knowledge, gave him a social charm in general society and was keenly relished among the statesmen of the country whose friendship he enjoyed. Unfortunate, perhaps, for his political aspirations, but not the less creditable to his sturdy honesty of convictions, his political views were those of the minority in his section and the gates of political preferment were shut against him, otherwise his rare abilities would have been known broadcast in the land. He had no taste for office. Despite the barred ways for personal ambition, he was not without influence on the controling thought of the times and from his youth had enjoyed the confidence and respect of many prominent public men.

Many were the contributions he made to illustrate Constitutional law, and the uplifting of humanity with the material and social progress of civilization. The ideal truth that burned in his dauntless soul was never limited by thoughts of personal consequences or benefits. If they came, he spurned them as though they were instigations of the devil, and marched to political ostracism with unquailing eye and unruffled nerve when he felt that duty led the way.

His chivalric espousal of the rights of the American fisheries is well known. The whole heartedness and power of his contention was deeply felt by the fishermen themselves, in expressions of grief at his death, The Master Mariners' Society of Gloucester says:

"That we desire to unite with all who know his worth, his patriotism, his love of country, his noble effort to maintain American rights and American honor, in giving this expression of our esteem and affection for one whom this Association feels that it especially desires to honor."

The officers of the National Fishery Association, and those of the American Fishery Union, also met and resolved :

"That we join with all who knew him in his chivalric devotion to "patriotic principles, his fervent aspiration for American honor and "American rights, in laying this simple token of our heartfelt love and "respect upon his grave, knowing that his life and its memory will ever be "an incentive to a higher national obligation and a more comprehensive " patriotism."

Twice he represented his native town in the Legislature and once was candidate for Congress, but other than these his life was passed in the practice of the law, mainly as the trusted and confidential counsel for railroad enterprises and in the management of the large estates of one of his clients, where his ability found an ample field of employment. His love of his native country was a deep devotion, his pen and his time were freely employed in her honor. Orations, speeches and poems at her historic festivaloccasions were frequent, and his country took an honest pride in him, whether they agreed or differed with his political views.

His Masonic Brethren not unfrequently called on the eloquence of their highly-gifted Brother on occasions of particular interest to them and with one accord will testify of him what he said of a departed Brother before the Brethren of St. Marks and St. Johns Lodges of his native town: "No one has exemplified more perfectly in his pilgrimage of life the beauty and holiness of Masonic life."

Mr. Spofford married the accomplished authoress, Miss Harriet Prescott, and the harmony of their married life was beautifully illustrated. His death is to her an unutterable pang. No children have survived, and the succession in Masonry which the father embraced in 1809, and the son followed, now after nearly eighty years fails. They have both drank of the golden cup from the hand of the grim adversary.

I said a star has been obscured in our Masonic galaxy, its radiance still warms our hearts and lives in our memories. It has not gone out. We shall meet it again, not here, but in the throned splendor of that higher sphere, in that rose of light, where, nearer to God, souls shall recover more of that pure and ineffable light which Masons know has one only source and is a joy forever.

Knightly in everything that makes Knighthood honorable, Masonic in everything that makes Masonry humane, patriotic and lovely, there are many of us to whom the world feels cold now he is gone, and our hearts say as we linger:

"But oh for a touch of a vanished hand, And the sound of a voice that is still."

ODE

FOR THE

DEDICATION OF THE BUNKER HILL TABLETS.

Ι.

Under the golden dome where laws are made,
The stones yet stand that once around the base
Rose, of the ancient column in that place;
And on those graven tablets is displayed
A record of the mighty train
Of great events that, following fast
Through seven long years of watchings and fears,
Throes, and unutterable strain,
In God's ripe season led at last
Our land to glory through that vale of tears.

Π.

And this, moreover, the stones have said:
While from this eminence you survey
Scenes of luxury, gardens of wealth,
Homes of laborious industry and health,
Tilth and orchard, uplands, plain,
And clovered meadows reaching far away,
With halls of learning hid in elmy bowers
Your supereminent domain!
Whate'er of republics may have been Spoken aforetime, the imputed sin
Of thanklessness must not be ours.

III.

From the golden dome where laws are made There went a mandate forth:
On yonder hallowed mount to the north
Let the best men in building skilled
A tower of rocks to the high heavens build,
To stand at once a monument and shrine,
A pillar, in everlasting sign,
Like that which Hercules of yore
Set on the Gaditanian shore,
Crying to tyrants, Come no more!
And the fire in the cresset that flamed of old,
Beaconing the mariners up Boston bay, then copy of the ode un read to we by me cuetion. The melesten from the Die to cleared the deduction I due and we. Shall burn forever from this new tower,

Like a ruling star of benignant ray
For every people to behold,—
A watch-fire in the purple west,
Steadfast and strong, for all the oppressed
To fly to from tyrannic power.

IV.

New England's air was never tainted long With any tyranny; the prairie-winds Breathed from the illimitable West Into those English hearts and minds A new-born sense of space that made more strong A vigour chafed for centuries by the sea, And for high ventures nerved each daring breast. Our Fathers always had been free. Those men who Freedom's battle fought, Holding all kings but One in scorn, Though with a mighty price they bought Your freedom, were free born; And Carolina's and Virginia's blood Tempered to like disdain of shackled thought, Beat with one pulse, when Liberty's glad morn Alike to North and South broke o'er the Atlantic flood.

Why should the Muse on dreadful details dwell,

To make a calendar of her lyre?

Is it a story of no renown—

The redoubt, the frigates, the blazing town,

Fronting the Falcon's fire;

How the regulars rushed and the yeomen fell,

Butts and bayonets plying as well;

Rolled and trod in the crimson mire

Of the dust and blood beneath?

Close quarters then! for a captain cries,—

As the troops marched up,—"Let them come nigher!

Hold till you mark the whites of their eyes,

And the gleam of their British teeth."

Ah! many felt, as the bullets flew,

We fight for Englishmen in fighting you.

VI.

On from that dread to this triumphal June, And now while natures are all in tune, That children hereafter may come to spell Prescott and Warren and all who fell, Hard by, on that bitter afternoon, Bearing on History's page so proud a part, We hang these bronzes on our country's heart.

Not for the splendour of the fight,
Not for the number of the slain,
Not for the day's defeat and flight,
But for the final crowning of the right,
And mankind's measureless gain.
This other commonwealth of kings,
Born here on Bunker's height,
Have fluttered their flag of stars,
Like a labarum of light,
Beyond the Tiber, by Peter's throne,
Beyond the hill of Mars,
As those elder freemen, through every zone
Carried their eagles on outspread wings
And blazoned S. P. Q. Rs.

VII

Say then, O poet! when sages
Shall anew the tale relate,
Not for a thousand ages
Was a little battle so great;
Yea, write, besides, on your pages,
With an adamantine pen,
Not for a million ages
May such battle be fought again.

VIII.

Remembering what our statesman said,

"That the blood of your fathers may not have been shed
For humankind in vain," *

Up with your tablets to grace the dead!

And while you hang them, let great London hear
Little Boston's exultations;
Let all nations far and near;
Let sacred Italy and Spain,
Norway, Denmark, and the men
We love in Germany, and France
Rejoice at this day's doings. Then

"Advance ye future generations," *
And lead the world's advance!

T. W. PARSONS.

Our voices tuned by joyous love,
Thy power and praises sing.
Upon Thy mighty, faithful heart,
We lay our burden down,
Thou art the only friend who feels
Their weight without a frown.

For thee we daily work and strive,
To thee we give our love:
For thee, with fervor deep we pray,
To Him who dwells above;
O God, preserve our fatherland,
Let Peace its ruler be,
And let her happy kingdom stretch,
From North to Southmost sea.

Hymn. "For all the Saints."

For all the saints, who from their labors rest, Who Thee by faith before the world confessed, Thy Name, O Jesu, be forever blessed.

Alleluia.

Thou wast their rock, their fortress and their might; Thou, Lord, their Captain in the well-fought fight; Thou, in the darkness drear, the Light of light.

Alleluia.

O may Thy soldiers, faithful, true and bold, Fight as the saints who nobly fought of old, And win, with them, the victor's crown of gold.

Alleluia.

O blest communion, fellowship divine! We feebly struggle, they in glory shine; Yet all are one in Thee, for all are Thine.

Alleluia.

And when the strife is fierce, the warfare long,
Steals on the ear the distant triumph-song,
And hearts are brave again, and arms are strong.
Alleluia.

The golden evening brightens in the west; Soon, soon to faithful warriors comes the rest; Sweet is the calm of Paradise the bless'd.

Alleluia.

Address by Samuel Eliot, LL.D.

American Hymn. "Angel of Peace."

Angel of Peace, thou hast wandered too long!

Spread thy white wings to the sunshine of love;

Come, while our voices are blended in song,

Fly to our ark like the storm-beaten dove!

Fly to our ark on the wings of the dove,

Speed o'er the far-sounding billows of song,

Crowned with thine olive-leaf garland of love,—

Angel of Peace, thou hast waited too long!

Brothers we meet, on this altar of thine,

Mingling the gifts we have gathered for thee,
Sweet with the odors of myrtle and pine,
Breeze of the prairie, and breath of the sea,
Meadow and mountain, and forest and sea!
Sweet is its fragrance of myrtle and pine,
Sweeter the incense we offer to thee,
Brothers once more round this altar of thine!

Angels of Bethlehem, answer the strain!

Hark! a new birth-song is filling the sky!

Loud as the storm-wind that trembles the main,
Bid the full breath of the organ reply,

Let the loud tempest of voices reply.

Roll its long surge like the earth-shaking main!

Swell the vast song till it mount to the sky!

Angels of Bethlehem, echo the strain!

Benediction.

THE ONE HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE INAUGURATION OF

GEORGE WASHINGTON

FIRST PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

HYMN.

[OLD HUNDREDTH.]

BEFORE Jehovah's awful throne, Ye nations, bow with sacred joy; Know that the Lord is God alone; He can create, and he destroy.

- 2. His sovereign power, without our aid,
 Made us of clay, and form'd us men;
 And when like wandering sheep we stray'd,
 He brought us to his fold again.
- 3. We are his people, we his care,
 Our souls and all our mortal frame;
 What lasting honors shall we rear,
 Almighty Maker, to thy Name?
- 4. We'll crowd thy gates with thankful songs, High as the heaven our voices raise; And earth with her ten thousand tongues, Shall fill thy courts with sounding praise.
- 5. Wide as the world is thy command;
 Vast as eternity thy love;
 Firm as a rock thy truth must stand,
 When rolling years shall cease to move.

7. Peace be within thy walls: and plenteousness within thy palaces.

1. 8. For my brethren and companions' sakes: I will wish thee prosperity.

9. Yea, because of the house of the LORD our God: I will seek to do thee good.

Then shall be read for the first Lesson the following portion of the Forty-fourth Chapter of the BOOK OF Ecclesiasticus: beginning at the first verse.

ET us now praise famous men, and our fathers that begat us. The Lord hath wrought great glory by them, through his great power, from the beginning. Such as did bear rule in their kingdoms, men renowned for their power, giving counsel by their understanding and declaring prophecies; leaders of the people by their counsels, and by their knowledge of learning meet for the people, wise and eloquent in their instructions. · . All these were honored in their generation. and were the glory of their times. There be of them that have left a name behind them, that their praises might be reported. And some there be which have no memorial; who are perished as though they had never been; and are become as though they had never been born; and their children after them. But these were merciful men, whose righteousness hath not been forgotten. . . . Their bodies are buried in peace; but their name liveth for evermore. The people will tell of their wisdom, and the congregation will show forth their praise.

Then shall be sung the following Hymn:

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS.

JE praise thee, O God: we acknowledge thee to be the Lord.

All the earth doth worship thee: the Father everlasting.

To thee, all Angels cry aloud: the Heavens, and all the Powers therein.

To thee, Cherubim and Seraphim: continually do cry. Holy, Holy, Holy: Lord God of Sabaoth;

Heaven and earth are full of the Majesty: of thy

The glorious company of the Apostles: praise thee. The goodly fellowship of the Prophets: praise thee.

The noble army of Martyrs: praise thee. The holy Church throughout all the world: doth acknowledge thee; The Father: of an infinite Majesty. Thine adorable, true: and only Son; Also the Holy Ghost: the Comforter.

Thou art the King of Glory: O Christ.

Thou art the everlasting Son: of the Father. When thou tookest upon thee to deliver man: thou didst humble thyself to be born of a Virgin.

When thou hadst overcome the sharpness of death: thou didst open the Kingdom of Heaven to all believers.

Thou sittest at the right hand of God: in the Glory of the Father.

We believe that thou shalt come: to be our Judge. We therefore pray thee, help thy servants: whom thou hast redeemed with thy precious blood. Make them to be numbered with thy Saints: in glory

O Lord, save thy people: and bless thine heritage. everlasting.

Govern them: and lift them up for ever.

Day by day: we magnify thee; And we worship thy Name: ever world without end. Vouchsafe, O Lord: to keep us this day without sin. O Lord, have mercy upon us: have mercy upon us.

O Lord, let thy mercy be upon us: as our trust is in thee.

O Lord, in thee have I trusted: let me never be confounded.

¶ Then shall be read for the second Lesson the following portion of the Eighth Chapter of the Gospel according to St. John: beginning at the thirty-first

THEN said Jesus to those Jews which believed in him, If ye continue in my word then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. They answered him. We be Abraham's seed, and were never in bondage to any man: How sayest thou, Ye shall be made free? Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin. And the servant abideth not in the house for ever: but the Son abideth ever. If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.

Then shall be sung a portion of the Canticle, BENEDI-CITE, OMNIA OPERA, as followeth: with the GLORIA PATRI.

ALL ye Works of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: praise him, and magnify him for ever.

O ve Angels of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: praise him, and magnify him for ever.

O ye Children of Men, bless ye the Lord: praise him, and magnify him for ever.

O let Israel bless the Lord: praise him and magnify him for ever.

O ye Priests of the Lord bless ye the Lord: praise him, and magnify him for ever.

O ve Servants of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: praise him, and magnify him for ever.

O ye Spirits and Souls of the Righteous, bless ye the Lord: praise him, and magnify him for ever. O ye holy and humble Men of heart, bless ye the Lord: praise him, and magnify him for ever.

Then shall be said by the Minister and the People the Apostles' Creed.

BELIEVE in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth:

And in Jesus Christ his only Son our Lord; Whowas conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary; Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified, dead, and buried; He descended into hell, The third day he rose again from the dead; He ascended into heaven, And sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty; From thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Ghost: The holy Catholic Church; The Communion of Saints; The Forgiveness of sins; The Resurrection of the body; And the life everlasting. Amen.

Then shall be said these Prayers following, all devoutly kneeling; the Minister first pronouncing,

`HE Lord be with you. Answer. And with thy spirit. Minister. Let us pray.

O Lord, show thy mercy upon us. Answer. And grant us thy salvation. Minister. O Lord, save thy people.

Answer. And bless thine inheritance.

Minister. Endue thy Ministers with righteousness.

Answer. And make thy chosen people joyful.

Minister. O Lord, bow thine ear. Answer. And mercifully hear us when we call upon thee.

Minister. Give peace in our time, O Lord. Answer. For it is thou Lord only that makest us dwell in safety.

Minister. O God, make clean our hearts within us. Answer. And take not thy Holy Spirit from us.

I Then shall follow these Prayers, the Minister and the People still kneeling.

A Collect for Peace.

GOD, who art the author of peace and lover of concord, in knowledge of whom standeth our eternal life, whose service is perfect freedom; Defend us thy humble servants in all assaults of our enemies; that we, surely trusting in thy defence, may not fear the power of any adversaries, through the might of Iesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

For the President of the United States and all in Civil Authority.

LMIGHTY God, the fountain of all goodness, we humbly beseech thee to bless thy servant BENJAMIN HARRISON, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, his counsellors and all others in authority. Endue them with thy Holy Spirit; enrich them with thy heavenly grace; prosper them with all happiness; and bring them to thine everlasting kingdom; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

For the Country.

LMIGHTY God, who in the former time didst lead our fathers forth into a wealthy place: Give thy grace, we humbly beseech thee, to us their children, that we may always approve ourselves a people mindful of thy favor and glad to do thy will. Bless our land with honorable industry, sound learning, and pure manners. Defend our liberties, preserve our unity. Save us from violence, discord and confusion, from pride and arrogancy, and from every evil way. Fashion into one happy people the multitudes brought hither out of many kindreds and tongues. Endue with the spirit of wisdom those whom we entrust in thy Name with the authority of governance, to the end that there be peace at home, and that we keep a place among the nations of the earth. In the time of prosperity, fill our hearts with thankfulness; and in the day of trouble, suffer not our trust in thee to fail; all which we ask for Jesus Christ's sake. Amen.

For a Blessing on the Families of the Land.

LMIGHTY God, our heavenly Father, who settest the solitary in families; We commend to thy continual care the homes in which thy people dwell. Put far from them, we beseech thee, every root of bitterness, the desire of vain-glory and the pride of life. Fill them with faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness. Knit together in constant affection those who, in holy wedlock, have been made one flesh; turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to the fathers; and so kindle charity among us all, that we be evermore kindly affectioned with brotherly love; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

For the Unity of the Church of God.

GOD, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, our only Saviour, the Prince of Peace; Give us grace seriously to lay to heart the great dangers we are in by our unhappy divisions. Take away all hatred and prejudice, and whatsoever else may hinder us from godly union and concord; that, as there is but one Body, and one Spirit, and one Hope of our calling, one Lord, one Faith, one Baptism, one God and Father Father of us all, so we may all be of one heart, and of one soul united in one holy bond of Truth and Peace, of Fairl of Faith and Charity, and may with one mind and one mouth glorify thee; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

2 Cor. xiii. 14.

HE grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all evermore. Amen.

HYMN.

R ISE, crown'd with light, imperial Salem, rise; Exalt thy towering head and lift thine eyes: See heaven its sparkling portals wide display, And break upon thee in a flood of day.

- 2. See a long race thy spacious courts adorn, See future sons, and daughters yet unborn, In crowding ranks on every side arise, Demanding life, impatient for the skies.
- 3. See barbarous nations at thy gates attend,
 Walk in thy light, and in thy temple bend:
 See thy bright altars throng'd with prostrate kings,
 While every land its joyous tribute brings.
- 4. The seas shall waste, the skies to smoke decay, Rocks fall to dust, and mountains melt away; But fix'd his word, his saving power remains; Thy realm shall last, thy own Messiah reigns.

REMINISCENCES

MRS. J. R. VINCENT,

BY MAX ELIOT.

EAR OLD MRS. VINCENT! How many, many times equal seems seldom to have been found. As the admirable have these words been echoed by nearly every man, woman and child who has formed a part of the Boston Museum audiences for more than the thirty-four years which Mrs. Vincent passed as a member of the Museum company. She was as much a part of Boston as the famous old theatre itself, and her name long a household word in many Boston homes. Her friends were legion, and in the history of the stage it is doubtful if any one has ever more endeared themselves to the hearts of any theatregoing public. She was during all these years a paramount favorite, and that she still retains a loving corner in the hearts and memory of the Boston people is only too evident to anyone who remembers seeing the dear old lady, with her cheery face lighted up with smiles, and her comfortable, round little body coming down to the footlights at the Museum, always welcomed with a ringing, friendly round of applause. Apart from the regard in which she was long held as an actress, there was a deep personal affection and esteem felt for her which probably no other lady on the Boston stage has had. Her very name seems to be enshrined as that of an artist who has continually lent dignity and respect to the profession of which she was such an honored member, and she did more for the stage than all the defenders who have ever written about it. Nearly forty years have passed since her name first appeared on the playbills of the Museum. A long time to retain the admiration and regard of a people only too prone to be fickle in their allegiance to any favorite belonging to the public, whether that public be one worshipping at an artistic shrine or one of a different nature, and yet her friends who to-day still hold her memory dear, seem to far outnumber the list possessed by any other favorite. What laughs she caused, what sorrows were lightened by her merry humor, and what joys she increased by her mirth-catching fun-making. As her friends have laughed, so too have they cried with her, but it was the laughter that best suited her jolly, little, plump figure and her flexible features, so full of rich and comic expression. Her keen perception of the ridiculous and quick understanding of the author's meaning, her easy assumption of humor, and happy faculty of mimicking certain peculiarities possessed by different people in which the ludicrous predominates, tended to make her an artist of such phenomenally amusing and entertaining skill and genius that her glfts she possessed as an actress endeared her to the public, so did her many beautiful traits of character endear her to the hearts of those who knew her more intimately in her private life. She was beloved and respected by every one brought in contact with her. In the eyes of the public, in the sanctity of her home life, and in the hallowedness of the church, Mrs. Vincent was foremost in the love and respect of all. Her many benevolent and thoughtful kindnesses made her name seem like a ray of sunshine to more than one poor, burdened creature, and in dark as well as bright days, she at countless times gave the grasp of faithful friendship, that stands foremost among the comforts sent to lighten a weary soul.

She seemed always cheerful, always kind, always sweet and motherly, and in her well-known little home on Charles street where she so long lived, she dispensed a certain kind hospitality that was resting and as winning in its simplicity as the dear little old lady herself. And then what a pleasant, familiar home it was. Just suited to the little body that occupied it. Its air of comfort, repose, homeliness and personality made it just the abode for her, and what a museum of reminiscences, mementoes and recollections, and how happy the owner of them always was when exhibiting some of her treasures as recalling scenes of days

Flfty-two years upon the stage! More than half a century spent in entertaining and amusing a public, and yet, to look at Mrs. Vincent as she appeared in the later years of her life and know that she was in the enjoyment of excellent health, within a few days of her death, and almost up to the last moment possessed the power to amuse, as at the beginning of such a long and praiseworthy career, it is impossible to realize at times that she is not still with us.

And now a glance back at some of the experiences and episodes that followed the career of this well-remembered actress will give an insight into a life that, while not a particularly eventful one, will long be remembered as one whose good fortune it always was to have possessed the regard and sincere affection and respect of the character she personated and her immense fund of all with whom she was brought in contact. She belonged to a school which is becoming rarer every day, a school founded longer ago than when even the "dear old lady" first made her bow before a theatre-going public.

MRS. VINCENT'S FAMILY.

HER CHILD LIFE. - EARLY HOME AND STAGE EXPERIENCES.

NOTE.-The following sketch of Mrs. J. R. Vincent's life was given to me almost verbatim, during a series of visits I paid the dear old lady some two years prior to her death. - MAX ELIOT.

ATHER strange to relate, none of Mrs. Vincent's family had ever been a member of the theatrical fraternity, but (to quote from the favorite actress' own words,) from a time she can scarcely remember, she looked upon the theatre and the people who played upon its stage as among the wonders of the world. Play-actors were more than kings or fairles or any of the high-born personages upon whom children look with awe and wonder. Her child life was a quiet, uneventful one. She was born in Portsmouth, Eug., the 18th of September, 1818. Her father was in the navy, and when his little daughter, Mary Ann Farley was but two years old, he died and left a widow with two young children - Mary, and a boy a few years older. Two years later the widowed mother went to join her husband in that land there is no returning from, and the two young orphans were left to be brought up and cared for by their grandmother, an aunt and an old servant. These five individuals composed the family, and, oddly enough, it was through the instrumentality of the servant that eventually the way was opened by which the young aspirant for his. trionic honors succeeded in fostering her desires to become an actress. This servant had been in the family for many years, having attended the father as she now waited upon his children, and was more their friend and confidant than such persons are wont to be. In the midst of such everyday scenes the boy and girl grew to manhood and young womanhood, and later on the boy began to read law. Then came a period when the girl longed to enter a new life, to have new ambitions, new dreams, new hopes, and all these new longings oddly enough, centred in the stage. She passed her sixteenth birthday, and about the same time fortune favored her long pent-up hopes and longings. The servant had in the meantime married a man who lived in the town of Gossport and who, although of comfortable means, thought that if he provided a house, chairs and tables for his helpmate, she ought to attend to the rest of the domestic matters and find the wherewithal upon which to subsist; consequently, the wife of this matter-of-fact husband began to take lodgers, and, as it happened, most of them were play-actors - as they were called in those days. Among these actors were Charles Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, the former, a son of the manager of the little theatre at Cowes in the Isle of Wight.

One of the events of Mary Farley's life at this period was One or the events of many ratio, the ex-servant, and part, she acquitted herself most creditably. The third part to go and have tea with her old friend, the ex-servant, and these tea parties brought the girl into contact with Wilson and his wife, who used to tell of their various stage experiences and thus feed the flame long ago kindled in the young girl's heart already overflowing with dreams about their unknown world. To them she revealed her aspirations, and they finally offered to assist her to attain her great desire. They procured her an engagement at the little theatre at Cowes, and gave her the munificent salary of one guinea a week. She had never been on the boards of a theatre in her life either amateur or professional, but her heart was in her undertaking, and one or two theatrical acquaintances she had formed at this period told her she had the material in her to some day make a good actress. but until the day came upon which she went to her first rehearsal she had never known the first requisite necessary to become an actress. She had never read or recited as so many young women do nowadays, who adopt the stage as a profession. She had once memorized a part out of Howard Payne's "Brutus," but it was for a wager, and had been quickly forgotten.

Upon learning of her having signed a contract with the manager of a theatre, the aunt with whom Mary resided was at first very much incensed, and objected most strongly to her niece becoming a player.

The aunt's objections, however, were overruled, and finally the night came upon which Mary Farley was to make her debut upon the theatrical stage. It was upon a Monday night in April, 1835, and the piece was "The Review; or, the Wags of Windsor." Our young aspirant for stage honors played but a small part in the piece - a chambermaid-but she invested it with so much piquancy and vim, that she was immediately voted a success, and her vivacity of manner, keen sense of the ludicrous, her liveliness and considerable charm of personal attractions combined, served to interest the patrons of the theatre in her behalf to a great extent. Her debut was a pronounced success, and for a time she was the talk of the masculine element of the town. In speaking of that memorable debut afterward, the girl said she had no knowledge at all, comparatively, of what she had to do -she seemed to do the business of her small part by instinct.

The second role she played was Volante in "The Honey. moon." It was a wide step to take - from the small role of a chambermaid to Volante, but in the latter as in the former she was given to play was the result of an incident tending in her favor. The piece was Ambroise Guinet's "Lucy Fairlove," and 'the heroine was to be played by the mana. ger's wife, who held the first position in the theatre. Almost upon the eve of the first performance of the piece this lady was taken violently ill, and the result was, the role was played by Mary Farley, and it was done in such a praiseworthy manner that her position was then and there established in the theatre. She remained in Cowes until the end of the season, and shortly after was married to James R. Vincent, a gentleman some 19 years her senior, but who was at that time one of the most noted comedians of the day. The marriage took place in August, 1835, and the following month the young bride was 17. From that day to this Mary Farley was known as Mrs. J. R. Vincent - a name that to-day is as familiar to a Bostonian as the Old South Church or any of the well-known landmarks about the Hub.

For five months after her marriage, Mary, whom we must now call Mrs. Vincent, retired from the stage. Her lusband, however, was a member of a provincial company that was under the management of W. J. Hammond, whose wife was the famous beauty Miss Jerrold, a sister of Douglas Jerrold. (This same manager and actor in 1849 came to America and after appearing one night in New York, at the old Broadway Theatre, and making a pronounced success, died the next day, to the profound regret of a hest of friends.)

Apropos of the first year of her married life, and while travelling with the company of which her husband was a member, Mrs. Vincent relates the following episode:

The company had an engagement at Doncaster the week of the famous annual races. They arrived in town late one Monday afternoon and went at once to a hotel usually frequented by the theatrical fraternity. Arriving there, they were informed that not a room, or even a bed, were to be had. They went to another hotel, and to another, and met with the same result. The town was packed from one ent to the other with the strangers who had come to attend the races. Half the townspeople took in lodgers upon such an occasion—in fact, the trades-people and middle classes looked forward to the annual races as the means of making a snug little sum for their living expenses the greater part of the year. The accommodations were far from adequate, and during the few days of the races, beds often brought as much as ten guineas apiece. After various wanderings after their first failure to find lodgings, however, about the town, Mrs. Vincent and her husband found themselves in front of an inn where it was all Mr. Vincent could do to procure even a chair for his wife to sit upon.

Food next became a matter that required immediate looking after, but at this inn, as at many others in race week, they could procure but little to cat. Finally, after much importuning on the part of Mr. Vincent, a kindly disposed man sent them to a woman who lived near by who would probably give them a cup of tea, he said. To this person they went, but she, like the inn, had no place for them. Mrs. Vincent, tired out and miserable, burst into tears. The woman's heart was melted and finally she said, taking the girlish-looking young wife by the hand. "Come in, lassie, you're but a child after all, and I have children of my own who might be in your place." With that this amiable creature took them into her house, gave them some tea and bread and butter, and made a bed on some chairs for the young wife to sleep on. For three days she was taken care of in that manner, and then the aristocracy departed, the town disgorged itself of its countless visitors, and Mrs. Vincent and her husband during the rest of their stay in Doncaster occupied a comfortable suite of rooms for which they paid four shillings only per week - but this cheap rent was because the house was said to be haunted, and, except in cases of emergency, it was rather difficult for the worthy landlady to let her rooms to desirable lodgers. This visit to Doncaster was marked by another event in the world of incidents that go to make up one's experiences. The reason for the unusual number of strangers in the town was because the Queen, (then only the Princess Victoria,) was to attend the races. "The princess was a slim, pretty girlish thing then," says Mrs. Vincent. "and was made much of by the people as she drove through the town."

The engagement in Doneaster was prolonged some eight or nine weeks, and then the company went to Sheffield and a number of other towns in Yorkshire, after which Mrs. Vincent abandoned for some little time her histrionic career,

After several months' retirement from the stage, Mrs. Vincent resumed her profession, and, with her husband, joined a company who were playing in Rochdale. She was engaged to play first chambermaid—a position in the theatre like the first soubrette of to-day, but one that she always filled more than acceptably.

ON THE ENGLISH STAGE.

HER CAREER THERE-ITS NOTABLE ASSOCIATIONS AND INCIDENTS.

RS. VINCENT'S first appearance at the theatre in Rochdale was in J. R. Planche's drama, "Charles the Twelfth," in which she played Endiga. One of the incidents connected with this appearance, is that the actor who was to play her father in the piece was very dissipated, and in order to be able, if necessary, to help him in a number of strong scenes they had together (as was not musual) she learned his entire part in twenty-four hours, in addition to her own. From Rockdale, the Vincents, with the rest of the company, went to Preston, and then to Manchester, where, at the Queen's Theatre, under the management of Harry Beverley, a brother of the celebrated scenic artist of London, William Beverley, they fulfilled a lengthy engagement, and while there played with a noted actor named Elton, the father of the Eltons who are known on the stage of today.

From Manchester, Mrs. Vincent went to Dublin to the Queen's Theatre, where she appeared under the manage. ment of Alexander Lee (he was later on joined by Beverley, her old manager). She made a decided sensation, it is said, owing to her vivacity and great versatility. This was in 1836 and the Christmas dinner which Mrs. Vincent ate in Dublin that year, she repeated ten years later, when fulfilling at the same theatre another engagement. From Dublin she went to Preston again, and several towns in Lancashire under Mr. Beverley's management, and subsequently appeared at Whitehaven and Ulverstone - remaining at the latter place three seasons under the management of a noted theatrical man in those days, named Martin, While fulfilling most of these engagements, Mrs. Vincent was accompanied by her husband, who played heavy business as well as low comedy roles, particularly well. From Ulverstone they went to Wexford, in Ireland, where the pair remained two seasons. During the engagement, in crossing one time from England to Ireland - a voyage occupying usually twelve hours—the vessel was overtaken by a fearful storm, and it was nearly a week before the passengers on board reached their destination, and not until havlng suffered the greatest deprivations owing to the limited supply of provisions and water.

Mrs. Vincent played some five or six weeks in Wexford, and then went to the Theatre Royal in Cork, where she played under the management of Paumier for a sea-on.

Mrs. Wood (formerly a Miss Paton, one of the most beautiful women on the stage in her day, and a very celebrated singer,) was playing a star engagement at the theatre in Cork when Mrs. Vincent joined the company, and in

RS. VINCENT'S first appearance at the theatre in Rochdale was in J. R. Planche's drama, "Charles Rochdale was in J. R. Planche's drama, "Charles the Twelfth," in which she played Endign. One of the Twelfth," in which she played Endign. One of the connected with this appearance, is that the who was to play her father in the piece was very dissipant of the played the Fairy Queen in "Cinderella," the light opera in which Mrs. Woodappeared. This lady by the way, was the wife of Lord William Lennox, but his brutal treatment drove his wife to seek a separation, and later a divorce, and then she married William Wood, a handsome, good-natured Yorkshirenan, who is said to have adored

While the Vincents were fulfilling their engagement in Cork the theatre was, on the very last night of the season, totally destroyed by fire; and it happened that the last lines at the close of the performance were spoken by Mr. Vincent.

From Cork they went to Whitehaven for a season under Paumier, and then to Shields, where they appeared under the management of old Mr. Beverley, the father of Harry Beverley, who had died a short time before. The Beverleys were noted theatrical managers at that time, and had a circuit taking a number of large towns, where their various attractions appeared during the season.

Shortly after this Mr. and Mrs. Vincent completed arrangements to appear in a series of light entertainments similar to those given by Mr. Buckstone and the handsome Mrs. Fitzwilliam, and in America in later years by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Paul. They went to Scotland, where they had a most disastrous failure, and finally closed their season and went to Edinburgh for a few days' rest and recreation prior to sailing from there for Liverpool. Their old friend, William Elton, was playing an engagement in Edinburgh at the time, but had engaged passage for Liverpool on the same vessel as the Vincents. A day or two before the boat was to sail, a favorite pet dog of Mrs. Vincent's was taken violently ill, and the day they were to leave Edinburgh the dog was so ill Mrs. Vincent refused to go on board the vessel with him. Mr. Vincent was strongly opposed to her remaining for the sake of a whim, as he thought it, but his wife persisted in not going on board to the very last moment, and the result was, the Pegasus, as the boat was called, sailed without them, but with Elton as one of the passengers. Alas! that was the last they ever saw of him. But when a few days out, the unfortunate ship was wrecked, and every soul on board lost. The Pegasus, strangely enough met her cruel fate almost on the same spot where the Farfarshire was lost, and from which wreck so many lives were saved by Grace Darling. Months after, with a scrap of paper in it, on which was written: "The vessel is sinking, and so are we, into eternity. God help us." Signed. " Elton."

The same night the Pegasus sailed the pet dog died, and Mrs. Vincent went next day to Glasgow for a short visit.

Soon after that they went a second time to Ireland and played an engagement in Balfast, but to very poor business. The superior attraction at the theatre was an American giant named Freeman, who was, later on, engaged as a special inducement to win the patronage of the public. The business became enormous, for the giant " was a huge success, and the manager, Thomas Cuuningham, who, a few weeks before, was hopelessly involved in debt, made enough money to extricate himself from his difficulties, and, most unusual proceeding, made a present of two weeks' extra salary to each member of his company. Following the glant, Edmund Kean and his wife (Ellen Tree) played a very successful engagement at the same theatre (the Royal), and it was during that engagement that Mr. Vincent played the Mock Duke, in "The Honeymoon," which Kean declared was the best played of any one he ever saw do the part. Afterward, Kean and Mr. Vincent grew to be great friends, and the latter and his wife frequently dined with the famous actor.

Later on, in Cork, the Vincents were supporting Sheridan Knowles, and the latter was so pleased with Vincent's acting one night, that he took him before the curtain, shook hands with him publicly, and thanked him for his efforts. These are some of the early honors shown Mr. Vincent that in after years his wife seemed to never weary of relating. To go back to the season that they were engaged as leading members of the stock company in Belfast the Vincents played with the celebrated comedian Buckstone and Mrs. Fitzwilliam, after the successful engagement of Edmund Kean and his wife had been finished. Mrs. Fitzwilliam was starring, and played the "The Child of the Regiment," and also in a farce. Mrs. Cunningham, the manager's wife, and Mrs. Vincent played the soubrette parts. One night, during the engagement of Mrs. Fitzwilliam and Buckstone, one of the members of the company (a -ister in-law of the manager) was indisposed, and Mrs. Fitzwilliam, fearing the piece might not go all right, spent three or four hours with her rehearsing several strong scenes they had together. At the end of that time the indisposition was too apparent for the actress to think of attempting to play it. Mrs. Vincent had been watching the little rehearsal, and Mrs. Fitzwilliam, happening to ascertain this fact, ordered her to play the part instead. Mrs. Vincent was astounded, but managed to be ready to obey orders that night, and to play the part so well as to receive a great many excellent notices for doing it. During the season they were playing at the Royal in Belfast, the night of a benefit given to Mr. Vincent, the since famous Agnes Robertson made her first appearance on the stage (excepting a few amateur concerts previously) and sung "To the fields I carried my milking can, On a May morning early - " a pretty little ballad much thought of in those days. Afterward she was engaged as a member of the stock company and played a sort of small star parts.

The following season, 1845, Mrs. Vincent and her husband joined the company at the Queen's Theatre in Dublin, where, shortly after, Mr. Vincent had some difficulty with the stage manager, and severed his connection soon after, her husband went to Liverpool to accept an engagement. While at the Queen's Theatre in Dublin, Agnes Robertson, who was also a member of the company at that time, played in a number of pieces with Mrs. Vincent. The latter during that season was the original Tilly Slowboy in "The Cricket on the Hearth," which was then brought out, a version having been done by a Mr. Harris, the stage manager. Early in the spring, Mrs. Vincent finished the season, and soon after went to Liverpool to join her husband and to play in an annual benefit for the widows and children of the "licensed victuallers" at the Theatre Royal. Not long after this benefit the regular season opened with "Romeo and Juliet" as the announced attraction. The beautiful Helen Faucit (Now Lady Martin, and the author of some delightful papers on Shakespeare's herolnes, which she has written since her retirement from the stage), was to play Juliet, Mr. Creswick, Romeo, and Mr. Conway (Lillian and Minnie Conway's father), Mercutio. Almost on the eve of the production, the actress who was to play the nurse was taken ill, and Mrs. Vincent was asked to take her place. Miss Faucit sent to Mrs. Vincent to rehearse some of their scenes together. Apropos of this meeting, Mrs. Vincent once said to the writer of this sketch;

"I shall never forget how she appeared to me. She wore a plaid gown and looked very haggard and worn. she was extremely tall and slender, and had just recovered from a severe illness."

When the celebrated actress saw Mrs. Vincent she de clared such a child could not play the nurse. It was absurd for the manager to ask a mere novice do it, and the great actress ended by telling the younger one to go home. Mrs. Vincent prepared to obey, when suddenly Miss Faucit called her back, and in the end, gave her some valuable advice. At the rehearsal the next day Mrs. Vincent mumbled her lines and half laughed and danced through the part, to Miss Faucit's despair, who went to Addison, the manager (the father, by the way, of Mrs. H. M. Pitt, nee Fanny Addison), and told him she should not sleep a bit that night for the worry she had about the way the nurse was going to be played. Then she asked Mrs. Vincent if she made up young or old, and when the latter said she did not know - her husband always made up her face-Miss Faucit was more bewildered than ever. Finally the night came, and Mrs. Vincent played the nurse in such a delightfully quaint fashlon that all the papers praised her highly the next day. As for Miss Fauclt, she was so enraptured she caught hold and embraced her in the wings, and told her she looked like a picture, and had acted heautifully. During that season Mrs. Vincent played leading roles in every play in which Miss Faucit appeared, and was billed all the season with her. During the same season Charlotte Cushman and her sister played an engagement in Liverpool at the Christian Street Theatre, and opened their season with "Romeo and Juliet."

Among the plays in which Mrs. Vincent appeared with Miss Faucit, in which she was suddenly called upon one day to do a different role at a few hours' notice, was the Widow Melnotte instead of Mme Deschapelies. The lady who played the widow was ill, and Mrs. Creswick, who was sent for to appear as the widow, sent word she could not play it, but would play Mme. Deschapelles. Thereupon the manager told Mrs. Vincent to learn the part of the widow and be ready to do it that same evening. James Anderson, (a famous leading man in those days, and the with the company. Mrs. Vincent, however, remained, and | original Chevaller de Mauprat in "Richelieu," which was produced first at the Covent Garden Theatre, London, March 7, 1839), played Claude, and when he learned who was to play the widow (his mother) he was inclined to snub her efforts, and in his first scenes with her appeared very unresponsive. When she spoke the lines, "My son, thou hast acted ill," she drew his head down and kissed him, while her eyes were filled with tears. From that moment the actor warmed up and played his best in their scenes together, and when, later on, he met her in the wings, he caught her up in his arms and said: " What a jolly old brick you are." From that day Anderson was one of her most devoted and faithful friends.

The season of '56-'57 after Miss Faucit had finished her most triumphant engagement, the famous Buckstone and Mrs. Fitzwilliam began a short season at the Royal, and opened in "Green Bushes." An incident that happened on the opening night brought Mrs. Vincent into prominent notice. The lady who played Geraldine fainted in the first scene, and was unable to finish the part. Addison, the manager, came up to Mrs. Vincent's room and said she must dress and play the rest of the part or the plece would be a failure. "But I have no dress here that will do," she said, "and besides I don't know a word of the dialogue." "Never mind the lines, go on with your book," he replied. "As for . the dress, I will have the clothes taken off that girl, and you get into them as quickly as you can."

The result was, she went on the stage in just seven minules, and read her first scene from the book, but finished the piece without it, having learned the remainder of the part between the different scenes. When the curtain fell at the close of the play, Mrs. Vincent went into hysterics brought on by the unusual mental strain. Charles Matthews and Mme. Vestris were in one of the stage-boxes, and after the performance they came into her dressing room, and Mme. Vestris embraced her and said she had acted nobly.

In after years, when recalling some of her pleasant experiences with Mme. Vestris, Mrs. Vincent related the manner in which she first met the famous actress. This artist, by the way, had the reputation of being exceedingly disagreeable with her fellow-members of the theatrical profession, and one of her peculiarities was to always appear so closely veiled that people said she would not allow her face to be seen off the stage because it had been enamelled.

It was at a rehearsal in the theatre in Liverpool that Mrs. Vincent first saw Mme. Vestris. "She was dressed," says Mrs. Vincent, "in a rich brown silk costume, with a white India shawl about her shoulders, that had a deep border in oriental colors around it. A Tuscan straw bonnet trimmed with wheat and loops of ribbon, light, well-fitting gloves, and a thick white vell, through the hem of which satin ribbon was run as was the style in those days, completed her tollet." She was sitting near the prompter's table, with one arm resting upon it, when the manager brought Mrs. Vincent to the distinguished actress and introduced her. Mme. Vestris held out her hand and said: "How do you do, my dear?" "As she sat for some moments still retaining my hand, she pushed her bonnet back and with her other hand drew the thick veil aside, and as she dld so, the bonnet and veil fell and disclosed the most beautiful face I ever saw," said Mrs. Vincent. The day was very warm, and Mme. Vestris made some remark about the heat, and then she spoke of the part Mrs. Vincent was to play, and made one or two suggestions, and then, leaning forward and still retaining her hand, she said to the younger actress: - "Would you let any one teach you a few little things in regard to your acting?" "It depends upon who it was," said Mrs. Vincent. "Would you let me?" "Oh! madame, I would be only to proud to learn anything from you!" Mrs. Vincent exclaimed, breathlessly. "I have always loved and admired you from hearsay, and you make me do so a hundred times more by your kindly interest in me." Mme. Vestris was afterward as good as her word, and in more ways than one, was of the greatest service to her little friend.

At the first performance by Charles Matthews and Mme. Vestris, Mrs. Vincent opened the piece, and during their entire engagement appeared with them in every play in their starring repertoire.

Following them, Aldrich, the once celebrated colored tragedian, played a very successful engagement, and Mrs. Vincent and her husband played leading support also with

At about this period in her career, Mrs. Vincent and her husband received several offers to come to America, and Mr. Vincent was particularly anxious to accept one of them, but was undecided what to do, as Edmund Kean was making arrangements to have a theatre of his own the next season in London, and was anxious to have Mr. and Mrs. Vincent become members of his stock company.

DEPARTURE FOR AMERICA.

FIRST APPEARANCE AT THE OLD NATIONAL IN BOSTON.

DMUND KEAN'S plans, however, were in such an unsettled condition that Mrs. Vincent in the meantime began seriously considering an offer made them by an American manager, a Mr. Pelby, early in the autumn of 1846. This Mr. Pelby, perhaps it is unnecessary to state, was at that time the manager of the old National Theatre in Boston. The result of these considerations ended in Mr. and Mrs. Vincent engaging their passage on the old steamship Britannia, the famous vessel that Dickens immortalized in "American Notes." They sailed from Liverpool the 21st of October, and after a most tem-Saturday, Nov. 7, 1846. During this voyage the gales were so severe, the commander of the Britannia, Capt. Hewet, did not eat one meal below or find time to have one night's sleep with his boots and clothing off. Arriving in Boston, Mrs. Vincent was met by her manager, who unfolded a scheme to star them for four weeks. This, however, they positively refused to do, as they were engaged to become members of the stock company, and to do this, after appearing as stars would injure their professional reputation. It was finally arranged to the mutual satisfaction of every one, however, and it was decided that they would make their debut in the farce, "Popping the Question," with the following cast

The farce was to be presented after the principal bill of the evening, on the night of Wednesday, Nov. 11. A Mr. Eddy was playing a sort of star engagement at the theatre at the time, and there was no parts for them in his play, a In Boston, and including in addition to the ones already melodrama of the most harrowing description, hence their first appearance in the farce. Of the people who appeared in the piece with them upon that occasion, it is a singular fact that none of the cast are now living. Mrs. Kinlock, the mother of Mrs. John Drew, and the grand-mother of Mr. John Drew of Daly's Theatre, (N. Y.) and Mrs. Georgie Drew Barryn.ore, was, up to three years ago, the only surviving member of this memorable bill that served to introduce to a Boston audlence Mrs. Vincent, except the dear old lady herself. Mrs. Vincent survived Mrs. Kinfock but a few months. Of the others in that east Mr. Keach was. Old National Theatre and then signed an agreement wherelater on, the manager of the Museum, and was eventually by they were members of the stock company there for succeeded by Mr. Field. Mrs. Alternas was a favorite soubrette in her day, and Miss Mestayer was the mother of stars played engagements at the National and among those opening piece, "The Wizard of the Wave," there were a number of them whose names have long been familiar to old Boston play goers, such as George Graham, a favorite comedian and the father of Mrs. Clifton Tayleure; James Duan, who was afterward at the Museum for many years; J. A. Smith, the great fop, also at the Museum, and said to be the best Sir Frederick Blount and Benjamin Backbite on the stage. He is now an inmate of the Forrest Home, Then there was Spear, long famous as the representative sir Peter Teazle; a Mr. Paultin, the father of the comic opera singer, Miss Louise Paullin, and Mrs. Woodward, pestuous voyage of seventeen days arrived in Boston on afterward Mrs. E. F. Stewart, who was for many years an intimate friend of Mrs. Vincent.

Regarding Mrs. Vincent's visit to America, it is said that she so disliked the country, the town, and every one she met upon her arrival that she begged her husband to send her back to England on the first steamer that sailed from Boston. He promised to do so, if she would play the week out, which she consented to do. The next week she consented upon his solicitation to remain another week, and so it went on from week to week, and month to month, until she at last grew to care for the people of Boston, and to find herself enseenced in return so safely in their affections, that an estrangement never occurred until the day she peacefully closed her eyes upon this city in the new world that loved .Mr. J. R. Vincent and knew her so long and well.

Following their memorable American debut on the evening of November 11, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent next anpeared in "Lend Me Five Shillings" on the succeeding Monday evening. On Thursday night of the same week, they appeared in "How Do You Manage?" Then in rapid succession "Poor Pillicody," "Box and Cox" and a number of English farces and old English comedies. The stock company at the old National was one of the best ever known mentioned, such people as William Wheatly, Helen Mathews and her father, Mrs. Anderson, a daughter of the manager under whom the Vincents had appeared in England, and Miss Mestayer, who was a neice of the manager's wife; also Louise Gann, who was afterward leading lady at the Boston Theatre. Mrs. Pelby, the manager's wife, was the leading lady at the National, and Thomas Barry, whose wife was afterward so long the leading lady at the Boston Theatre, was the stage manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent completed their first season at the several seasons. During that time a number of notable William Mestayer Of the people who appeared in the whom Mrs. Vincent played with in support were Charlotte

Cushman, James Anderson, Dan Marble (the husband of one of William Warren's sisters) James Wallack, James Murdock and the beautiful Mrs. Hunt, who afterwards became Mrs. John Drew.

Early in the summer of 1850 a sad break was caused in Mrs. Vincent's life by the somewhat sudden death of her husband, which occurred June 11. Just two weeks preceding Mr. Vincent's death, Mr. Pelby, the manager of the National Theatre, died, and Mrs. Pelby at once assumed the reins of management, but resigned them the following Beason when Mr. Thos. Barry, who represented a syndicate of gentlemen, succeeded to the management. Mr. Barry made a good deal of money for himself as well as for the association he represented, during the two seasons he was connected with the Theatre, which was, by the way, until the famous old structure was destroyed by fire in May, 1852.

The last performance that took place in the old National prior to its burning, was the "School for Scandal," in which Mrs. Sinclair and George Vandenhoff were starring, and also an after-piece, "The Rough Diamond," a one act play that Miss Rosina Vokes now appears in with such sparkling success. Catherine Sinclair was the Lady Teazle, George Vandenhoff the Charles Surface, J. J. Prior the Joseph Surface, George Spear the Sir Peter, and Mrs. Vincent the Lady Sneerwell in "The School for Scandal." It was a memorable performance, and one long remembered after the old National Theatre was a thing of the past. The theatre was burned on Tuesday, and the next day the company moved down to the old Federal Street Theatre and finished out the week there, ending with a matinée performance on Saturday. On the same evening Mrs. Vincent played at an extra performance given by the Aurora Dramatic Club, a popular amateur organization at that time. The piece played by them was called "Michael Earl," and was the last performance ever given in the theatre, as on the following Monday, the owners of the building commenced tearing it down, and singularly enough, it happened that Mrs. Vincent thus assisted in ending the career of two once famous old-time Boston theatres in one week.

FIRST APPEARANCE AT THE BOSTON MUSEUM.

77 ND now the reader of this sketch approaches the time | miral Kingston, Mr. Keach as Lieut. Kingston, J. P. Price of Mrs. Vincent's first connection with the Boston Museum. Just prior to the burning of the National Theatre, Mrs. Vincent had signed a contract to become a member of the Museum Company the following autumn. Her last season at the National was not at an end for several weeks when the theatre burned, and the next day she went up to the Museum to interview Mr. Moses Kimball, the manager of the favorite home of Boston amusement goers, and ascertain if there was any possibility of her joining the company then. While the manager explained he would be pleased to add her at once to the company, still, as there was no vacancy, and the salary list of the theatre was already sufficiently large, he did not see how he could oblige

Mrs. Vincent, although naturally disappointed, assured him she felt he was right, and, with mutual expressions of good will, they separated. The same afternoon and but a few hours later, Mrs. Vincent was walking along Tremont row, when she met Mr. Warren, who stopped and congratulated her upon her forthcoming appearance the next Monday at the Museum. He was the first to tell her the good news, which, upon her arrival at her home was happly confirmed by a communication from Manager Rimball. The manner in which Mrs. Vincent became a member of the Museum Company was as uncommon as the manner in which the arrangements for her first appearance there were conducted, she was wont to say in after years. Among her great friends and admirers, however, at this time were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leonard (the former afterward rebuilt the National Theatre), who were also intimate friends of Moses Kimball, and it was through this Mr. Leonard, that Mrs. Vincent was finally engaged at the Museum. Mr. Kimball had long before, though, expressed a strong admiration for Mrs. Vincent's abilities, and had once said to Mr. Vincent. the second or third season after they arrived in America, that whenever they thought of leaving Mr. Pelby to let him (Mr. Kimball) know-

The Monday following the burning of the National and closing of the Federal Street Theatre, Mrs. Vincent made her first appearance on the boards of the theatre with which her name was for so many years thereafter associated, The performance was a benefit to Mr. E. F. Keach and included "three excellent pieces" with "Mr. Warren in three favorite characters," as the programme had it of that date, which was Monday evening, May 10, 1852.

Mrs. Vincent made her first bow to a Museum audience in the "Elegant Comedy, called Naval Engagements," and played Mrs. Pontifex, while Mr. Warren appeared as Adas Dennis, Mr. Bradley as Short, and Miss Mortimer as Mrs. Thoman.

From that time up to the day of her death, with the exception of one season -1861-'62 - when, having had some misunderstanding with Mr. Keach she left the Museum Company to join the stock forces at the Howard Athenæum, Mrs. Vincent was one of the most valued and most beloved members of the Boston Museum Company.

The single season that she appeared with the Howard Athenaum stock company was in many respects a notable one, although as it was during the war and in the midst of very depressing times, the company disbanded before the season had been more than half concluded.

Such a company probably has not since then been assoriated together - a company that included such well-known actors and actresses as Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Davenport, Lawrence Barrett, Charles Barron, W. J. Lemoyne, W. H. Smith, Lucille Western, Fanule and Blanche Davenport, Isabella Freeman and Mrs. Vincent.

After the disbanding of this remarkable organization at the Howard, Mrs. Vincent went to Baltimore and joined Lucille Western's newly organized company, where she was the original Corney Carlyle with her in " East Lynne." From Baltimore she went to Washington to play the Widow Melnotte with Edwin Forrest in "Lady of Lyons." Forrest was so pleased with her acting during that engagement, that he took her before the curtain with him, an honor he seldom paid a fellow artist. From Washington Mrs. Vincent returned to Boston and played for several weeks at the Boston Theatre in an equestrian drama called "The Cataract of the Ganges" - Mrs. Vincent appearing as Yubia. After that she fulfilled a brief engagement with the Wallack-Davenport combination, and at the long to-be-remembered benefit of Thomas Barry, she made one of a remarkable cast that played in "The Poor Gentleman." The other characters in the presentation were played by E. L. Davenport, James W. Wallack, John Gilbert, Thomas Barry, John Owens, William Wheatly, Charles Barron, Mrs. Barrow, Julia Irving and Sophia Gimber. This benefit ended the senson of '61-'62. The next season she rejoined the Museum company, and never again wandered from its

For more than thirty-five years, with the exception of the season already mentioned, Mrs. Vincent was associated with the Museum, it will be seen. During that time she saw many changes in Boston's theatrical history, and yet her loyalty to the theatre that soon became as a home to her. never swerved.

MRS. VINCENT'S GOLDEN JUBILEE.

of Mrs. Vincent's professional career, as well as her association with the Boston Museum, was the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of her first appear. ance on any stage, which took place with great celat at the Museum on Saturday, April 25, 1885. Two performances were given with Mrs. Vincent as Mrs. Hardcastle in the afternoon bill, when "She Stoops to Conquer" was presented, and as Mrs. Malaprop in "The Rivals" at the evening performance. Of her delightful impersonation of the latter character, it is said that Mr. William D. Howells once told Mrs. Vincent that it was one of the misfortunes of Sherldan's life that he did not live to witness her acting as Mrs. Malaprop.

On the afternoon and evening of her "golden jubilee," the dear old lady was several times almost overcome at the great storm of applicase that greeted her appearance on the Museum stage. She stood in the midst of huge floral offerings that had been grouped about the stage as well as handed over the footlights, and made over and over again that quaint little courtesy, so familiar to all habitues of the famous old play-house. She knew then how warm a place she held in the hearts of Boston theatre-goers, and her face glowed with the love she felt for them in return.

Of her private life during these years the only incident of note in her career was her marriage in the autumn of 1853 to Mr. John Wilson, who was afterward a member of the Museum company, where he remained until 1866. Rev. Rollin H. Neal, a popular clergyman of the day, performed the marriage ceremony. Some years later this union proved to be a very unfortunate one. Mr. Wilson died in 1881.

Probably no theatre in this or any other country has witnessed the development of so many bright lights in the dramatic firmament as has the Boston Museum, and of these stars Mrs. Vincent was wont during her life to speak more interestingly than many actors are in the habit of doing, while her fund of pleasant reminiscences of them and their art was abundant indeed. Among those who appeared upon the Museum stage with her in years gone by were such stars as Mrs. George Barrett, Henry Sedley, Julia Barrow, Lysander Thompson, Eliza Logan, Caroline Richings, Henry Wallack, Mrs. D. W. Waller, E. L. Davenport, Agnes Robertson, Emiline Raymond, C. W. Couldock, Mrs. Charles Howard, Mrs. George Farren, James W. Wallace, George Vandenhoff, Janet Combs, Barry Sulitvan, Mrs. John Hoey, Joseph Proctor, Charles Dillon, Edward Sothern, (who played Dundreary at the Museum for the first time in

ITHOUT doubt, one of the most interesting episodes | 1861), Kate Bateman, John Wilkes Booth, Mary Provost, Mrs. John Drew, Frank Chanfrau, Charlotte Thompson, Lucille Western, Carlotta Leclercq, and Lucy Rushton, many of whom are long since dead; and of late years John McCullough, Modjeska, Lawrence Barrett, Frank Mayo, Lotta, Rose Eytinge, Boucleault, Stuart Robson, John Gil. bert, Harry Montague, Charles Coghlan, Rhea and Richard

With all these well-known stars Mrs. Vincent has been associated in support. She has seen great actors come and go and new comers take their places, and under her eyes such actors and actresses as Louise Meyer, Fannie Marsh, Nate Salsbury, Charles R. Thorne, Lawrence Barrett, Joseph Whiting, Frank Hardenberg, Ada Gilman, Fanny Morant and others, develop into prominent footlight favorites from inferior positions once held in the stock company of the old Boston Museum. As an actress, Mrs. Vincent's career was a wonderfully successful one, and as a woman, her life was ever one to command the most universal respect and regard. She played all kinds of parts, and such widely varied ones as Portia, in "Shylock"; Nancy Sykes, in "Oliver Twist"; "Moll Pitcher"; Mrs. Malaprop, in "The Rivals"; Amelia, in "Othello"; Queen Gertrude, in "Hamlet"; Queen Elizabeth, in "Richard III."; Helen McGregor, in "Rob Roy"; Mrs. Sternhold, in "Still Waters Run Deep"; Widow Racket, In "Belle's Stratagem," and Helen in the "Hunchback." All the above roles are exactly opposite to the parts she was usually seen in during the later years of her life at the Museum. Years that are still remembered by many a Boston play-goer and will be for a decade or two to come.

It is now verging upon three years since the "dear old lady" passed from this into another unknown world. Her death, which occurred on Sunday morning, Sept. 4, 1887, was the direct result of a stroke of apoplexy, with which she was stricken down at her home in Charles Street, in Boston, on the preceding Thursday. On Friday, she received another shock, accompanied by a partial paralysis, which deprived her of the power of speech, though she was possessed of all other faculties up to the hour of her death On Monday she sustained a fall, due, doubtless, to vertigo or apoplexy. She was attended by Drs. E. L. Parks and F. A. Harris, who did all in their power to prolong a life dear to a large circle of friends.

Her funeral took place on Tuesday morning, Sept. 6, at eleven o'clock, at St. Paul's Church in Tremont Street, and hundreds of the friends she had known in life, as well as those who knew her only as the beloved and popular actress, were at the church to catch a last glimpse of her familiar features.

The old stone structure with its classical Ionic columns. that is so familiar to Boston dwellers, was filled in every part. The aisles, the entryways, the gallery stairs and even the spaces about the chancel rail, were crowded by people who were content to find only standing room. By the time the service had begun, it was necessary to close the gates at the sidewalk so great was the rush to enter the edifice. It was a remarkable fact that the great majority of those who came to pay the last tribute of respect to the deceased actress knew her simply as one who had given them many pleasant hours of amusement and entertainment, or in other words, those who view the stage from the auditorium, and not those who were associated with Mrs. Vincent in her professional life. There were few theatrical people present, except those who are and have been connected with the Museum company.

The remains were carried into the church a few minutes after 11 o'clock. They were met at the door of the main ben Kidder of St. Andrew's Church and Rev. George A. Strong, assistant pastor of St. Paul's. From the moment the officiating clergyman chanted the words, "I am the resurrection and the life," until the last words of the beautiful and impressive Episcopal service were said, the great audience listened with the most reverential attention, and in that vast throng there were few eyes that shed no tears, There was no word of eulogy spoken and no departure from the accustomed service. The following hymns were sung by the Weber quartet: "Nearer My God, to Thee," "Hark! Hark! My Soul," " Abide with Me," and the chant, "Lord, let me know mine end, and the number of my

There was no floral display. It was Mrs. Vincent's earnest request that there should be none, and whatever floral offerings had been sent to her home were dispatched immediately to the hospitals. Three branches of palm rested upon the coffin, placed there by Mr. William Wainwright, an intimate friend.

The pall-bearers were R. M. Field, William Wainwright, Fred White and J. B. Richardson. The whole company and all the attaches of the Boston Museum were present, twenty-four pews having been reserved for their accommodation in the main aisle. Mr. William Warren, who was away visiting Joseph Jefferson, was unable to be present, much to his regret as well as the friends of both these beloved Museum favorites. The interment of Mrs. Vincent took place at Mt. Auburn.

When the remains were taken from the church, Tremont Street was literally packed with people. Even the Tremont Street mall of the Common was crowded with curious spectators, who watched the long funeral cortege wend its way to the beautiful city of the dead where now repose so many of Boston's once illustrious men and women, and where aisle by the clergymen in charge of the services, Rev. He shall so hear the solemn hymn that Death Has lifted up for all, that he shall go To his long resting-place without a tear."

CHRISTOPHER TYE (1508-1570)

O come ye servants of the Lord; And praise His holy Name. From early morn to setting sun, His might on earth proclaim.

His laws are just, and glad the heart;
He makes His mercies known:
Ye princes come, ye people too,
And bow before His throne.

THOMAS TALLIS (1520-1585)

If ye love Me, keep My commandments, and I will pray the Father, and He shall give you another Comforter, that He may abide with you forever, even the Spirit of Truth.

> GLORY to Thee, my God this night, For all the blessings of the light; Keep me, O keep me, King of kings, Under Thine own Almighty wings.

Forgive me, Lord, for Thy dear Son, The ills that I this day have done; That with the world, myself, and Thee, I, ere I sleep, at peace may be.

[To be sung by all present.]

TEACH me to live, that I may dread The grave as little as my bed; Teach me to die that so I may Triumphing rise at the last day.

ORLANDO GIBBONS (1583-1625)

Almighty and everlasting God, mercifully look upon our infirmities, and in all our dangers and necessities stretch forth Thy right hand to help and defend us, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

HENRY PURCELL (1658-1695)

REJOICE in the Lord alway and again I say, rejoice. Let your moderation be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand. Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Jesus Christ our Lord.

WILLIAM CROFT (1677-1727)

Thou art about my path, and about my bed; and spiest out all my ways.

For lo, there is not a word in my tongue but Thou, O

Lord, knowest it altogether.

Whither shall I go then from Thy Spirit? or whither shall I go then from Thy presence?

If I climb up into heaven, Thou art there; if I go down to hell. Thou art there also.

If I take the wings of the morning, and remain in the uttermost parts of the sea;

Even there also shall Thy hand lead me, and Thy right hand shall hold me.

[To be sung by all present.]

THE Son of God goes forth to war,
A kingly crown to gain;
His blood-red banner streams afar,
Who follows in His train?

A noble army—men and boys,

The matron and the maid;

Around the Saviour's throne rejoice,
In robes of light arrayed.

WILLIAM BOYCE (1710-1779)

IF I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning.

If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; yea, if I prefer not Jerusalem in my mirth.

Remember the children of Edom, O Lord, in the day of Jerusalem, how they said, Down with it, even to the ground.

O Daughter of Babylon, wasted with misery; yea, happy shall he be that rewardeth thee as thou hast served us.

THOMAS ATTWOOD (1765-1838)

TURN Thy face from my sins, and put out all my misdeeds. Make me a clean heart, O God! and renew a right spirit within me. Cast me not away from Thy presence, and take not Thy Holy Spirit from me.

JOHN GOSS (1800-1880)

The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom like the rose.

It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing: the glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon; they shall see the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God.

Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees.

Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompense; He will come and save you.

Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.

Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert.

And a highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called The way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those: the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein.

No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereon, it shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there:

And the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away. AMEN.

Selections from "Harvest Cantata."

Recitatibe.

AND thou shalt observe the feast of weeks, even of the first-fruits of wheat harvest. After thou hast gathered in from thy threshing-floor, and thou shalt rejoice in thy feast.

Chorus.

Come, let us keep our harvest feast
With thanksgiving of the best
As our first-fruits unto God.
That which in the field we'd sown
In the spring-time, when the sod
Our ploughs upturned, has waxed and grown,
In the sunshine and the rain,
From tender blade to ripened grain;
And we have reaped, and we have stored;
So let us give unto the Lord,
That all our labors so hath blessed,
A thankful offering of the best.

Liccitatibe.

Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings Thou hast perfected praise.

Chant of Maidens and Children.

THE flowers that are fairest in beauty and bloom, The flowers that are rarest in hue and perfume, From the field and the garden we bring here to-day In their bloom and their beauty with praises to lay.

Lilies as pure and as white as the snow;
"Consider the lilies," said Christ, "how they grow;
Not Solomon's self on his throne could compare,
In his glory arrayed, with those lilies so fair."

Roses, the song-theme of poet and seer. In their richness and brightness we offer up here, Types of the love of the bride and bridegroom, Whose coming the desert as roses made bloom.

Then be not o'er-careful for raiment or food,
For God shall supply what is needful and good,
Who clotheth the field with its herbage and flowers
And blesseth the earth with His sunshine and showers.

Diccitative.

WHILE the earth remaineth, seed-time and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease.

Chant of Old Men.

While the earth remaineth,
So the Lord ordaineth,
Seed-time, harvest, heat and cold,
Spring, summer, winter as of old
Shall return and never cease,
And still the earth shall yield her fruits' increase.

So hath it been from time of yore,
So shall it be for evermore.
As our fathers did, we do,
So shall our children's children too,
Plough and sow, and reap secure,
And praise the Lord, whose mercy doth endure.
Hallelujah! Amen.

[To be sung by all present.]

From all that dwell below the skies, Let the Creator's praise arise; Let the Redeemer's name be sung Through every land, by every tongue.

Eternal are Thy mercies, Lord;
Eternal truth attends Thy word:
Thy praise shall sound from shore to shore,
Till suns shall rise and set no more. AMEN.

Hymn 138. Holy, Holy, Holy!

[Nicaea.]

TOLY, holy, holy! Lord God Almighty!
Early in the morning our song shall rise to Thee:
Holy, holy, holy! merciful and mighty!
God in Three Persons, blessed Trinity!

Holy, holy, holy! All the saints adore Thee,
Casting down their golden crowns around the glassy sea;
Cherubim and scraphim falling down before Thee,
Which wert, and art, and evermore shalt be.

Holy, holy! though the darkness hide Thee,
Though the eye of sinful man Thy glory may not see,
Only Thou art holy; there is none beside Thee
Perfect in power, in love, and purity.

Holy, holy, holy! Lord God Almighty!
All Thy works shall praise Thy Name, in earth, and sky, and sea:
Holy, holy, holy! merciful and mighty!
God in Three Persons, blessed Trinity!

Hymn 141. The God of Abraham.

[Leoni.]

THE God of Abraham praise,
Who reigns enthroned above,
Ancient of everlasting days,
And God of love:
Jehovah, great I AM,
By earth and heaven confess'd;
I bow and bless the sacred Name,
For ever bless'd.

The God of Abraham praise,
At Whose supreme command
From earth I rise, and seek the joys
At His right hand:
I all on earth forsake,
Its wisdom, fame, and power;
And Him my only portion make,
My shield and tower.

He by Himself hath sworn,
I on His oath depend,
I shall, on angel-wings upborne,
To heaven ascend:
I shall behold His face,
I shall His power adore,
And sing the wonders of His grace
For evermore.

There dwells the Lord, our King,
The Lord, our righteousness,
Triumphant o'er the world and sin,
The Prince of Peace;
On Sion's sacred height
His kingdom He maintains,
And, glorious with His saints in light,
For ever reigns.

The God Who reigns on high
The great archangels sing;
And "Holy, holy, holy," cry,
"Almighty King,
Who was, and is the same,
And evermore shall be;
Jehovah, Father, great I AM,
We worship Thee."

The whole triumphant host
Give thanks to God on high;
Hail, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,
They ever cry:
Hail, Abraham's God and mine,
I join the heavenly lays;
All might and majesty are Thine,
And endless praise.

O forth, ye heralds, in My Name, Sweetly the Gospel trumpet sound; The glorious jubilee proclaim, Where'er the human race is found.

The joyful news to all impart,
And teach them where salvation lies;
With care bind up the broken heart,
And wipe the tears from weeping eyes,

Be wise as serpents, where you go,
But harmless as the peaceful dove;
And let your heaven-taught conduct show
That ye're commission'd from above.

Freely from Me ye have received,
Freely, in love, to others give;
Thus shall your doctrines be believed,
And, by your labors, sinners live.

To Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,
The God Whom earth and heaven adore,
Be glory, as it was of old.
Is now, and shall be evermore. AMEN.

PRAISE the Lord, all ye nations, praise Him, all ye people. For His merciful kindness is great toward us, and the truth of the Lord endureth for ever.

AY not up for yourselves treasures upon earth; where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven; where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal.—St. Matt. vi: 19, 20.

Not every one that saith unto Me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the Kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the Will of My Father which is in heaven.—St. Matt. vii: 21.

While we have time, let us do good unto all men; and especially unto them that are of the household of faith.—Gal. vi: 10.

Charge them who are rich in this world, that they be ready to give, and glad to distribute; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may attain eternal life.—1 Tim. vi: 17, 18, 19.

Hymn 176. The Son of God.

[All Saints.]

THE Son of God goes forth to war,
A kingly crown to gain;
His blood-red banner streams afar:
Who follows in His train?
Who best can drink His cup of woe,
Triumphant over pain,
Who patient bear His cross below—
He follows in His train.

The martyr first, whose cagle eye
Could pierce beyond the grave,
Who saw His Master in the sky,
And call'd on Him to save:
Like him, with pardon on his tongue,
In midst of mortal pain,
He pray'd for them that did the wrong:
Who follows in His train?

A glorious band, the chosen few,
On whom the Spirit came:
Twelve valiant saints, their hope they knew,
And mock'd the cross and flame:
They met the tyrant's brandish'd steel,
The lion's gory mane;
They bow'd their necks the death to feel:
Who follows in their train?

A noble army, men and boys,
The matron and the maid,
Around the Saviour's throne rejoice,
In robes of light array'd:
They climb'd the steep ascent of heaven
Through peril, toil, and pain:
O God! to us may grace be given
To follow in their train!

Hymn 187. For all the Saints.

[Sarum.]

FOR all the saints, who from their labors rest
Who Thee by faith before the world confess'd,
Thy Name, O Jesus, be forever bless'd.

Thou wast their rock, their fortress, and their might; Thou, Lord, their Captain in the well-fought fight; Thou, in the darkness drear, the Light of light.

Alleluia.

O may Thy soldiers, faithful, true, and bold, Fight as the saints who nobly fought of old, And win, with them, the victor's crown of gold.

Alleluia.

O blest Communion, fellowship divine! We feebly struggle, they in glory shine; Yet all are one in Thee, for all are Thine.

Alleluia.

And when the strife is fierce, the warfare long, Steals on the ear the distant triumph-song, And hearts are brave again, and arms are strong.

Alleluia.

The golden evening brightens in the west; Soon, soon to faithful warriors comes the rest; Sweet is the calm of Paradise the bless'd.

Alleluia.

But lo! there breaks a yet more glorious day; The saints triumphant rise in bright array; The King of Glory passes on His way.

Alleluia.

From earth's wide bounds, from ocean's farthest coast, Through gates of pearl streams in the countless host, Singing to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,

Alleluia.

Dear Sir:

You are respectfully invited to be present at a meeting to be held in Christ Church, Boston, on Wednesday, April 18, 1894, at 8 o'clock P. M., commemorative of the hanging out of the lanterns from the belfry of the church, April 18, 1775, as a signal to warn the Patriots of the expedition of the royal troops to Lexington and Concord.

An early answer is desired.

Very respectfully,

HENRY WALKER, Chairman of Committee.

Christ Church, Boston.

Meeting commemorative of the hanging out of the lanterns from the belfry of Christ Church, Boston, by Robert Newman, on the night of April 18, 1775, which signalled to the patriots in the country the expedition of the royal troops to Lexington and Concord for the purpose of destroying the munitions of war stored there by the Committee of Public Safety. At the close of the meeting the church bells, placed in the belfry in 1744, will be rung for the first time for over half a century, in the old English way, instead of chimed.

Thy name I love;
I love thy rocks and rills,
Thy woods and templed hills;

Organ Finale.

At the close of the exercises, two lighted lanterns will be carried through the church to the belfry, by Charles Downer, Sexton, followed by members of the Old Colony Guild of Bell-Ringers. Is not that the lesson of Christ Church today? I care nothing about your peal of bells. I am not quite sure that that is historically true. It may be an innovation, an imitation. I am not here to favor imitations. I am here, consecrated to the service of the commonwealth, to the new country, to the country of new thought, of progress,

I don't know whether the bells rung out in the way vou propose to ring them tonight. If it is a reiteration, if it is a true repetition, well and good. If it is an innovation, and is an improvement, well and good. I don't believe in imitation, unless it is improvement. The old bells may ring—"ring out the false, ring in the true." We know that the lanterns shone out. Let them shine out against tyranny, against everything false; but be careful, don't go back, go forward. Let there be the true spirit of the commonwealth, which asks nothing of anybody, unless which asks nothing of anybody, unless it is best in law, in government, in

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore spoke briefly and read a short letter, received from

Rev. John S. Lindsay was the last speaker of the evening. As a Virginian he spoke briefly of the historical fact that Jamestown was settled before Plymouth, that Virginia was an older commonwealth than Mayurchusetticulus. commonwealth than Massachusetts, and that Patrick Henry and Washington were as ardent patriots as any Massachusetts men. The battle of Yorktown, he said, was a very important one. He was loudly and frequently applauded.

A pleasing incident in connection with the occasion was the presence of the gentleman of whom Dr. Holmes wrote: There was a young man of most excellent pith; l'ate tried to conceal him by calling him Smith.

He was none other than Rev. S. F He was none other than Rev. S. F. Smith, the author of "America." He was modestly seated in one of the front pews, and was leaving the church before the conclusion of the services, when Col. Walker caught sight of him, and had a church officer convey him to the chancel. A. C. FEARING, Jr., Secretary.

SAVE THE BULFINCH STATE HOUSE, for the following reasons: -

1. It is the architectural masterpiece of Charles Bulfinch, a son of Massachusetts, one of the greatest geniuses in his profession.

2. It was built more than one hundred years ago, and is one of the oldest and most beautiful public buildings in America.

3. Its corner-stone was laid July 4, 1795, by that grand old revolutionary patriot, Gov. Samuel Adams and Paul Revere was present at the ceremony as the Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons.

4. It is the building in which Governor Andrew did his heroic work for the Union, and it has been hallowed by the official presence of Otis, Saltonstall, Mann, Everett, Quincy, Morton, Wilson, Clifford, Winthrop, Rockwell, Story, and thousands of other leading citizens.

- 5. The good faith of the Commonwealth is pledged to the preservation of this building. In 1886, when the Governor and Council were authorized to report to the next General Court "a plan for the use, occupation, and improvement for State purposes of lands in the vicinity of the State House, and for the removal, alteration, or enlargement of any existing buildings, or the erection of any new building thereon," it was expressly provided that "the present State House, and particlarly the southern front thereof, be substantially preserved." (See Resolve, of 1886, Chapter 87.) If it had been known at that time that the erection of the annex, which was intended to save the Bulfinch State House, would ultimately become the means of its destruction, the General Court would not have given the authority set forth in the resolve.
 - 6. Every Legislature for the last three years has refused to allow the building to be destroyed.

7. The Boston Society of Architects, which includes nearly all the architects of established reputation in Boston and vicinity, is practically unanimous in favor of retaining the old building and not a single member of that society, except Mr. Brigham the architect of the annex, has favored its destruction and the erection of a new and different building in its place.

8. Prominent citizens in all parts of the State have protested against the needless destruction of this beautiful, historic structure and eloquent and stirring addresses in its defence have been made at the legislative hearings by Gen. Francis A. Walker, President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the late Ex. Gov. Alexander H. Rice, Col. Henry Lee, Hon. George S. Hale, Rev. Edward Everett Hale, Prof. Charles Eliot Norton, Prof. H. Langford Warren, Col. Henry Walker, Charles A. Cummings, E q., Hon. John Lowell, Curtis Guild, Esq., Augustus Hemenway, Esq., Edward Robinson, Esq., Curator of Classical Antiquities of the Museum of Fine Arts, Desmond Fitzgerald, Esq., and many others.

9. Our late beloved Governor Greenhalge was a stanch friend of the old building and earnestly wished that it might be preserved. 10. Letters protesting against the destruction of the building have been received from such men as Hon. Samuel Ellot, Hon. George F. Richardson, of Lowell, John D. Bryant, Esq., Hon. Milton Reed, of Fall River, Alfred Stone, Sec'y American Institute of Architects, of Providence, R. I., Hon. John C. Crosby, of Pittsfield, and many others.

11. Petitions asking for the preservation of the building and protesting vehemently against its destruction have been signed by hundreds of citizens in Boston, Cambridge, Fall River, Lawrence, Salem, Pittsfield, Worcester, and other places.

12. The architectural beauty of the building has been extolled by the leading architects, not only of this State but of other States, as well as by the eminent French architect, M. Bocage, who pronounced the old Senate Chamber one of the most beautiful rooms that he had seen in America. If a new building is erected this room will be wholly obliterated.

13. Read what senator Hoar says about the building in a letter which he wrote to Rev. Edward Everett Hale last year

United States Senate, Washington, D. C., Feb. 15, 1895.

My dear Dr. Hale, - I think our old State House one of the most beautiful buildings in the country. In the interior, the Council Chamber, the Senate Chamber, and the Representatives' Hall are among the most beautiful rooms in the world. The exterior is one of Bulfinch's best works, although he is nearly or quite the foremost of American architects, and his contribution is very great to the splendor of The Massachusetts State House has many historic associations, more than the Capitol at Washington. cluster about any other building that I now think of in the country save Faneuil Hall and Independence To destroy it, considered as a matter of taste, sentiment, or historic association, would be almost vandalism. One of the most famous orators and statesmen in the country and a gallant soldier, belonging to another State than Massachusetts, when he heard of the proposition just now, told me that he felt like taking a gun to go to its defence. As it sits on its sovereign hill, visible I suppose from their homes to nearly one half the population of the Commonwealth, seen afar by the traveller returning from foreign lands, it divides with Bunker Hill Monument the admiration and love of every true son of Massachusetts. The people of Massachusetts have never ceased to mourn the narrowness and obliquity of vision which suffered the Hancock House to be destroyed. I trust they will not be led to forget that in a worse mistake. I am faithfully yours. GEO. F. HOAR.

14. Not a single disinterested citizen has come before the Committee to advocate the demolition of the building.

15. The Legislature last year passed a "Resolve to provide for the Preservation of the Bulfinch State House on Beacon Hill." (Resolves, 1895, Chapter 31.) This Resolve provided "that there be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, within thirty days after the passage of this resolve, three disinterested persons, one of whom shall be an experienced builder, another an experienced engineer, and the third an experienced architect, who shall be known as the Commissioners for the Preservation of the Bulfinch State House on Beacon Hill. Said Commissioners shall make a thorough examination as to the present condition of the Bulfinch building, and report the results of their examination, with their recommendations, to the general court within thirty days after the passage of this resolve."

Governor Greenhalge selected the members of this special Commission with great care and no one will question their exceptional fitness for their work. The Chairman was Charles A. Cummings, President of the Boston Society of Architects, and the other two Commissioners were David H. Andrews, President of the Boston Bridge Works, a thoroughly educated civil engineer, a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and at the head of a large and prosperous company in connection with which he has had The third member was E. Noyes Whitcomb, President of the Master Builders Association, widely known as a skilful and experienced builder.

These Commissioners made their unanimous report to the General Court (Senate No. 275) which showed that the outer walls of the Buifinch building are of exceptional strength and fitness, and the mortar walls; the wooden columns of the Corinthian colonnade on the southern front are sound to the core, and the problem of making the building permanent and substantially fire-proof is a simple and practicable one. Their report sets out in substance the specifications under which this can be done, including underpinning a cost of less than $325,000, and if a sub-basement for storage purposes should be added the cost will be sioners claim that these estimates are too low, but Messrs. Andrews and Whitcomb insist that they are very Competitive bids for this work would be under rather than over these estimates. No one has disputed the entire feasibility of the plan prepared for saving the building for the simple reason that it cannot be disputed.

To the Members of the State House Preservation Committee:

The Officers of the State House Preservation Committee feel that all the members of that Committee are entitled to receive information as to the result accomplished.

After the close of the agitation, which resulted, in June, 1896, in the passage of a bill to provide for the preservation of the so-called Bulfinch portion of the State House, the public has known very little of the actual work which was being done to carry out the purposes of those interested in our grand, historic landmark. We, therefore, felt that you would be interested at this time in reading a statement of the result of the work and the accomplishment of the end desired.

After the Legislature adjourned, the Governor and his Committee appointed the architects to superintend the preservation of the Bulfinch State House in indestructible construction. The gentlemen chosen to perform this arduous task were selected from among the Boston architects, and upon the advice of those architects who were best qualified for judging of the peculiar fitness of each man.

By agreement among the architects themselves, there were three architects appointed to do the work, and they agreed to perform that labor for one half of the ordinary commission in cases of re-construction and repair, which is ten per cent. Further, they agreed to take this five per cent commission and divide it among them, though Mr. Cummings refused to receive any part of the commission, which was, therefore, divided between Mr. Everett and Mr. Andrews.

The architects appointed were Charles A. Cummings, Robert D. Andrews and Arthur G. Everett. Mr. Everett has attended personally to most of the details, and has been constantly engaged ever since the work of preservation began.

You will remember that the Legislature of 1896 appropriated $375,000 to preserve the old building and render it practically fire-proof.

It was claimed at that time by the opponents of the preservation, and those interested in having a new State House, that the cost would be very largely in excess of this appropriation, and their estimates varied all the way from $600,000 to over $1,000,000.

We are glad to be able to report that these worthy people were entirely mistaken in all of their estimates and that the work of preserving the Bulfinch State House will be completed far within the cost which was estimated by the so-called Greenhalge Commission.

By January 1st the building will be practically complete, including even the steps in the front and most of the interior fitting and furnishing. It will be ready for occupancy when the General Court convenes.

The entire cost of preserving and improving the building, including commissions and all, will not exceed $250,000, instead of the $375,000 appropriated.

This sum, small as it is, includes $36,000 which was spent for work not originally contemplated and not necessary for the preservation of the building, like new stone steps, a granite terrace and a retaining wall.

We may well congratulate ourselves upon this magnificent showing. It has not been equalled in any public work of which we have ever heard.

The Legislature of last year, acting upon the advice of the architects, diverted $100,000 from the original appropriation of $375,000 and appropriated it to the purchase of furniture and the fitting up of the Bulfinch State House when completed.

This fitting up and furniture will probably cost in the neighborhood of $75,000. instead of the $100,000 appropriated, and there will be nearly $25,000 of this appropriation unexpended.

Even including the expenditure of $36,000 for additional improvements and all the furniture and fittings, more than $50,000 of the original appropriation will remain unexpended after all the recommendations of the Greenhalge Commission have been carried out.

This result is due to the untiring work and unfailing energy of the architects, and is a great credit to them and to the State of Massachusetts itself. The architects deserve, and will receive, the thanks of every one who is interested in the preservation of this our most historic and beautiful architectural building.

As to the manner in which the work has been done, it is, perhaps, sufficient to say that the recommendations of the Greenhalge Commission have been strictly carried out. The foundations have been made absolutely secure. The building has been reconstructed throughout in fire-proof material, with steel posts and beams and terra cotta floors and walls, with wire lathing and plastering. The old walls were found to be absolutely safe and secure, but they have even less to carry to-day than they formerly had, because the fire-proof terra cotta floors under all of the rooms and corridors are supported upon steel beams and upon steel posts which rest upon the foundations and carry all of their weight.

The Senate Chamber and the Representative Chamber, with their beautiful architectural details and interior finish, have been preserved in their original beauty, and were merely supported while the fire-proof floors were put in underneath them. These rooms were originally built inside of brick partitions. The Council Chamber has been preserved as well, and has had a fire-proof floor put under it, and, in addition, as it was enclosed in a wooden partition, it has had a fire-proof wall with wire lathing and plastering built up back of it, thus protecting it from any danger of fire, and the building is now practically indestructible and fire-proof. It is of the best modern construction, and will last for an indefinite number of years. Even the cupola, which has been re-produced in the strictest conformity to the old Bulfinch designs and to the drawings and photographs which were found, is supported from the foundations upon steel posts, and no part of its weight rests upon the roof. The architects have restored the building - halls, stairways and corridors - as nearly as possible to the condition in which it was left by Mr. Bulfinch.

From time to time the necessity for new rooms for committees and State officers had obliged the Legislature to encroach upon these beautiful features of our old State House by partitioning off portions and by building a mezzanine floor. These encroachments upon the original spacious hallways have been thrown once more into the halls, and new staircases have been constructed, running up to the Senate and Governor's room, substantially, as they did in the days of Bulfinch. This gives a very beautiful interior effect.

Doric Hall has been put back to its former size and shape, though the wooden columns had to be replaced with steel pillars encased in plaster.

The Governor and his Council will occupy their old chambers. The Senate will take the old Representative chamber and the old Senate chamber will be used by the members of the Senate. The east wing on the Doric Hall floor will be occupied by the Attorney General, and the west wing by the Adjutant General. They both have very handsome suites of rooms. The old Green Room has been divided into three, and now provides accommodation for the Pardon Committee of the Council, etc.

The old Speaker's Room has been thrown into the corridor where it formerly was.

Altogether, we feel sure that you will be pleased with the architectural details, the beauty of the building in its present form, as much as you will be gratified by the splendid results from a pecuniary point of view.

In conclusion, we can only express our thanks once more to the architects who have given their valuable time to this work and who have not only accomplished their difficult task in the most satisfactory manner architecturally, but have performed the work for an amount far less than the original estimates, and also have completed the building and have it ready for occupancy when it is needed for the coming in of the General Court. From every aspect, the result is most gratifying and satisfactory, and we feel that we all have great cause to congratulate ourselves over the result.

- 16. There are probably no two men in the Commonwealth better qualified than Mr. Andrews and Mr. Whitcomb to make estimates of this sort, as they have been doing such work practically every day for many years but, even if the cost should rise to $500,000, it would save not only $1,000,000 to the taxpayers, but it would save the building itself. The Tuttle bill calls for an appropriation of $1,500,000 for a new building. Is it unreasonable to suppose that that sum may be exceeded by the time the building is finished? The cost of the annex has already exceeded the original estimates.
- 17. It will take much less time to make the present building permanent and fire-proof, as proposed, than it will to tear it down and build a new and larger one.
- 18. If the recommendations of the Special Commission of last year are carried out, not only will the Bulfinch State House be made safe and strong for centuries, but the exterior, including the dome, will remain just as it is and as we have always known it, except that the front windows, which were lengthened to give light to one of the two intermediate floors which were foolishly thrust into the building in 1867, will be restored to the original Bulfinch design. These two intermediate, or mezzanine, floors were a serious injury to the building and their removal will greatly improve the interior. Under this plan, also, the Executive Chamber, the House of Representatives, and the Senate Chamber will be preserved just as they are, but made fire-proof. The wooden columns in Doric Hall will be replaced by iron ones, encased in cement, on account of the increased weight of the new steel construction which they must sustain. The interior will be made as it was in Governor Andrew's day. The dome will be lined with terra cotta, and the present decayed wooden trusses will be replaced with steel. The rear wall is already underpinned, leaving only the east, south, and west walls to be so treated. The corridors in the annex will connect on a level with those of the Bulfinch building.
- 19. No one has ever yet given a good reason for destroying the old building. The State House Construction Commissioners claim that their new building will add five thousand square feet of space to the present area. This is certainly too trifling to justify a needless expenditure of $1,000,000 or more and it would be a mere repetition of the piece-meal and make-shift policy of the State, prior to 1886, in dealing with State House accommodations.
- 20. Only one other reason has been given for tearing down and rebuilding the Bulfinch building with inflated proportions. It is soberly claimed that it ought to be made to conform better to the architecture of the new Annex! When it is considered that the whole intent in the erection of the Annex was to imitate the matchless design of Bulfinch himself, this claim seems preposterous. No amount of size in a new building, in place of the Bulfinch State House, can ever rectify the present architectural anomaly of a building five hundred feet long with the dome at one end of it, and this absurdity will be made all the more conspicuous after all the buildings on the east side, between Beacon, Derne, and Bowdoin streets, have been removed at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars.
- 21. There is abundant architectural precedent for retaining an old historic building to serve as an impressive and dignified entrance to a new and larger addition. The present Houses of Parliament in London were built in 1840. The principal entrance is through old Westminster Hall, which was built in 1893, and yet the old building is about one twentieth the size of the new. Other similar instances might be cited. Let no one fear that the present Bulfinch building will not hold its own, architecturally, against any new additions to it.
- 22. Under our plan the Governor and Council Chambers will be used as they have been for the last one hundred years, and the old House of Representatives, and possibly the Senate Chamber, can be made available for important Committee hearings. The former has been of great value, and in almost constant use for this purpose, since the Annex was built. In spite of the millions spent on the Annex, there is a woful lack of proper committee rooms. Other rooms or department offices can be furnished in the present building, when restored, but the removal of the two intermediate floors will forever wipe out a lot of small, ill-ventilated committee rooms, created by the architectural blunder of 1867, and which have aroused a prejudice against the Bulfinch building. It should be distinctly understood that the friends of the Bulfinch State House want to restore it as nearly as possible to its original design and have no desire to perpetuate the wretched work of 1867.
- 23. There is a popular idea that the State House Construction Commissioners propose in their new building to reproduce the present one exactly, but with imperishable materials. This is not the fact. The new building is to differ in several respects. It is to be wider, deeper, and higher, and while it is to be in some respects an imitation of Bulfinch it will not be a reproduction. As was said by General Walker in his eloquent plea for the preservation of the old building, "As for the talk about taking it down and putting it up in the same spirit, preserving the same proportions, etc., it can no more be done than you can make a copy of a work by a great artist and have it anything but a copy, worth fifty or a hundred dollars, where the other may be worth one hundred thousand dollars, or a half a million. Anybody can make a copy; it takes a master to make an original." The proposed new building will not be even a copy.

- 24. It is the old historic landmarks of Boston that attract crowds of visitors from the newer parts of the country. All through the western cities there are new buildings far handsomer than the Annex, but all the combined wealth of these cities cannot give any one of them a building like the Bulfinch State House with its century of historic associations. There is no more excuse for destroying this building than there was for tearing down the old Hancock House. It is in nobody's way. It doesn't block travel or impede traffic.
- 25. To sum up the whole matter: the building can be saved and made fire-proof and permanent for a comparatively small sum. Why, then, destroy it and build on its site a somewhat larger building costing over one million dollars more than it will cost to retain the present building?

Ay, tear her tattered ensign down!

Long has it waved on high,
And many an eye has danced to see

That banner in the sky;
Beneath it rung the battle shout,

And burst the cannon's roar;
The meteor of the ocean air

Shall sweep the clouds no more!

Her deck, once red with heroes' blood,
Where knelt the vanquished foe,
When winds were hurrying o'er the flood,
And waves were white below,
No more shall feel the victor's tread,
Or know the conquered knee;
The harpies of the shore shall pluck
The eagle of the sea!

O better that her shattered hulk
Should sink beneath the wave;
Her thunders shook the mighty deep,
And there should be her grave;
Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale!

Dear : Sir:- !

A large number of prominent officials in different parts of the country, including Governors, Members of Congress and Teyors, have accepted membership upon a committee to have the charge and disposition of the fund which is being raised at the suggestion and with the assistance of the new York Journal for the purpose of erecting a monument to the officers and sailors who were lost on the battleship "l'aime." I have been asked to serve upon such a committee, and also to act as chairman of, and to appoint, a local committee to have general charge o a popular subscription which it is proposed to raise here, and I have agreed to do so. Messrs. Kidder, Peahody & Co. have agreed to receive and take charge of any subscriptions that may be made here for this object until the funds are turned over to the Treasurer, to be selected later by the national committee on the monument. It is the idea of the promoters of this movement that the subscription should be essentially a popular one, only small amounts being asked for. I am assured that the routine work connected with the matter will be attinded to, and that the duties of the local committee need not be more than formal. I am sending this invitation to about 35 gentlemen, inviting them to allow the use of their names as members of a local corrittee fi this purpose; and I desire to ask you to accept membership on this committee.

Yours very truly,

Social De !

TREMONT HOUSE, BOSTON.

"THE CLIMAK."

It was the first large, well built, nicely planned, and sumptuously furnished public-house in America. In 1828 a number of Boston merchants subscribed $1500000 a positive step forward in the art of hotel-keeping. When the building was nearly finished, the building committee were so well pleased with all the contractors and mechanics that they gave a dinner to all concerned, as a compliment. Said dinner was held in the Tremont Theatre, directly opposite the nearly complete new Tremont House. This dinner was a great success, and before its close it was clearly apparent that the honest pride of every one present was warmed by the public spirit, shown and expressed, that Boston was to have a first-class building to accommodate visitors to the new city of Boston. After a reasonable period the house was completely furnished, and a date named for its opening to accommodate the public. The first landlord was Dwight Boyden, and he proved to be all that was expected. He invited the resident citizens to come and inspect the house in all its parts. He kept its doors open for one week for general inspection, and the generally expressed opinion was that every part of the house was complete. The great kitchen was probably the best arranged and most complete ever seen in America.

The opening dinner was served Oct. 16, 1829, the landlord, Dwight Boyden, sparing no expense to make it memorable. The bill of fare was a novelty in variety of food, there being thirtyseven different things on the four courses to select from, to say nothing of the dessert of fine fruits. No drink whatever being mentioned was considered odd. From conversations held with my father, who was present at the dinner, I conclude that there was plenty of good drink in two very large punch bowls, one being at each end of the dining-room. The waiters were supplied with each each sand pencils to hand to any patron who desired to order wine or cigars. The price of the plain still wines was one dollar per bottle, Anchor Schreider champagne two dollars per bottle, Gigars six and a quarter cents each. I have reason to think that the champagne was drunk at said dinner. Each patron paid the dollar for the food served, and had a dinner ticket which he gave up upon entering the room. The wine-cards were collected at the close of the dinner. I think the bill of fare itself was the rarest thing upon the tables. It was the first direct printing from the pen ever done in America. It was written with lithographic transfer-ink upon prepared transfer-paper, then transferred upon lithographic stone, and printed therefrom. When it was announced that the bill of fare was printed it caused consternation; one old merchant exclaimed, "If Dwight Boyden's signature is printed, what are our checks worth?"

A number of bets were made that Dwight Boyden's signature was written with a pen upon each bill of fare. I have heard my father say that he saw at least eight or ten pocket scissors being used as one would a compass, to decide the distance of his signature from the lowest line, and also distances of words in other parts of the bills of fare. They were all found to be exactly alike in space, consequently it had to be admitted that the bills were printed. I have one of the original bills in my collection, which I consider very rare. There is only one other of the original number (which was two hundred) known to exist. I also have one of the original ivory-handled dinner knives, stamped "Maue for Tremont House," which was used at the first dinner, and also in use for about twenty-five years thereafter. I conclude that it is fair to presume that Daniel Webster, in his twenty years' patronage of the Tremont, must have used said knife. It has lately ranspired that one of the original lot of cigars made for the opening of the Tremont House is in existence. What, a cigar sixty-five years ticated. It was presented by Dr. Samuel A. Bemis, who was a boarder at the Tremont, to Daniel T. Curtis, Esq., as a souvenir of the opening. After some years Mr. Curtis presented it to Thomas H. Perkins, Esq. After a long term of years Mr. Perkins presented it to A. W. Spencer, Esq., on Sept. 6, 1876. After nearly twenty years' safe keeping, Mr. Spencer, upon seeing in the newspapers a well-written account of the origin, building, and opening of the Tremont House, written by Benjamin F. Stevens, Esq., resolved the Tremont House, written by Benjamin F. Stevens, Mr. Stevens, with great pleasure, accepted the cigar, and resolved that it should go into the collection of Mr. Hassam, the antiquary, who has the original bill of fare and one of the original dinner knives, and upon offering it to Mr. Hassam he was told that if accepted by him it would soon be like the bottle of very old brandy presented to Daniel Webster. "How's that?" said Mr. Stevens. "We will stop the interest on it at once," said Mr. Hassam. After a short conversation it was decided to place the cigar in the hands of S. S. Pierce Co., and was by them placed in a thin vial and shown in their collection of fine cigars as the oldest cigar in America.

One of the best cooks at the Tremont, Fernandi Gori, an Italian, was celebrated for fine soups. He was also noted for his gentlemanly bearing and genteel appearance. After years of service at the Tremont he could not pronounce any short English word without stammering and jumbling so that it was laughable. I was one of several young men in the forties who used to invite Mr. Gori to moisten his clay with me solely to hear him ask for his beverage, which was invariably a gin cocktail. It would always be like this, "Will you join us, Mr. Gori?" "Vellee, I doan care if I doo." "What will you have?" "Vellee, I vill havee onee ginee cockee-tailee." During a space of years we must have invited him hundreds of times, and the answer was always the same. It seemed to throw his whole system out of joint to ask for his favorite American mixed drink.

The writer has an original, printed notice of Harvey D. Parker & Co.'s removal from Court Square to the Parker House in October, 1855, and also one of the original bills of the first dinner, Oct. 8, 1855. To give the reader some idea of the value of the two bills of fare, Tremont and Parker, I will relate an incident connected. About 1875 I called at the Tremont House and showed my original bills for the opening of each of these celebrated houses. Not a man connected with the Tremont ever saw either bill. Paran Stevens tried to get the original bill of the Tremont from me, and, after some talk, concluded that his "I must have it" would not go. He then offered me twenty-five dollars for it, which was not accepted. I then went over to the Parker House and shew the two bills to John Mills, the partner of Mr. Parker. After three or four minutes' contemplation, he remarked that he never saw the Tremont bill before, and that they were so busy at the opening of the Parker House that they did not save a bill of fare. He sent a bell-boy for Mr. Parker, who soon came into the office. I showed him both bills of fare. He had never seen the Tremont bill, and remarked that he had not his original bill of fare, and had not seen it since the day of opening. He said to me, " Please go to Samuel Curtis, our mirror and picture framer, and have a frame made to hold the two bills, and our notice of removal, and my written invitation to be our guests at the opening dinner. Have the framing charged to the Parker House; then bring them, and suspend from the large fluted column in the office. As long as you will allow them to hang there, you are our invited guest to dinner every day that you are in town." I told Mr. Parker that I was not inclined to do so, having good and sufficient reasons not to do any such thing. Had I done as he requested, I might have eaten by this time thousands of dollars' worth of dinners. This anecdote shows the difference between the two great botel-keepers.

To close this article, I now respectfully invite all interested persons to call at S. S. Pierce Co.'s and see the old cigar. I also invite you to call at Brigham's Hotel office and see the original bills of fare, and also a photograph of he late Harvey D. Parler, taken with his original toddy-stick, used in Court Square. The court hesitate to say that I consider Mr. Parker was the best hotel-keeper that ever stood in Boston. He was a generous man in every way.

Thirty=Fourth Annual Reunion.

BOSTON, MASS., JUNE 25 and 26, 1903.

The Thirty-fourth Reunion of the Society, to be held in Boston on June 25 and 26, will be in conjunction with the Hooker Brigade and the Third Corps Union.

On April 18 a representative body of nearly one hundred leading citizens met the Recording Secretary at the Parker House. General Thomas S. Sherwin presided, and addresses were made by Lieutenant-Governor Guild, Mayor Patrick Collins, Speaker of the House Myers and others. A committee of ten—General Thomas R. Matthews, Colonel A. A. Rand, Colonel Thomas R. Livermore, General Charles H. Taylor, Colonel Frederick B. Carpenter, Colonel J. Payson Bradley, Major Charles B. Amory, Major William H. Turner, Captain Isaac P. Gragg, and Hon. Edward Gliner—was appointed to arrange for a large citizens' committee to carry out the necessary details. Great enthusiasm was manifested, and assurances of a welcome to the Society that will eclipse all previous Reunions.

Presentation of Hooker Portrait.

The portrait of Major-General Joseph Hooker, purchased by the contributions of members of the Society, will be presented to the Cullum Memorial Hall at West Point, N. Y., on Thursday, June 11, at 12 M.

General Brooke will preside, Rev. Joseph H. Twichell, LL.D., of Hooker's old Brigade, will make the prayer, and Major-General Daniel E. Sickles will give the address of presentation. All members of the Society are cordially invited to this ceremony.

Transportation to Boston.

The usual concession is made by nearly all the passenger associations north, south and west of fare and one-third on the certificate plan, i. e., full fare going and one-third fare returning to those who have paid 75 cents or upward for their going journey—provided one hundred certificates are taken.

All are urgently requested to secure certificates and to that end to apply at their respective ticket offices at least thirty minutes before the time of departure.

SPECIAL DIRECTIONS.—Beginning with June 22, the railroads will grant a fare and one-third for the round trip. The return ticket is good to start until June 29, returning, continuous trip by the same route. At the nearest important railroad station purchase a full-fare ticket to Boston; announce to the agent that you are going to the Army of the Potomac Reunion, and ask him to give you a certificate. Fill in and sign this certificate, and on the first day of the Reunion, or immediately upon arrival thereafter, hand it to the undersigned Recording Secretary to be certified by him and viséd by the agent of the railroads. When purchasing return ticket, present this viséd certificate to the ticket agent in Boston and pay one-third the regular fare back home.

After the Special Agent has left on the 26th, no certificate can be validated, and no refund of fare can be expected because of the failure to secure such certificates or to have them countersigned.

If there are no certificates at your home station, the ticket agent will tell you the nearest station at which they can be obtained. You can purchase a local ticket to the latter point and there take up a certificate and through ticket.

BE SURE TO ASK FOR CERTIFICATES, NO MATTER WHAT PART OF THE COUNTRY YOU START FROM.

Membership.

All soldiers who served East of the Alleghenies and sailors who cooperated with the Army of the Potomac are eligible for membership. The initiation fee is $1, and the annual dues are $2.

Arrears.

All members in arrears may be reinstated on payment of $4, which will include the dues for the current year. Send for applications for membership blanks and all dues to Lieutenant Frank S. Halliday, Treasurer, 69 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE NEGLECT OF MEMBERS TO PAY THEIR DUES IS A SERIOUS MENACE TO THE CONTINUANCE OF THE REUNIONS. THE LIMITED INCOME NECESSITATES THE MOST CAREFUL ECONOMY NOW, AND UNLESS THE MEMBERS PAY UP, THERE WILL BE NO REUNION IN 1904. THE BOARD OF OFFICERS EARNESTLY ENTREAT PROMPT PAYMENT.

Come!!

The Executive Committee repeat the reminder that these Reunions will soon end. Therefore, come to this with your wives and children and invite all veterans you see to join the Society. They will be cordially welcomed.

THE FLAG GOES BY.

Hats off! Along the street there comes A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums, A flash of color beneath the sky: Hats off! The flag is passing by.

Blue and crimson and white it shines Over the steel-tipped ordered lines. Hats off! The colors before us fly: But more than the flag is passing by.

Sea fights and land fights, grim and great, Fought to make and to save the State; Weary marches, and sinking ships; Cheers of victory on dying lips.

Days of plenty and days of peace; March of a strong land's swift increase; Equal justice, right and law, Stately honor and reverend awe.

Sign of a Nation, great and strong. To ward her people from foreign wrong; Pride and glory and honor, all Live in the colors to stand or fall.

Hats off! Along the street there comes A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums; And loyal hearts are beating high; Hats off! The flag is passing by.

IT IS WITH FEELINGS OF DEEP REGRET THAT WE MAKE THE SAD ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE DEATH OF

COL. ABNER B. PACKARD.

HIS DEMISE WAS VERY SUDDEN AND UNEXPECTED, AND OCCURRED AT HIS HOME IN QUINCY, MASS., OCTOBER 17, 1902.

IN 1842 HE FOUNDED THE PRESENT BUSINESS OF METAL REFINING AND MANUFACTURING VARIOUS KINDS OF TYPE METAL, AND HAD THE PLEASURE OF SEEING IT GROW TO A LARGE AND EXTENSIVE INDUSTRY, IN WHICH HE REMAINED ACTIVELY INTERESTED TO THE TIME OF HIS DEATH.

IN HIS YOUNGER DAYS HE TOOK AN ACTIVE PART IN MILITARY AFFAIRS AND WAS PROMOTED BY GRADE UNTIL HE BECAME A COLONEL, AND WITH HIS REGIMENT, THE FOURTH MASSACHUSETTS, RESPONDED TO THE FIRST CALL FOR TROOPS IN APRIL, 1861.

ALTHOUGH INTERESTED IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS, HE NEVER HELD ANY POLITICAL OFFICE, BUT OCCUPIED SEVERAL PLACES OF TRUST, AND, FOR MANY YEARS, WAS A DIRECTOR IN THE NATIONAL MT. WOLLASTON BANK, AND VICE PRESIDENT OF THE QUINCY ELECTRIC LIGHT AND POWER COMPANY.

Emmannel Club.

DEAR SIR: -

You are very cordially invited to become a member of the Emmanuel Club, which was organized in 1897 and which has been running since then with increasing success.

While the original object of the Club was to bring the members together in a social way and thus to make them better acquainted with each other and with the Rector, the membership was not confined to Emmanuel Parish nor to Episcopalians.

The meetings of the Club have always been at dinner, when some distinguished or well-informed person has addressed the members on some topic of interest, often illustrating the talk with stereopticon views.

The annual dues are fixed at $1.00, and the dinners, of which there will probably be four this season, at intervals of about six weeks, will be charged for at about $1.50 each.

We should like very much to enroll your name on the membership list and to count on your support. If, therefore, you desire to join will you kindly sign and return the enclosed postal card at your early convenience.

Very truly yours,

EMMANUEL CLUB,

"O God, our heavenly Father,
Throughout our country free,
A swordless army rises
And lifts its voice to thee.
No clash of arms, no war-cry
In all the peaceful throng:
Our only arms are flowers;
Our cry is prayer and song.

We breathe the names of comrades Who, standing by our side,
For Freedom and for Union
So nobly fought and died.
From toil and pain and battle
Well have they won release.
We give them love and honor:
Thou givest rest and peace.

Thou carest for the lilies,
Thou see'st the sparrow's fall:
Some are by us forgotten,
But thou rememberst all.
The lonely graves and nameless,
Beyond the reach of ours,
Thy hand, in loving kindness,
Will crown to day with flowers,"

Abstract of the Elequent Address by Col. Henry Walker of Boston.

[Special to the Kennebec Journal.]

NATIONAL HOME, Togue, June 17 .- With the veterans of the Rebelion who are quartered at the Eastern Branch of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, Memorial day, which is observed by them on the 17th of Jane, is held in more than average sacreduess for the reason that there is an unusually large number of veterans gathered together in this institution who remember with greater vividness, on account of the disability, the trying trying scenes through which they passed. with the members of the Home, h has been sacred to the memory of departed comrades the usual and has been observed with appropriate exercises. In the forenoon at 8 o'clock, delegates from Cutler Post, G. A. R , were sent to the three neighboring cemeteries where the graves of 60 deceased the men were dismissed until the afternoon. At 2 o'clock promptly in accordance with the programme, the procession formed in front of headquarters building the right resting near Rockland street, marching to the residence of Governor Stephenson, the officers of the Home, orator of the day and invited guests joined the procession in carriages. Too much cannot be said of the alignment and the marching of the men. The Home Military band under B. W. Thieme as leader, appeared in handsome new uniforms worn for the first time on this occa-sion. Their selections during the line of march and the services at the cemetery were most excellently rendered and won many words of praise and commendation from the hundreds of visitors who thronged the line of march and the cemetery. Cutler post made a fine showing; turning out 68 men and marching like the true soldiers that they were. The members of the home who 'participated in the parade were divided into six companies each under the command of a company sergeant. The members of the post and several of the companies carried with which to decorate the eir departed comrades. It was the flowers graves of their departed comrades. estimated that fully 1000 men participated in the parade and all were given deserved compliments for their fine appearance.

Upon acrival at the cemetery the exercises were carried out in accordance with the following programme:

The scene at the cemetery was in pressive che. On a plateau o rades, each one meraed with white Mone which den ites the final ro places of a valiant soldier. Today t lines of their comrades whom death spared stood beside the graves of their parted friends and out of full hearts pla thereon the floral emblems, evidences they are still remembered by those who left behind. Luth stephenson fr., Governor of the Home stepped forward, and in a few words in supper torware, and in a faw words in which he very fittingly referred to the very pleasan acquaintance which had existed between them since the first call to arms, introduced the orator, Col. Henry Walker of Boston, Mass. The oration was delivered in a most elequent and finished manner, and in its so pe and treatment was the equal of any ever delivered before the members of the home. The assembled veserana and the hundreds of visitors found ia it something tangible and interesting and gave it the closest attention throughout. LAURIGER HORATIUS.

Lauriger Horatius,

Crescit uva molliter, Et puella crescit; Sed poeta turpiter Sitiens canescit. Ubi sunt, etc.

THE TWO ROSES.

On a bank two roses fair,
Wet with morning showers,
Gemmed with dew, in fragrance grew,
As I, pensive, full of care,
Gathered two sweet flowers.

Tell me, roses, truly tell, If my fair one loves me well.

Thus in leaves of white arrayed,
Not a speck to dim them,
So I find the spotless mind
Which adorns my spotless maid,
Innocence's emblem.

Tell me, roses, etc.

Like her cheeks the blushing ray
Which the bud encloses,
Brighter far than you they are;
But her charms, if I should say,
You'd be jealous, roses.

Tell me, roses, etc.

 \tilde{x}^{I}

THERE'S MUSIC IN THE AIR.

There's music in the air
When the infant morn is nigh;
And faint its blush is seen,
On the bright and laughing sky.
Many a harp's ecstatic sound,
With its thrill of joy profound,
While we list enchanted there
To the music in the air.

There's music in the air
When the noon-tide's sultry beam
Reflects a golden light
On the distant mountain stream.
When beneath some grateful shade,
Sorrow's aching head is laid,
Sweetly to the spirit there
Comes the music in the air.

There's music in the air
When the twilight's gentle sigh
Is lost on evening's breast,
As its pensive beauties die.
Then, O then, the loved ones gone
Wake the pure celestial song;
Angel voices greet us there
In the music in the air.

AIR: " The Bowery."

A doleful ditty I'll carol to-night,
To tell of the painfully pitiful plight
To which I'm reduced by an unjust fate,
Though a highly respectable advocate.
I used to imagine, while yet I was young,
That startling successes invariably clung
To a syrupy smile and a talkative tongue;
But I'll never think so any more.

CHORUS.

Oh the jury, the jury, the judges and sheriffs and company; Oh the jury, the jury; I'll never go there any more.

I read in my paper the usual tale
Of the West End car and the frightened female;
So I sped to her home at a double-quick pace,—
The orthodox method of getting a case.
Five other attorneys had got there before,
Whom I roundly denounced as a rascally corps,
Those shysters I hustled in haste from the door,
They'll never go there any more.

CHORUS.

When the trial came on, at my energy vast
The court stood amazed and the jury aghast,
Monopoly's myrmidons felt rather sick
At my pyrotechnical rhetoric.
How I raved about Juggernaut ponderous,
Of Pedestrians' Rights and the Octopus,—
But a verdict was ordered which was n't for us;
I'll never go there any more.

CHORUS.

Exceptions I took, which were many and long, Conclusively proving that verdict was wrong; A desperate look had the weary Chief When I opened my very voluminous brief. I scarified statute, I rattled report, Exhausted the subject as well as the court; "Overruled," was the rescript — insultingly short. I'll never go there any more.

CHORUS.

'Tis ever the same, for whene'er I essay
To practise the law in a practical way,
Some judge or some counsel betrays in a trice
A most unprofessional prejudice.
Why, what are we here for if not to agree
To stand by a brother? But what do I see!—
Your Grievance Committee's now sitting on me,
And I sha'n't linger here any more.

CHORUS.

LANDLORD, FILL THE FLOWING BOWL.

Come, landlords, fill your flowing bowl,
Until it doth run over;
Come, landlords, fill your flowing bowl,
Until it doth run over.

For to-night we'll merry, merry be,
For to-night we'll merry, merry be,
For to-night we'll merry, merry be,
To-morrow we'll get sober.

The man that drinks good whiskey punch,
And goes to bed right mellow,
Lives as he ought to live,
And dies a jolly good fellow.

CHORUS.

The man who drinks cold water pure,
And goes to bed quite sober,
Falls as the leaves do fall
So early in October.

CHORUS.

But he who drinks just what he likes, And getteth "half seas over," Will live until he dies, perhaps, And then lie down in clover.

CHORUS.

OH, MY DARLING CLEMENTINE.

In a cavern, in a cañon,

Excavating for a mine,

Dwelt a miner, forty-niner,

And his daughter, Clementine.

CHORUS.

Oh my darling, oh my darling, Oh my darling Clementine, You are lost and gone forever,— Drefful sorry, Clementine.

Light she was, and like a fairy,
And her shoes were number nine:
Herring boxes, without topses,
Sandals were for Clementine.

CHORUS.

Drove she ducklings to the water Ev'ry morning just at nine; Hit her foot against a splinter, Fell into the foaming brine.

CHORUS,

Ruby lips above the water,
Blowing bubbles soft and fine;
Alas, for me! I was no swimmer,
So I lost my Clementine.

CHORUS.

In a church-yard near the cañon, Where the myrtle doth entwine, There grow roses and other posies, Fertilized by Clementine.

CHORUS.

Then the miner, forty-niner,
Soon began to peak and pine,
Thought he "oughter jine" his daughter;
Now he's with his Clementine.

CHORUS.

In my dreams she still doth haunt me, Robed in garments soaked in brine; Though in life I used to hug her, Now she's dead, I'll draw the line.

CHORUS.

THERE IS A TAVERN IN THE TOWN.

There is a tavern in the town, in the town,
And there my dear love sits him down, sits him down,
And drinks his wine 'mid laughter free,
And never, never thinks of me.

CHORUS.

Fare thee well, for I must leave thee,
Do not let the parting grieve thee,
And remember that the best of friends must part,
must part.

Adieu, adieu, kind friends, adieu, adieu, adieu, I can no longer stay with you, stay with you, I 'll hang my harp on a weeping-willow tree, And may the world go well with thee.

He left me for a damsel dark, damsel dark, Each Friday night they used to spark, used to spark, And now my love, once true to me, Takes that dark damsel on his knee.

CHORUS,

Oh! dig my grave both wide and deep, wide and deep, Put tombstones at my head and feet, head and feet, And on my breast carve a turtle-dove, To signify I died of love.

CHORUS.

SOLDIER'S FAREWELL.

How can I bear to leave thee? One parting kiss I give thee; And then, whate'er befalls me, I go where honor calls me.

Farewell, farewell, my own true love, Farewell, farewell, my own true love.

Ne'er more may I behold thee, Or to this heart enfold thee; With spear and pennon glancing, I see the foe advancing.

Farewell, etc.

I think of thee with longing; Think thou, when tears are thronging, That with my last faint sighing, I'll whisper soft, while dying,

Farewell, etc.

Organizations entering the parade after this date will be assigned in subsequent orders.

Organizations not having sent in the names of their commanding officers will do so at once.

By command of the Chief Marshal, CHARLES H. COLE, Chief of Staff. The Fourth Division, with the exception of the Boston Letter Carriers' Association, will form at not later than 10.45 o'clock on Marlboro St., right resting at Arlington St., left extending towards Massachusetts Avenue. This Division will follow the Third Division.

The Boston Letter Carriers' Association will form in column of platoons, double ranks, twelve files each, on Charles Street mall, head of column resting at Boylston Street. It will there rest until the arrival of the Fourth Division when it will be placed in its proper position by the Division Commander.

The Fifth Division will form at not later than 11 o'clock on Beacon Street, right resting at Arlington Street, left extending towards Massachusetts Ave. This Division will follow the Fourth Division.

Chiefs of Division will leave uncovered streets on which their right rests, also those streets that the Division crosses in its formation. Formation of column will be in companies or platoons of not less than twelve files front. Distance between companies or platoons will not be more than six paces. Chiefs of Division will instruct organizations to march to the point of formation via Boylston Street, and the following cross streets: Berkeley, Clarendon, Dartmouth, Exeter and Massachusetts Avenue.

The headquarters of the Chief Marshal will be at the junction of Arlington Street and Commonwealth Avenue until 11 A. M. After that they will be at the head of the column. The general staff, except those specifically assigned, will report promptly at 9.30 A. M. Chiefs of Division will establish their headquarters at the point indicated above for the right of their respective divisions, and will detail bearers for their respective division banners who will stay during the formation at the right of the division and who will march in rear of Division Staff. Each Chief of Division when he shall see the Division next preceding his own in motion will close his division in mass and be prepared to march promptly at a distance of forty paces in rear of the division preceding. He will station an aid at the rear of his division to notify the Chief of the succeeding one of the time to move. Each Chief will maintain his Division in a compact body. Should an accident delay his Division or cause it to lose distance, he will immediately communicate the fact to the Chief Marshal. This can be done by means of the numerous police patrol boxes along the route, arrangements having been made to telephone to police headquarters and from there to the head of the column.

All mounted men will see that their horses are properly watered before the column moves as no halts can be made for this purpose. Arrangements have been made by the quarter-master to water the horses of the fifth Division on Beacon Street between 11.30 A. M. and 12 o'clock M.

At 10.45 o'clock each Chief of Division will report by aid to the Chief Marshal. At 11 o'clock the head of the column will move. After that hour the route of the procession will be kept free of teams.

Any Chief of Division not ready to move promptly in his order will at once notify the Chief of the one next succeeding to march in his stead and will take position in rear of the last marching division, retaining at the head of his own its proper banner. Should he, however, be subject to detention by the unreadiness of a small portion of his command, he may at his discretion detach such portion and send it under charge of an aid to the Chief of the last marching division.

Any organisation reaching the ground after the departure of its own division will report to the Chief of the next succeeding one not already in motion and will be assigned a place in his division.

The route of the procession will be from the junction of Commonwealth Ave. and Arlington St. as follows: Arlington St., Beacon St., Charles St., Park Sq., Columbus Ave., Berkeley St., Tremont St., Eliot St., Washington St., Summer St., High St., Pearl St., Milk St., Broad St., State St., Devonshire St., Washington St., Hanover St., Tremont Row, Tremont St., Boylston St.

After passing the reviewing stand on Boylston St. the First Division will proceed down Boylston St., entering the Common just before reaching Charles St. at a point indicated by an aid of the Chief Marshal. It will proceed directly across the Common in a northerly direction until the head of the column reaches the Beacon St. mall opposite Spruce St. entrance, and will then close in mass and rest.

The Second Division will follow the First Division onto the Common and under the direction of an aid of the Chief Marshal will move north across the Common, ten paces from the left flank of the First Division, the head of the column resting at the Beacon St. mall on a line with the head of the First Division. It will then be closed in mass and rest.

The Third Division will follow the Second Division onto the Common and under the direction of an aid of the Chief Marshal will move north across the Common ten paces from the left flank of the Second Division, the head of the column resting on the Beacon St. mall on a line with the head of the Second Division. It will then be closed in mass and rest.

The Fourth Division will proceed onto the Common from Boylston St. and move down the Charles St. mall, to Beacon St., where it will be closed in mass and rest.

The first half of the Fifth Division will proceed through Park Sq. to Columbus Ave. and be dismissed at the corner of Berkeley St. The second half will immediately disperse on reaching Park Sq., either by Charles St., Columbus Ave., Pleasant St., or Eliot St.

Lt. Atwood, Engineer, will supply Division Commanders with a plan showing the point of formation and route of the procession, the hour at which it will reach different points along the route and a plan of the Common showing respective positions Divisions should occupy there.

The Chief Marshal, having made the route a comparatively short one, earnestly desires that no organization leave the column until dismissed. The column will not break into column of fours but will retain the company of platoon formation during the entire march.

The Division Commanders will keep their divisions well closed up on the march and not permit any sub-divisions to lose distance.

Chiefs of Divisions are requested to transmit to these headquarters on the day following the march consolidated reports of their commands.

Lt-Col. Edes, Commissary, will provide a ration for every marching man in the parade. Rations except for the fifth division will be distributed on the Common at an hour named by the Division Chief. Each Chief of Division will see that the formation is kept until the rations are distributed. The manner of rationing the fifth division will be published in subsequent orders.

In case of accident to teams the column will continue the march, leaving out broken or balky teams. All balky horses will immediately be taken out of column.

Police ambulances will be stationed as follows:- Arlington St., south corner of Commonwealth Ave. until the column starts; south side of Columbus Ave. at the corner of Berkeley St. in front of the Youth's Companion Building; Castle St. at the corner of Tremont; Kneeland St. at the corner of Washington; Chauncy St. at the corner of Summer; east side of Congress St. at the corner of High; Dock Square; Court St. at the corner of Hanover; Park St. at the corner of Tremont; Spruce St. at the corner of Beacon St.

And imment of different organizations to the Divisions will be published in subsequent orders.

By command of the Chief Marshal,

CHARLES H. COLE,

Chief of Staff.

TO THE ACTION OF THE CONTROL OF THE

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS Adjutant General's Office

SPECIAL ORDER

Boston, April 15, 1861.

Sir: I am directed by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief to order you to muster your command on Boston Common forthwith, in compliance with a requisition made by the President of the United States. The troops are to go to Washington.

By order of His Excellency, John A. Andrew, Commander-in-Chief.
WILLIAM SCHOULER, Adjutant General.

COMRADES; The above is the order you received April 15, 1861. The forty-eighth anniversary of that date will be observed on Thursday, April 15, 1909, and to commemorate the event you are requested to meet at Wesleyan Hall, 36 Bromfield Street, at 10 o'clock, a.m., to renew the memories of those stirring times, to elect officers for the ensuing year, and recall again the days of "Auld Lang Syne."

All Veterans, both of Army and Navy, who responded to the first call of President Lincoln, April 15, 1861, for three months' service, and were mustered in and honorably discharged therefrom, are eligible to membership in this Association, and are urged to be present and bring their friends.

The order of exercises will be as follows:-

10 o'clock. Social intercourse in Wesleyan Hall.

10.30. Business meeting, reports of Association Officers and Committees, election of Officers for the ensuing year and any other business that may properly come before them.

At 12 o'clock noon, the several organizations, in numerical order, will form line on Bosworth Street, and proceed, via State House, City Hall and State Street, halting at Custom House steps to be Photographed, thence through Quincy Market to Faneuil Hall at one o'clock, where the Banquet and Camp-fire will be held.

The years are rapidly passing—with these our numbers grow less. We shall soon join our Comrades in the "Silent Beyond." Therefore, let us make all we may of the time that is ours, and on April 15, 1909, renew again the youthful enthusiasm that was ours when we were the "Boys of '61."

The Executive Committee have fixed the Annual assessment at one dollar and twenty-five cents ($1.25) which is now due, and includes dinner ticket at the banquet.

Tickets now ready and for sale by Quartermaster. Obtain them before leaving Wesleyan Hall, as they will be taken up when entering Faneuil Hall in line.

Comrades are privileged to invite their friends not members of the Grand Army. Those accompanied by their wives and lady friends should notify the Quartermaster, that table places may be arranged for them.

Let each Comrade make it a point to induce every eligible to enroll his name with our Association and be with us upon this occasion.

Comrades are requested, so far as possible, to wear the badge of the Minute Men of '61; the Medal granted by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the G.A.R. Badge.

At this re-union we expect to have as guests, Governor Draper, Mayor Hibbard of Boston, Rev. Edward A. Horton, Chaplain, and other distinguished members of Military and Patriotic organizations.

CAPT. GEO. A. REED, Commander, Saxonville, Mass.

CAPT. JAMES H. GRIGGS, Adjutant & Secretary, 48 Pinckney St., East Somerville.

Manhattan Grand Opera Company

MR. OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN, Director

Prospectus

of
FIRST BOSTON SEASON

March 29-April 10, 1909

R. OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN, responding to the many complimentary demands of the music-loving public of Boston, which have been continuous since the successful establishment of his Manhattan and Philadelphia Opera Houses, takes pleasure in announcing a two weeks' season of Grand Opera at the Boston Theatre, beginning Monday, March 29, 1909. Twelve evening and three matinee performances will be given.

It is Mr. Hammerstein's intention to make this, his first visit as a Grand Opera Director, to Boston, a memorable event in the history of the Metropolis of New England. It will be the first time that Boston will have had an opportunity of hearing and seeing Grand Opera presented in a style in every detail adequate to all the requirements of this ennobling form of Art. Heretofore Boston, in spite of its culture and keen appreciation of the best in Music, has been forced to accept performances of opera with indifferent casts of artists, depleted choruses, diminished orchestras and inadequate scenery.

Mr. Hammerstein believes that his season of Grand Opera will be a revelation to those Bostonians who have not had an opportunity of attending his performances at the Manhattan Opera House, New York. He will present the same brilliant array of artists whom he employs for his New York and Philadelphia seasons. All scenery required in his productions at those houses and every member of the chorus and orchestra engaged there will be utilized in his Boston performances.

Knowing, as he does, that no public in the world has a finer artistic sense than the Boston public, he will spare no expense to realize the ideal which he has set before him as the inspiration of his great undertaking. His Grand Opera enterprises, as he has said again and again, have no mercenary end in view. He has chosen the calling of Grand Opera Director from the pure love of the work. He has sought to avoid, as far as possible, the hackneyed repertoire, and calls attention especially to the many important and, in some instances, sensational novelties which it will be his pleasure to enable Boston to hear for the first time, among them Debussy's "Pelleas and Melisande," Charpentier's "Louise," Massenet's "Thais," and "Juggler of Notre Dame," and Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffmann," as well as his splendid productions of "Samson and Delilah," "Othello," "Aida," "Boheme," "Lucia" and "Traviata" which latter two operas will introduce to Boston Mme. Tetrazzini, the greatest living coloratura soprano.

Mr. Hammerstein's roll of artists, his repertoire in detail, terms of subscription and prices for his two weeks' Boston season are printed herewith.

PARAISSANT LE SAMEDI

LE PETIT TESTAMENT

D'HECTOR L'ESTRAZ

Escholier de Paris

Puisqu'ici-bas tout n'est qu'un leurre, Puisque le spleen et la rancœur Ont envahi mon pauvre cœur Et s'y sont logés à demeure;

Sas! voyez-vous, j'étais entré Plein d'illusions dans la vie! le n'avais qu'une seule envie : Monter vers l'Idéal sacré; e saisir dans le ciel pourpré, selle Chimère poursuivie... ais tu fuis et tu m'es ravie! tombe vaincu sur le pré.

A mon aurore enchanteresse, J'avais l'âme et j'avais la foi. J'étais plus superbe qu'un roi, L'espoir chantait dans ma jeunesse. J'étais plein d'ardeur et d'ivresse Et rien ne me donnait d'effroi! A present, mon cœur est tout froid; Il meurt, sans espoir qu'il renaisse.

J'avais rêvé, comme un enfant, L'amour profond, l'amour farouche, L'amour qui sacre ce qu'il touche Et qui fuit ce monde étouffant; L'amour obstiné qui défend Les baisers menteurs à la bouche, Et qui veut sur la même couche Brûler et mourir triomphant, -

Oh! que l'illusion est brève! Le mirage se dissipant, L'espoir brise meurt en rampant Et le rire en sanglots s'achève. Voyez-vous, la femme est une Eve Sur qui souffte encor le serpent, Et l'homme toujours se repent De mettre entre ses mains son rêve. J'invoquais d'un appel pieux Une âme en qui Venus tressaille. Mais l'amour, hélas, on le raille! En ce temps qui m'est odieux, Cœur, idéal, tout ca c'est vieux! Passion, c'est un feu de paille! Il est meilleur que je m'en aille D'un monde qui brise mes dieux.

Je traînerais cette existence Morne, vaincu, désenchanté. Oiseau dans mon vol arrête, Je boiterais dans ma souffrance! Sans amour et sans espérance, Je ne suis qu'un deshérité; J'écris sur mon début : Raté ! J'ai fini : qu'un autre commence!

Si, pour mon coupable abandon, Quelque sermonneur savantasse, Faisant une docte grimace, Me dit indigne de pardon?. Zut! va, déclame en faux-bourdon, Vieux magister au cœur de glace, Je voudrais te voir à ma place Lire et méditer le Phédon Oui, Platon, en son homélie Déduite avec le plus grand soin, Prouve, et je n'y contredis point, Que Dieu nous enchaîne à la vie. L'idée avec les faits varie! La Réalité, de son poing, Culbute Platon dans un coin! Va ramasser sa théorie!

M'empêche-t-elle de souffrir, De crier, de verser des larmes? Peut-elle me donner des armes Contre un mal dont je vais mourir? Il n'est paroles pour guérir ! Hélas! raisons ne sont point charmes! Pour calmer toutes nos alarmes, A la Mort il faut recourir.

La Mort seule est douce et propice. Elle est le refuge et le port. Elle nous berce et nous endort, Comme son enfant la nourrice. O Mort! tu n'as point de caprice, Tu fais à tous le même sort ; Et puisque la Douleur me mord, Je vais à toi, consolatrice !

Mais avant que de m'en aller Dans le sein de la grande mère; Dans une boîte funéraire Avant qu'on vienne m'emballer; Avant que j'aille m'isoler Au fond d'un tombeau solitaire, Où, pour jamais, je vais me taire, - N'ai-je pas le droit de parler?

Devant les foules amassées, Je ne mourrai point maugréant. Mais avant qu'en ce trou-béant S'endorment mes douleurs passées, Avant qu'elles soient effacées Par le doigt brutal du néant, Je veux, ainsi qu'il est séant, Sur vélin coucher mes pensées.

... Je songe, en ce dernier moment, Deuil suprême, à ma pauvre mère. Elle ne me fut oncque amere Et me berça si doucement. O cœur pur comme un diamant, Elle n'avait que moi sur terre, Et, ne songeant qu'à me complaire, Fut tout amour et dévouement.

Or, pourtant, quelle chose infame! Combien, dans ce monde imparfait, Loin du juste qu'elle révait, Le Destin fait fléchir notre âme ! Voyez! – malgré que je m'en blame, Pour tout le bien qu'elle m'a fait, Je ne vais lui rendre, en effet, Que du mal, à la pauvre femme !

BALLADE POUR SA MERE

Douce mere, qui me portas Avec mille sollicitudes; Toi qui souffris des maux si rudes Et dans la douleur m'enfantas; Toi qui souris à mon enfance, Puisque tu m'as donné le jour, Je te devais reconnaissance!...

Mais trop dur est le mal d'amour.

l'u m'as, en ma prime jeunesse, Console les jours et les nuits, Prenant pour toi tous les ennuis, Ecartant de moi la tristesse.

Je te devais bien, en retour, Un peu de paix, un peu de joie; Mais mon cœur sous la douleur ploie, Car trop dur est le mal d'amour.

Or, tandis qu'elle me repousse, Celle dont je me suis épris, Qu'elle m'accable de mépris, Toujours, toi, tu m'as été douce. Certés, je devrais à mon tour, Méprisant l'ingrate maîtresse, Te donner toute ma tendresse.. Mais trop dur est le mal d'amour.

Envoi

O Mère qui vas pleurer pour Le fils ingrat qui t'abandonne, Dis encor, toi qui fus si bonne: Mon pauvre enfant, je lui pardonne! Trop dur était le mal d'amour.

- Mais quant à celle que mon âme Eut le grand malheur d'adorer; Celle-la qui m'a vu pleurer A ses pieds, lui criant ma flamme, Certe! à bon droit je la diffame, Et puis tout haut le déclarer, Nul ne devrait plus soupirer Pour elle, car c'est une infâme!

Gertes, son clair regard charmeur, Son sourire plein de promesse Vous jettent une étrange ivresse, Faite d'angoisse et de douceur ; Sa voix, au murmure berceur, Vous séduit comme une caresse. - Elle a des griffes, la tigresse. Prends garde! infortuné chasseur!

Oui, certe, elle est douce et câline, Et nulle mieux qu'elle ne sait Prendre un pauvre cœur au lacet De sa grace exquise et féline. Mais, helas! rien dans sa poitrine Ne palpite sous le corset. Vous la croyez humaine! Et c'est Un roc qui résiste à la mine.

Oh! qu'elle peut habilement Vous enjoler d'un doux sourire! Oui, ses beaux yeux semblent vous dire: Je suis à toi, j'en fais serment.

(SUITE ET FIN)

A Messire Octave Mirbeau.

Sa lèvre les donne à l'amant

Regard, baiser, tout cela ment!

Ces baisers pour qui l'on soupire!

— Sa bouche est celle d'un vampire!

Elle sut se laisser offrir Mon cœur, ma pensée et ma vie. Et moi, j'avais l'âme ravie. Et je voyais le ciel s'ouvrir. Las! d'élu je devins martyr! Aussi cruelle que jolie, Elle se rit de ma folie... - Et pour elle je vais mourir.

De ma flamme vivante et pure-Au lieu d'avoir quelque fierté, Au lieu d'apaiser par bonté Les rudes tourments que j'endure, De mon amour elle n'a cure. Je lasse sa légèreté. Et. dupant ma naiveté, Elle jouit de ma torture.

Quand, m'épuisant en mes langueurs; J'attends un consolant sourire, Son regard sec semble me dire: Je me repais de tes douleurs, Et je n'ensorcèle les cœurs Que pour contempler leur délire.
Je ris quand pour moi l'on soupire!...

— Et c'est pour cela que je meurs.

Maintenant, si mon front est pale, Ce n'est point par peur de mourir. Le néant que je vois venir Me sera la paix idéale. Plus de cauchemar, plus de rale, Plus de sanglots plus de désir: C'est dans ma couche sépulcrale. Que je vais enfin bien dormir.

Mon vrai deuil, je vous le déclare En ce noir moment, c'est que j'ai. Le regret de ce bonheur rare, L'amour profond et partage. De douceur elle fut avare. Ses mépris ont donné congé A mon pauvre cœur ravagé. Il faut donc casser ma guitare;

Ainsi, je mourrai, sans avoir Possédé le cœur d'une femme. Sans avoir, avec tant de flamme. Chauffé ce marbre! ô désespoir! Sans avoir senti le dictame Des baisers calmant mon douloir. Sa griffe a déchiré mon âme... - Mais, vengeance! Vous allez voir!

Lorsque la Mort, la Mort divine Venant à son adorateur, Sur mon triste front qui s'incline Aura pose son doigt vainqueur, Pour moi n'invoquez point en chœur. Amis, la fauve l'ibitine. Sans retard ouvrez ma poitrine, De vos mains m'arrachez le cœur!

Arrachez-le vivant encore, Saignant et palpitant d'amour; Et portez-le sans perdre un jour A l'impassible que j'adore. En ce cœur elle fit éclore Le mal qui me perd sans retour: Je veux, comme un cruel vautour, Qu'elle le prenne et le dévore!

Mon âme en elle passera, Toute ardente et désespérée. En mes désirs fous égarée, A son tour elle gémira. A l'amour qui me déchira. En proie elle sera livrée! L'insensible se sentira De mon feu mortel dévorée Oul, faites-lui manger mon cœur Et ma vengeance sera sûre! Il brûlera son sein moqueur. Elle connaitra la torture De la passion que j'endure. Et, saignante de ma blessure Elle mourra de ma douleur!...

- Maintenant, voyageur pour la Mort, en voiture!

Pour paraître à la fin de ce mois : Les Fautes, de notre ami Albert Tinchant, i vol. de nouvelles avec de nombreuses illustrations. Alph. Piaget, éditeur.

A quoi respondoit Ger-- Dà lairrez-moi doncques, villain meschant que vous étes. Ne sçavez-vous poinct que ce est pesché d'ainsy se pourmener dessoubs gippons; ne avezvous poinct la patience de attendre jusqu'à l'angelus du soir pour cognoistre la couleur de cecy? Et se renversant dessus sa mulle elle ryoit comme une folle, de-couvrant ses dents blanches, et donnant à son compaignon de petits coups de houssine dessus les detz, ainsy que font maistres aux escholliers qui poinct re ont sceu dire l'histoyre de Moïse ou du vieil compère Abraham.

Et ainsy sans s'en apercevoir, arrivèrent au bourg de la Tricherie, et s'arrêtèrent devant l'huis de l'hostellerie du Coq-Vert, car ce estoit la seule qui fust en ce païs.

Adoncques vecy le bon hoste et sa femme qui s'empressent alentour des pèlerins, disant : - Voulez-vous poinct boire messire? Poinct ne avez-vous soif ma sœur? Icy avons le meilleur vin qu'on sçache à dix lieues à la ronde! Prenez garde ma réverende! poinct ne ayez d'enquietude, vos bestes seront bien soignées! Ho! Ho! Ho! par icy ma mignonne! viens en l'écurie! Ho! Hola! Ho! et en même temps crioient: - Allons Ni-colas, par icy visvement! Menez la mulle blanche au repos! baillez-lui bonne mesure discine, et autant de paille fraische qu'elle en demandera. Allez, faictes! Holà Michaut! Ohé Thomas, mauldicts parpillots, dormez-vous? Hola! Ho! menez les mulles à l'écurie et qu'elles ne se plaignent poinct de vous!

Mais ce ne estoient la me mirouëteries pour esbaudir les voyageurs, car bien sçavez que mulles ne parlent plus depuis le temps de messer Esope, et a'il leur seroit bien dur de dire si elles sont contentes ou non!

Tout le munde estant doscques entré en la grande salle du Coq-Vert, sœur Gertrude civda que elle alloit tumber d'étonnement, véant que le susdict Michaud qui tant excitoit la cholère de l'hostellier ne extoit aultre que son bien-aime seigneur, lequel se estoit accoustre en maraud d'escurie pour mieulx pouvoir trupher les bons moynes.

Adoncques comme le feu d'enfer ardoit fort emmy le ventre de dom Bonadventure, et qu'il avoit grande haste de chanter une aultre antienne, il cria: -Bon! bon! vecy qui est bien! que Dieu vous soit compatissant et misérichordieux! Mais pour l'amour de luy, faictes-nous visvement conduire dedans nos chambres et bailler à mangier, car nostre estomac est si creux qu'il est descenteu jusqu'à nos semelles !

Comme bien vous avez devine, la chambre des moynes estoit toute voisine de celle des nonnes; si bien que après avoir mis à mal un jambon et un vieil poulet, mes deux frocards s'étantconcertés, se deffeublérent de leurs frocs.

Et soubdain nus comme satyres, et velus comme sylvains, les se ruant dedans le logis des religieuses, grandement eschauffés comme vous pensez bien.

Mais à peine y avoient-ils mis le nez que, saisis par jambes et bras, se sentirent jectés à terre et en moins d'une minute ficellés et chordeliés comme andoilles champenoises, si bellement, viewement et jolliment que ils n'eurent poinct seulement le temps de souffler ni d'invoquer leurs benoists patrons.

Cependant les deux religieuses s'esclassoient le mieulx du munde en beuvant du vin blanc, et en grignottant des tarteries. Alors, nos deux gentilshommes, car ce estoient eux qui avoient joue ce gentil tour, - alors doncques, nos deux gentilshommes ayant bouté les moynes en un petit réduict où l'hostellier souloit mettre ses pommes meurir et ses oignons séchér, les jecterent dessus la paille, leur recommandant de pryer Dieu'à voix basse s'ils ne vouloient être décousus du gousier aux crémastères ainsi que vieulx pourpoincts en vétuste, adjouxtant en ryant que ils avoient grand besoing de silence Pour certaine besoigne que ils avoient injure vous faire, car sans doubte auleun, bien debvez le deviner, scachant bien que si cussiez esté en leur place poinct ne auriez tué le temps à dire pastenostres, non plus qu'à compter vos cheveulx ou à chanter le tiers verset de vespres.

Jouvenceaux et bachélettes, lorsqu'ils sont en chambre close, ne ont poinct coustumes habituellement de reguarder voler corbels dans les aërs, mais bien contrairement treuvent-ils toujours moyen de soy divertir gallantement en jouant à tire-juppe, trousse-chemise, esloche-tettes, musse-l'oiselet ou aultres jeux innocents que vous cognoissez aussy bien que moy.

Ce que entendant, le vieil seigneur entra en grande ire, envoyant au dyable tous les moynes, moynillons et capucins du munde, puis s'estant soubdainement radolci, il mit la main de sa fille dans celle du sire de Heurteloup, leur proumettant les nopces pour la vendange. En mémoire de ceste adventure, ils adjouxterent en se mariant deux petits moustiers dans leurs armes, n'ayant garde d'oublier qu'à ces deux moustiers ils deb-voient leur perpétuel bonheur. Pour ce qui est de l'aultre novice, elle retourna au conve at des bénédictines, et par le grand crédit de messire Jacques lequel estoit nepveu de monseigneur le sénéchal, devint abbesse en la trentiesme année de son aage. Ce fust, à ce qu'on asseure, la meilleure abbesse du couvent, et tant qu'elle vécut, plus que jamais fust grande l'amitié des capucins pour les bénédictines; car elle estoit de celles qui ayment mieulx se rigoller que de tumber en melancholie et voulontiers s'abandonnent aux jouxtes des linceulx, pensant comme vous et moy, ceulx de darrière et d'alentour, que les licts où nous naissons, aymons et mourons, sont les meilleures galères qui soient pour traverser ceste paouvre vallée de lermes.

MANSIT ODOR ...

A Blanche.

Elle est partie! et, par les persiennes closes, L'air tiède a palpité dans mon cabinet bleu. Elle est partie! et, dans un sillage de roses, Sa robe a r. fraîchi l'atmosphère de feu.

Dans la rue aucun bruit que le fiacre qui roule, Emportant un fardeau dont nul ne sait le prix... Je resterai chez moi - loin, bien loin de la foule, Laissant l'article en route et le livre entrepris.

Je veux me souvenir. Les lambeaux de dentelles, Arrachés du corsage où grondaient deux captifs, Je les conserverai, comme les immortelles Que sur de chers tombeaux cueillent des doigts furtifs.

Car sa forme est absente et son parfum demeure. Pourtant, là, devant moi, le triomphant contour De son buste apparait, se dessine et, sur l'heure, Je pourrais vaguement enlacer mon amour!

Brille, soleil de juin! tes effluves brûlantes Apportent à mes sens moins de vibrations Que ses yeux de velours, dont les paupières lentes Laissent filtrer sur moi de paresseux rayons.

Criez vos airs aigus, vilains moineaux des rues, Dans vos nids citadins! Que sont, oiseaux des bois, Vos orchestres naïfs aux notes saugrenues, Auprès de la musique étrange de sa voix?

O soufdes de l'été, halein : créatrices, Avez-vous un zéphyr plus léger que son cœur ? Étes-vous plus flottants que ses mouvants caprices, Nuages qui fuyez devant l'azur vainqueur?

Elle est, la gracieuse et calme souveraine, Mon univers! Ses yeux sont mes seuls firmaments: Sa voix est un concert d'oiseaux! Sa robe à traine, Mieux que la brise en mai, caresse mes tourments.

Je veux me souvenir. Sa chambre est imprégnée De l'odeur qu'y laissa son fugitif séjour : L'oreiller dans lequel sa tête s'est baignée, Je veux m'y reposer jusqu'à la fin du jour!

Et, la nuit, son image avec moi confondue, Continuant le doux mensonge des aveux, Emportera, très haut, ma pensée éperdue Dans des rêves dorés, couleur de ses cheveux!

UNE FEMME DISCRETE

Où j'ai passé mon après-midi d'hier? A l'affaire Pranzini, parbleu! Et je vous jure que je n'ai pas perdu mon temps!

Non. Devinez qui j'ai retrouve là-bas ... Vous ne trouverez jamais... Fanny Laforest! La grande Fanny Laforest qu'on avait autrefois surnommée l'Impossible et dont le papier à lettre portait cette devise chevaleresque :

J'connais mon cœur!

Mais suis-je bête! Vous ne la connaissez peut-être pas, vouscette brave Fanny; peut-être même n'en avez-vous jamais entendu

Ah! c'était une fière semme, en soixante-dix... tout ça ne nous rajeunit pas...

Je dois avouer que sa toilette était assez voyante hier. Elle était toute en jaune de la tête aux pieds; un chapeau grand comme une fregate, et les bras nus avec deux ou trois cents petits bracelets porte-bonheur.

... Elle doit aimer Pranzini, cette femme-là, j'en suis sûr. Elle est si sentimentale!

Peut-être même peut-elle être classée au nombre de ses conquêtes ... qui sait?

Il y a quelques années, Fanny Laforest était secrétaire d'une petite danseuse à la mode, Lucie Bird, laquelle était bête comme une oie et ne savait pas ses lettres.

Fanny, elle, est très instruite. D'aucuns prétendent même qu'elle a fait des vers; de sorte que le prince bulgare de la danseuse recevait les lettres les plus extraordinaires que puisse rever un protecteur millionnaire.

Le Bulgare était en plem paradis, et tout marchait pour le mieux, lorsqu'un beau jour, à propos de bottes, il reçoit le billet suivant :

P. F. C.

Mon cher ami,

Vous êtes un parfait daim. Allez vous coucher!

LUCIE.

Le prince arriva furieux avec des poignards et des revolvers. Berthe ne comprit rien du tout. La police vint, et tout sut sini

Tout cela, parce que Lucie avait fait la cour au petit Péruvien

Avouez que c'était bien fait!

Quel type, cette Fanny, quel type!

Il y a deux mois, j'étais attablé à la terrasse de l'Américain, par un beau matin de printemps.

Il faisait un temps sur erbe. Tout était fête dans la nature et dans l'air parfumé.

Je savourais un fin madère, lorsque je vis venir à moi un grand oiseau des îles qui poussait de petits rires: c'était Fanny

Toute en bieu ce jour-là avec un chapeau grand comme un transatlantique.

- Tiens! Laberline.

- Tiens! Fanny.

- C'est à vous qu'il faut demander ça...

- Toute la joie est pour moi, chère belle...

- Figurez-vous que j'ai une soif! une soif!... - A merveille... il y a trois quarts d'heure que je vous supplie de vous asseoir... que désirez-vous prendre ?.. - Rien... une petite chartreuse mouillée d'eau...

- Ah! mon cher ami, que je suis contente de vous avoir trouvé là. Vous comprenez, seule sur le boulevard, j'eusse préféré mourir cent fois de soif, plutôt que d'entrer dans un café. Oh! rien que de penser à cela, je frémis ; vous savez comme je suis timide, et puis, je n'ai jamais aime me faire remarquer...

Elle avala sa chartreuse et nous continuâmes à causer de choses et d'autres ; elle me disait ceci, cela, cela, mille autres choses; je lui parlais des fleurs, des lys, des lilas, des myrtes et des roses...

Et, tout d'un coup, voilà qu'en plein Américain, aux youx de tout Paris, elle tire de sa poche... devinez quoi? un gigantesque havane... et l'allume!

Vous pensez comme j'étais à mon aise, moi qui n'aime pas non plus me)faire remarquer.

Heureusement, il n'est passé par là personne de ma connaissance : c'était l'heure des frères Lyonnet.

Mais c'est égal, c'était un peu risqué tout de même pour une personne qui ne veut pas attirer l'attention.

Eh bien! voilà la femme que j'ai rencontrée hier à la Cour d'assises de la Seine, derrière le banc des journalistes. Elle prenait des notes. Je suis certain qu'elle est amoureuse de Pranzini.

Et si quelqu'un fournit un alibi à ce grand bourreau de cœurs cosmopolite, je parie que ce sera elle!

Le Divan Japonais continue à se montrer le roi des concerts de nos montagnes, avec une troupe des plus amusantes. Citons surtout son baryton masqué, chaque soir couvert d'applaudissements et de fleurs, et M. Maureth, le laryngiloque, lequel a si bien su noter le parler et l'esprit des enfants terribles. La Cigale et la Fourmi, récitée par un enfant de 3 ans, et le Petit Garçon qui dit sa prière sont deux petits chefs-d'œuvre de fine observation. Bravo!

BULLETIN FINANCIER

L'approche de la liquidation avait amené une réaction sur les cours, mais aussitôt que les opérations en ont été terminées, aussitôt que la situation s'est trouvée dégagée, la hausse s'est pro-duite rapidement et, dans la seule journée de samedi, la rente 3 o/o a gagné 60 centimes.

La seule caractéristique de cette liquidation d'un mois nul en transactions, c'est la tension des reports, qui ont été plus élevés que d'habitude; il n'y a pas lieu cependant de déduire de cette élévation que c'est la rareté des capitaux qui
